PLOT TO LOBBY FOR JOB DRAFT IS LAID TO WMC

Sincerity in Textile Shifts Challenged.

Washington, D. C., March 20 [Special].—Tension on the man power front grew in the nation's capital today under the impact of a renewed move to push "work or jail" legislation thru congress and an explosive break between War Man Power Commissioner McNutt and his national labor-management committee over labor draft policy.

Developments were:

1. The WMC's national labor-management committee challenged the sincerity of the WMC in its controversial New Bedford, Mass., compulsory labor diversion program, charging this was undertaken "for the purpose of lobbying congress in support of compulsory service legislation."

2. McNutt announced he will proceed with the WMC national program of war service transfers in New Bedford despite the recommendation of the national labor-management committee, his top advisory body.

Fuse Man Power Bills.

3. A compromise man power bill combining "work or jail" features, government imposed employment ceilings, and a freeze of essential workers in their jobs, was submitted to the house and senate man power conference committee.

The blast against the WMC's New Bedford forced labor program was the result of a meeting of the national labor-management committee here Saturday at which reports were received from a WMC labor-management committee from the New Bedford area.

The controversy in New Bedford began a month ago when the WMC ordered a considerable number of textile workers there to transfer from jobs in fine goods mills to jobs in the high priority tire cord mills of the Fisk and Firestone rubber companies. Eighty-nine of the first 90 workers picked refused to transfer and are appealing from orders barring them from their old jobs.

Ask End of Force.

The national labor-management committee emphatically recommended that WMC abandon its attempt to use force and substitute a voluntary program. Splitting sharply with McNutt, the committee said in a statement:

"The New Bedford operation appears to have been used as a lobbying device by certain government officials in Washington who favored national service legislation. It further appears that New Bedford was singled out to be used as a 'guinea pig' to attempt to persuade the country and congress that the volun-

Out of Meat? Step This Way, Says Canada

BY ROBERT CONWAY.
[Staff Correspondent of the New York News and The Chicago Tribune.]

OTTAWA, March 20.—This is the kind of a steak story to make a meat hungry Yank broil with indignation, for Canadian stores and restaurants still are well stocked with all cuts of meat, ration point free, while the United States government allegedly refuses to buy Canadian meat.

One Canadian newspaper version has it that the farm bloc in Washington is successfully opposing purchase of meat which has all but disappeared from United States shops. Another explanation is that even if it were imported into the United States it would be exported again under lend-lease to England or some other needy nation.

Prefer to Sell to U. S.

And why doesn't it go from Canada direct to England or some other ally, leaving more American meat for American teeth to chew on? I couldn't find the answer to that one; but I did learn that there is a lot of hush-hush about almost every phase of this plenty-of-everything-across-the-border situation.

The failure to import meat from Canada contrasts vividly with the pre-war importation of beef and lamb from north of the border. Canadian cattlemen admittedly prefer to sell to the United States, because they receive higher prices for meat from Yanks than they do from their English buyers across the Atlantic.

"The Canadian government would have to raise the price of meat in Canada if the United States started buying here on a big scale," one American government official here told me. "Canadian cattlemen are pretty sore over the situation. The whole thing is bound to blow up in the face of a lot of officials on both sides of the border one of these days."

British Refuse Bacon.

James G. Gardiner, Canada's minister of agriculture, flatly puts the blame for the United States' failure to import Canadian meat on United States officials. He said:

"Our plants putting out meat for export are working to capacity now. We wanted to increase our commitments to Great Britain for this year, but until now they didn't want all we could supply. We would like those in the United States to handle some of our meat, but they don't want it."

Canada's current contract calls for 450,000,000 pounds to be shipped to England this year. The British were offered 150,000,000 additional pounds of bacon, but refused it as long as lend-lease supplies were coming in so plentifully from Uncle Sam. Since Canadian pork growers apparently couldn't sell to the United States, they cut down production.

Now everybody is caught short of bacon—except Canadians. Here it is unrationed and good.

Meanwhile, Canada's butter supply also has improved. Beginning April 1, the Canadian butter ration will be increased from six to seven ounces weekly, restoring a one-ounce reduction put into effect Jan. 1, the prices board announced last night.

May Go to Washington.

LONDON, March 20 (AP).—Food Minister John J. Llewellin said today that he and the minister of war production, Oliver Lyttelton, might go to Washington soon to discuss Britain's meat and food supply situation, but added that no definite decision had been made.

Llewellin said he considered the recently announced cut in American meat supplies to Britain as "still fluid," and indicated there would be no cut in the meat ration at least until all factors have been weighed.

"We are still getting our meat from Argentina," he said. "Otherwise the meat ration would have to come down."

Reports on Newfoundland.

LONDON, March 20 [Reuters].—Newfoundland suffers from no serious food shortage and receives her fair allocation of food supplies from the various dominion governments, Dominion Undersecretary Paul Emrys Evans assured the house of commons today.

THE LAST SURVIVOR

ONLY 5% OF STATE'S RETURNED WAR VETS SEEK JOBLESS DOLE

More than 100,000 men and women veterans of World War II. had returned to civilian life up to Jan. 31, but only about 5 per cent filed claims for unemployment compensation under the G. I. bill of rights during the five months ending on that date, Robert L. Gordon, acting state director of labor, said yesterday. The 5,277 returned veterans who filed unemployment claims since the act became effective Sept. 1 received a total of $364,801, Gordon said.

The average check was for $19.73 and the average period of unemployment for which the checks were issued was three and a half weeks.

In the five month period, veterans filed in other cities as follows: Aurora, 47; Elgin, 36; De Kalb, 46; Joliet, 36; Kankakee, 87; Rockford, 40; Freeport, 10; La Salle, 12; Peoria, 131; Springfield, 124, and East St. Louis, 106.

San Francisco, Cal., March 20 (AP).—Australians have no fear of "Yankee imperialism" but, on the contrary, welcome greater American participation in Pacific affairs, Deputy Prime Minister Francis M. Forde, Australian delegate to the forthcoming San Francisco conference, said in an interview last night.

Forde and Dr. H. V. Evatt, minister for external affairs, are stopping briefly on the Pacific coast on their way to London for a pre-conference meeting with other British commonwealth leaders.

"It would be a very sad day for the dominions of New Zealand and Australia if America ceased to take a major interest in the Pacific," Forde said.

Forde said the Australian government had taken steps to encourage the immigration of American service men, whom he termed "the very flower of American manhood."

Chief Army Engineer Sees No Need for Rhine Bridge

PARIS, March 21 [Wednesday]—(AP).—Maj. Gen. C. R. Moore, chief engineer in the European theater of operations, declared today that the rapid expansion of the American bridgehead east of the Rhine made it unnecessary to try to rebuild the collapsed Ludendorff bridge. The bridge is no longer needed, he said, suggesting that the United States 1st army now had enough pontoon bridges to assure success of the operations.

5 a. m. Theater Defies WMC to Close It Up

Toledo, O., March 20 [Special].—The nation's first test case arising from the midnight curfew was shaping up here today with an assertion by Ralph O. Snyder, area director for the war man power commission, that he has set federal machinery in motion to close the Loop theater, downtown movie house.

Snyder acted after Jack O'Connell, owner of the theater and father of an army sergeant now in Germany who holds the silver star and other awards, announced last night that "the curfew is the bunk so far as I'm concerned" and kept his showhouse open from midnight until 5 a. m. today.

Helps Late Shift Workers.

Unawed by Snyder's threats, of government sanctions, O'Connell tonight prepared to repeat his defiance of the curfew. Signs outside the theater proclaimed, "Midnight Show Tonight." O'Connell asserted his theater is the only all night picture house in Ohio and that it serves a definite war need by providing recreation for late shift war workers who otherwise would get none.

Snyder said he has certified O'Connell's violation to the national war man power commission in Washington and that the WMC will now confer with the war production board in regard to what sanctions should be applied in order to force the theater to close.

"One sanction which would be effective would be shutting off the theater's electricity," Snyder said. "The WPB has the power to do this, as it controls the use of light, heat, and power. I am not sure what will be done but I can say that in any event the Loop theater very definitely will be closed."

Challenges WMC to Debate.

From his office in the theater, which is located at 417 Superior st. in the heart of the city's business district, O'Connell challenged the war man power commission to a public debate on the question of whether the war effort would be retarded by his running of midnight shows. He offered to engage and pay for the Civic auditorium as a forum for the debate.

His theater employes, he said, are not capable of a greater contribution to the war effort than they are making by working for him. He said his ticket taker is a legless man who moves about on a wheeled platform, and another employe is a man of 72 with a broken leg. He employs a woman in her 50s ineligible for war plant work because of a goiter.

Before deciding to defy the curfew, he said, he sent a long wire to War Mobilization Director Byrnes asking that he be given a curfew exemption similar to that given all night restaurants. He assured Byrnes most of his post-midnight patrons were war workers and said his show was contributing neither to delinquency nor absenteeism.

"Byrnes didn't answer my wire, so I decided to go ahead anyway," he said. "I'm not trying to be a martyr. I just think my show is needed."

Visited by Local Official.

Edward A. DeAngelo, Toledo safety director, visited O'Connell's theater early this morning and argued with O'Connell for nearly an hour in an effort to persuade him to abandon his curfew defiance, it was said. There were about 75 patrons in the showhouse at the time, and some of them cheered an announcement by O'Connell that the show would go on.

DeAngelo said O'Connell's actions had left him no recourse but to report the violation to the WMC. He said this was the only action he intended to take but that he would have officers in the vicinity tonight to preserve order.

Free Travel in Britain for Yanks on Furlough

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 21 [Wednesday].—American military personnel were advised in the army newspaper Stars and Stripes this morning that they may travel free anywhere in the United Kingdom on furlough, leave, or pass. Free travel is barred on Saturdays and Sundays because of the shortage of accommodations.

1,500,000 Nazis Held by Allies, Britain Says

LONDON, March 20 (AP).—About 1,500,000 Germans have been captured by the allies, exclusive of those taken by the Russian army, since the European war started in September, 1939, Secretary of War Grigg told commons today.

475 AIRCRAFT DESTROYED IN BOLD U. S. RAID

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., Guam, March 21 (Wednesday)—(AP).—American aircraft flying from the mightiest carrier fleet ever assembled attacked the Japanese fleet in the empire's Inland sea Monday in one of the boldest exploits of the war. From 15 to 17 enemy warships, including one or two battleships, and seven freighters were damaged and at least 475 Japanese planes were destroyed—200 in the air and 275 on the ground.

One of the battleships damaged was known to be of the Yamato class, a 45,000 ton dreadnaught, mightiest in the Japanese navy.

The enemy fleet thus was hit in its home waters for the first time, but no actual engagement between surface units was announced.

Jap Carriers Damaged.

Adm. Nimitz announced the daring attack today in a bulletin which said preliminary surveys of damage showed that two or three aircraft carriers, two light carriers or escort carriers, two escort carriers, one heavy cruiser, one light cruiser, four destroyers, one submarine, one destroyer escort, and 13 freighters also were included in the bag.

Six of the freighters were sunk and a large number of ground installations, including hangars, shops, arsenals, and oil storage facilities were destroyed.

Enemy broadcasts said 1,400 carrier planes took part.

Adm. Nimitz said the brilliant raid inflicted "crippling damage" on the Japanese fleet.

No U. S. Ships Lost.

Altho Nipponese flyers made many attempts to bomb the American armada, not a ship was lost. One ship, not identified as to class, was seriously damaged, but is returning to port under its own power.

"A few others sustained minor damage, but all are fully operational," Adm. Nimitz said.

The Pacific fleet, whose planes twice routed the Japanese fleet last year, swung northeast after a day of attacks on enemy air bases and other installations on Kyushu, southernmost of the Japanse home islands. One hundred enemy planes were destroyed there.

Kobe and Kure Attacked.

On Monday, Adm. Spruance moved ships of his 5th fleet into position from where Vice Adm. Mitscher sent his carrier planes—Hellcats, Corsairs, Helldivers, and Avenger torpedo-bombers—in the first sea borne attack on the home bases of the enemy in the Japanese Inland sea. They struck Kobe, the Kure naval base, and other objectives in the area.

Yanks Seize Air Field at Panay Capital

MANILA, March 21 [Wednesday] (AP).—Maj. Gen. Rapp Brush's 40th division infantry men captured the important Iloilo airdrome on Panay Island Monday in a swift eastward drive into the outskirts of the capital city.

Another column spearing northward 25 miles from the beachhead overran the broad coastal plain, captured the towns of Janiuay, Pototan, and Barotac Nuevo and established contact with a strong guerrilla band which had done much to clear the southeast section of the big central Philippines Island.

Gen. MacArthur said in his bulletin today that the Yanks were "taking full advantage of the enemy's confusion" as they swept rapidly north and east from the beachhead established at dawn Sunday with naval and air support.

Capital Burning.

Heavy fires were observed in Iloilo, indicating the enemy was putting the torch to the city of 90,000 inhabitants. Iloilo, one of the best ports in the central Philippines, was badly damaged by Japanese naval guns and American demolition squads when the enemy captured the city early in 1942.

The 40th division Yanks captured Carpenter's bridge over the Iloilo river on the eastern approaches.

Guerrillas on Luzon, meantime, scored an important triumph by capturing San Fernando in La Union province, a major port just north of the American beachhead on Lingayen gulf. The Japanese garrison was wiped out. San Fernando was a vital shipping point for the Japanese. From there they sent metals from the rich Benguet mountains to Japan.

33d Division Gains.

Thirty-third division doughboys drove north 10 miles from Aringay to seize Bauang, six miles south of San Fernando. Two bridges along this coastal road were captured before they could be blown up by the retreating Japanese.

Other Yanks pressed closer to the Philippine summer capital at Baguio, due east of Aringay, and pushed farther into the enemy's secondary defenses along the Shimbu line east of Manila.

On Mindanao Maj. Gen. Jens A. Doe's 41st division repulsed a night counter-attack north of San Roque as they expanded their positions in the Zamboanga hills to the north against lessening resistance.

Americans on Basilan Island, 12 miles south of Zamboanga, captured the town of Isabela in a combined overland and amphibious operation. MacArthur said Basilan "now is under our control."

Liberators dropped 106 tons of bombs on Formosa airdromes and raked enemy holdings in the central Philippines, while patrolling of the blockaded China sea netted a 10,000 ton tanker damaged and a small freighter sunk, the latter north of Formosa.

HARRY BRIDGES' CASH TIED UP BY ESTRANGED WIFE

San Francisco, Cal., March 20 (AP).—Mrs. Agnes Bridges obtained a court order today freezing the bank account and earnings of her estranged husband, Harry Bridges, president of the CIO Longshoremen's union, who had sued for divorce on grounds of "extreme cruelty."

The order, signed by Superior Judge I. L. Harris, requires Bridges to show cause March 28 why he should not pay Mrs. Bridges $450 a month temporary alimony.

Mrs. Bridges said in her complaint she had expected to be supported in a style befitting the wife of a prominent labor leader. She estimated his income at $1,000 monthly. The Australian born labor leader faces a deportation order for alleged communistic activities.

SAAR OVERRUN AS 2 AMERICAN ARMIES LINK UP

PARIS, March 21 (Wednesday) — (AP). — The United States 3d and 7th armies formed a junction in the Saarland yesterday in a great coördinated assault that virtually wiped out the last German resistance west of the Rhine and captured the historic cities of Saarbruecken, Zweibruecken, and Worms.

Contact between the two armies was made at a point about 12 miles west of Kaiserslautern by elements of the 7th army's 6th armored division and the 3d army's 26th infantry division.

Saarbruecken, a city of 135,000 population and the capital and economic center of the industrial Saar, fell to Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th army, as did Zweibruecken, 17 miles to the east.

Push to Mainz on Rhine.

Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army, which drove thru Kaiserslautern, reached the ancient Rhine bank city of Mainz, a city of 160,000 population at the confluence of the Rhine and Main rivers.

Worms, on the Rhine about midway between Mainz and the twin cities of Ludwigshafen and Mannheim, was seized in a lightning stab by the 4th armored and 90th infantry divisions, elements of which also had made the dash to Mainz.

[The British radio reported that the Germans blew up the Rhine bridges at Worms before the Americans captured the city.]

The drives of the American 3d and 7th armies disposed of the German 7th army and bottled up much of the German 1st army—the last two enemy armies west of the Rhine.

Nazis Attempt to Flee.

Under the unrelenting assault the enemy's defenses in the Saarland salient collapsed and Nazi troops were attempting to flee eastward by the thousands under a storm of explosives from American war planes.

At the same time German resistance east of the Rhine seemed to falter and Lt. Gen. Hodges' United States 1st army broadened its bridgehead to 24 miles with advances measuring up to 4,000 yards. The 1st army overran more than 40 villages inside the bridgehead and fought into an east bank suburb of Bonn.

Thousands in Pocket.

The fall of Saarbruecken and Zweibruecken foretold the possible swift evacuation of all Germany west of the Rhine. Their comparatively easy conquest symbolized the complete collapse of the Nazi defenses of the Saar-Moselle triangle. Thousands of Germans were captured, one front dispatch saying that the 3d army alone bagged possibly 20,000.

The junction of the 3d and 7th armies pocketed thousands of Germans in a sack 10 miles long and eight wide extending about 10 miles east of Saarlautern to about three miles east of Homberg.

There was no way to estimate the number of enemy troops who might be in this encirclement, but it was evident the enemy was suffering tremendous losses in man power.

A few days ago the German 1st and 7th armies in the Saarland were believed to total more than 80,000 men. These forces now have been chopped into pieces—countless little isolated groups.

One dispatch said all opposition on the 3d army front west of the Rhine had ceased. The Germans' remaining positions in the Siegfried and Hunsbrueck lines facing the 7th army southeast of Zweibruecken were outflanked and untenable, making a quick withdrawal compulsory if not already too late.

One Division Transferred.

The base of the remaining enemy salient on the west bank of the Rhine was only 45 miles and at its deepest point, somewhere east of Zweibruecken, it was less than 40 miles.

The post-midnight announcement of the link-up of the American 3d and 7th armies was the first disclosure that the 6th armored division had been transferred from Patton's forces to Patch's command. To accomplish the junction the 6th armored, commanded by Maj. Gen. Robert Grow, made a northward sweep of 12 miles during the day.

Kaiserslautern, from which a super-military highway runs 23 miles east to the Rhine, was the main supply point for Nazi forces in the Saar-Rhine-Moselle area. Its loss meant that the entire Saar basin, upon which the Germans depended for much of their coal supply, is lost.

Doughboys of the 80th division drove thru Kaiserlautern and allied pilots flying over the city reported its streets were lined with people waving white flags as the Americans sped thru.

Surrenders at High Rate.

The 3d army alone counted 8,355 prisoners Monday for a record single day's capture by any allied army in the west. The 11th armored division alone took 6,700 by sunset.

The 7th army, keeping the Nazis on their heels with a relentless head-on assault, bagged thousands more of the disorganized enemy, but events were moving too swiftly to keep an exact count.

Along the Saar valley doughboys flooded into the steel and iron foundry belt which, next to the Ruhr, was the German army's greatest remaining source of supply. Saarlautern, steel city of 32,000, was captured after three and a half months of fighting thru its streets.

As Patton's armor rolled up to and toward the Rhine, hundreds upon hundreds of American planes swept over the jammed highways and blasted the fleeing Nazis with bombs, rockets, and bullets. Hundreds of motor and horse drawn vehicles were destroyed.

Littered with Wreckage.

Pilots reported that the superhighway between Kaiserslautern and the Rhine was packed solid with German columns, including horsecarts, pushcarts, and wheelbarrows. When the planes completed their deadly work, the six lane highway was littered with burning wreckage along its entire length.

In Monday's blazing advance the 3d army overran 40 to 50 towns in gains up to 11 miles against resistance so disorganized that it no longer was a major factor. Patton's tank and doughboy teams already had gouged out a hole across the Moselle river about as large as the Nazis tore thru the Ardennes with their two army counter-offensive last December.

Hodges' 78th infantry division drove more than two miles in reaching Beuel, a southern suburb on the east bank opposite Bonn, and thrust another two miles to Stieldorf, due east of Bonn, which lies on the west bank. The same outfit reached Hoholz and Puetzchen and captured Kudinghoven, Ramersdorf, and Limperich in the course of its advance toward the Ruhr valley.

The Germans launched a tank led counter-attack in an effort to recapture one of two landing strips held by Hodges' troops inside the bridgehead, but were beaten off after a stiff three hour fight, losing two tanks. The strip is capable of accommodating transport planes.

Bridgehead forces had wrested a nine mile stretch of the Frankfurt-Ruhr super-highway from the enemy, but it was usable only for short distances because of German demolitions. Engineers were hastening repairs under fire.

At the southern end of the bridgehead doughboys drove thru Moselborn to Jakobshof, just north of Andernach, against disorganized Nazi resistance.

GERMAN WAR REPORT.

"The focal points of the western front were the areas on the central Rhine north of Koenigswinter and along the motor highway east of Honnef. In spite of large enemy deployment he was checked in counter-attack or repulsed. On the southern front of the bridgehead the enemy succeeded in gaining more ground. The commander and the remnants of the garrison of Coblenz are fighting heroically against the enemy, attacking from all sides.

"Heavy fighting continues in the Palatinate mountains with enemy forces which advanced beyond the Nahe and Glan valleys. All attacks of the American 7th army failed with heavy losses on the southern frontier of the Rhine Palatinate where our troops have taken up positions in the western fortifications."

ADOLF HITLER MISSES ANOTHER BOMBING— HE WAS NOT THERE

ON THE GERMAN FRONTIER NEAR BUCHS, Switzerland, March 20 (AP).—Hitler and the most important members of his staff were absent during the recent American bombing of the German army's Zossen headquarters. They were conferring at Berchtesgaden on last minute drafts of defenses, it was reported here today.

Von Rundstedt was said to have attended the conference, indicating to sources here that he probably had been removed from command on the western front but still was a factor in military strategy.

Several high Nazi party officials reportedly were trying to persuade Hitler to appoint them to command in the west but dissension among them made a decision impossible.

CHICAGOLAND FLYERS JOIN IN BLASTING REICH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

A U. S. ARMY AIR FIELD, March 20. — Among Chicagoland aviators participating in the unprecedented aerial activity isolating the Ruhr and the east bank zone of the Rhine by cutting railroads, smashing vehicular traffic, and paralyzing transport in today's excellent flying weather are:

De Gaulle Insists Allies Drop Arms in Indo-China

PARIS, March 20 (AP).—Gen. De Gaulle, speaking before the consultative assembly, demanded today that the allies drop weapons to French troops fighting the Japanese in the mountainous jungles of Upper Laos, west of Hanoi in Indo-China. De Gaulle asserted the French would hold out until relieved and declared, "I insist that arms and munitions be parachuted to them."

PATCH SNAPS UP PRIZE SOUGHT BY PATTON'S ARMY

Saarbruecken Taken by Flanking Thrust.

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 7TH ARMY IN GERMANY, March 20. — Saarbruecken and Zweibruecken in the Saar fell today to Lt. Gen. Patch's 7th army on the sixth day of its offensive. Saarbruecken had long resisted the Americans' efforts. The coal mining and industrial center to the people of the reich connotes the whole rich Saar area.

The prize of Saarbruecken had been sought by Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army last November and December. Patton's forces shelled the city but were not in position for a ground assault on it before the 3d army was swung north to counter-attack Field Marshal von Rundstedt in the Belgian bulge.

Patch's army had been closing in on Saarbruecken for weeks and the assignment of taking the city was given to the 70th infantry division, a unit comparatively new to combat and commanded by Maj. Gen. Allison J. Barnett.

Exploits Saar Crossing.

The 70th made some attempt at a frontal assault and took losses from Siegfried line fire south of the city. Then the division swung its weight to the west. It crossed the Saar river at two points, exploited the operation, and today advanced into Voelklingen and then moved eastward to enter and capture Saarbruecken in a flanking movement. The final resistance was not heavy, as the Germans' position had become untenable and they had moved out most of their forces.

To the east of Saarbruecken, the 63d infantry division was moving north and east after having slashed thru the Siegfried line.

Zweibruecken, a town with a peace time population of 28,000, was captured by the 3d infantry division, veterans of Sicily, southern Italy, Anzio, and whole southern and eastern France campaign. The 3d, commanded by Maj. Gen. John W. O'Daniel, had been given the task of cracking the toughest Siegfried defenses in the Saar, and after that the taking of the city was anti-climactic. The 3d encountered no opposition in Zweibruecken.

45th Again 3d's Partner.

On the 3d's left, its companion in all campaigns, the 45th infantry division, found opposition increasingly disorganized and captured many pillboxes and bunkers of the Siegfried fortifications.

The 157th regiment of the 45th on Monday night listened in on an enemy telephone switchboard in a pillbox and overheard an elite guard captain directing his company to withdraw. Not all of the Germans had time to retreat, for the divisional artillery gave the position a heavy pounding.

In the Hardt mountains [Lower Vosges] sector, the 42d Rainbow and 103d infantry divisions were cutting thru other Siegfried defenses in dense woods. Kapsweyer in the Rhine valley, two miles northeast of Wissembourg, was taken by the 36th infantry division.

The Germans were still defending fiercely in that portion of the Siegfried line in the Palatinate north of Alsace, obviously employing that position as a guard for thei swing of their forces to the Rhine.

The Germans' principal escape routes were jammed with eastbound traffic. It was bumper to bumper, tread to tread, several vehicles abreast as the enemy fled.

P-47 Thunderbolts of the 12th tactical air command dive bombed and strafed continually, taking a large toll. About 1,000 tanks, self-propelled guns, trucks, and wagons were destroyed and more than a thousand others were damaged, pilots reported. The flyers told of views of miles of bodies and smashed material along the roads.

U. S. BOMBERS ATTACK OIL PLANTS, U-BOAT YARDS AT HAMBURG

LONDON, March 21 [Wednesday] —(AP).—R. A. F. Mosquitoes attacked Berlin for the 29th consecutive night last night after perhaps 5,000 allied heavy bombers during the day had rained explosives on German communications, oil plants, and submarine yards while lighter war planes raked German troops.

Four hundred United States 8th air force bombers attacked a natural oil refinery at Hemmingstedt on the Danish peninsula and raided Hamburg's port and its Blohm-Voss submarine yards, where the latest type of U-boats reportedly is being constructed. An oil refinery in the Hamburg area also was hit. Lt. Robert L. Thorkessen of 635 Wolff st., Racine, Wis., an escort pilot, bagged a German plane.

R. A. F. Lancasters attacked Germany's largest rail yard at Hamm, traffic gateway to the Ruhr, and Halifaxes bombed the Recklinghausen yards, which handle supplies for Rhine troops and coal cargoes for central Germany. Then American fighters escorted R. A. F. heavy bombers to an unidentified target in northwestern Germany—an unusual procedure. From Italy, 15th air force Fortresses and Liberators smashed at rail yards at Amstetten and Wels.

IKE RADIOS NEW DEATH WARNING TO RUHR CITIES

LONDON, March 20 (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower's radio warnings to German civilians and foreign workers to flee certain areas because the localities would become "deathtraps" from allied bombardment, was directed today to Ruhr cities.

The broadcasts were beamed to residents of Essen, Muehleim, Dortmund, and 14 other major Ruhr cities, and Eisenhower's radio spokesman said:

"These districts now are combat areas. Every inhabitant is warned to remove himself and his family to a safe place outside of the Ruhr. From now on, no shelter or refuge within these districts can be considered safe. Your life depends upon immediate execution of these orders."

THIS DOUGHBOY KILLS GERMANS, SAVES HIS PALS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH U. S. 3D DIVISION NEAR ZWEIBRUECKEN, Germany, March 20. — Around the 30th regiment they're saying of Pvt. John Milward, "He kills Germans and saves Americans and he is damned good at both."

Milward, a thin, sparse haired fellow from Portsmouth, O., volunteered just before the start of the present offensive for service with the "Raiders," an intrepid battle patrol which spearheads most of the regiment's attacks. He was accepted and then learned that the Raiders didn't have a medical aid man.

So he read up on emergency treatment and when he went into battle he carried medical equipment as well as his infantry weapons.

Doesn't Wear Arm Band.

"I figured I could have a try at the dual job," Milward said. "But I didn't wear a Red Cross brassard for I'm first of all a fighting man."

In the struggle below Zweibruecken Milward was aboard a tank moving thru mine fields for high ground. German machine guns and mortars opened up as the tank neared the north end of one mine strip. With his rifle and grenades, Milward knocked out one of the machine guns, killing all the crew.

While the other Raiders were finishing off the German resistance and consolidating their position, Milward went to work on the wounded. He not only took care of the injured but gave first aid to men from two adjacent outfits.

After he had treated 12 men—most of whom might have died if he hadn't been around—Milward picked his way back thru the mine fields to get more medical equipment at the battalion aid station.

And Back to Old Job.

Returning, he was pinned down for a while by fire from a self-propelled gun. The few times he could stick his head above a ditch he fired at a group of the enemy just within his view.

When he reached the Raiders again he found five more of them wounded. He gave them quick assistance.

Then he switched to his first job—fighting with the Raiders as they took another hill.

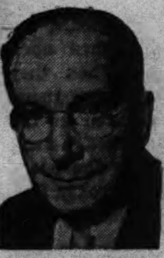
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—Fear that freedom of the press would be threatened by a consolidation of all United States international communication systems into a single government supervised, privately owned corporation, was expressed by Sen. Wheeler [D., Mont.] today at a senate subcommittee hearing.



Sen. Wheeler.

Such a merger was proposed yesterday by Secretary of the Navy Forrestal at the opening of a senate interstate commerce subcommittee hearing on post-war overseas communications. Rear Adm. Joseph R. Redman, director of naval communications, explained the navy plan in detail today. Asserting that American military and diplomatic security demand a unified communications organization.

Wheeler, subcommittee chairman, asked Redman why it would be necessary to include newspapers and press associations in the corporation, since news gathering and transmissions could not possibly interfere with military and diplomatic considerations.

Fears Censorship.

"Under such a monopoly, I fear censorship over press communications," Wheeler declared. "If I were running a newspaper, I'd hate to have a monopoly in a position to be able to tell me what I can and what I can't transmit."

Redman replied that freedom of the press would not be involved or endangered. He said the press has encountered no difficulties or censorship with domestic telephone and telegraph monopolies, and added that the unified communications system would be purely a "service organization." Exclusion of the press would impair unity, he said.

"Our interest is as great as that of the press itself in insuring the availability and reliability of communication services for the transmission and dissemination of international news, because that is a matter of national interest rather than simply the interest of the press as a business enterprise," Redman testified.

"In the National Interest."

"Press communication services should be included in the consolidation of international communications, therefore, because they are a matter of national interest, and every necessary device and organizational arrangement should be offered by the new corporation to insure the press favorable rates and volume and speed of communications."

Redman asserted that if an attempt is made to exclude the press from the unified system, a "competitive patchwork" will result. He said those who advocate competition instead of monopoly should bear in mind that post-war competition will be international.

"We must subordinate to complete unity of purpose and organization such seeming advantages as might appear to support any continuance of internal competition among our international carriers," he said.

Cites Poor Service in Past.

Remarking that as a rule monopolies are inefficient, Wheeler told Redman that the press was obliged to organize its own communications facilities because of "poor service" provided by private companies. Redman admitted the latter was true, but insisted the proposed consolidation organization would provide sufficient press service.

Referring to Redman's testimony that five members, or one-fourth, of the proposed corporation's board of directors would be representatives of the war, navy, state, commerce, and postoffice departments, Wheeler asked the admiral why the consolidated system should not be owned by the government as long as it would be government controled.

Redman replied that private ownership would be preferable, and denied that the presence of government representatives on the board would mean federal control. He asserted that the primary duties of the government representatives would be to protect American interests in military and dipimatic matters during times of national emergency.

Doubts Need of Subsidy.

Sen. Capehart [R., Ind.] asked if in the end the government wouldn't be obliged to subsidize a consolidated corporation. Redman replied the corporation would be able to operate profitably and would not need federal aid.

In answer to another question from Capehart, Redman estimated that the assets of the 13 American radio, cable, telegraph, and press wireless companies, which the navy seeks to consolidate, at 60 million dollars. Redman said the value of the proposed corporation might be "considerably higher."

Aim to Balk Control.

Wheeler argued that the provision of the navy plan limiting individual and corporate stock ownership in the proposed organization would be a "physical impossibility." Redman contended federal laws and enforcement would prevent stock control from falling into the hands of a few individuals or corporations.

"How are you going to prevent it?" asked Wheeler. "It sounds all right in theory, but it has been demonstrated that a few shares can control an entire company."

The subcommittee hearing is expected to continue for several weeks, with testimony by private communications companies, labor representatives, and the press scheduled. Paul A. Porter, chairman of the federal communications commission, will testify tomorrow.

The four had contended that they were ordered to do menial work in Lovell general hospital "because of their color."

They are Pvt. Alice D. Young, 23, of Washington, D. C., Pvt. Anna C. Morrison of Richmond, Ky., Pvt. Johnnie Murphy of Rankin, Pa., and Pvt. Mary Green of Conroe, Tex.

Pvt. Murphy became hysterical after being led from court by military police.

MONTY BESTOWS KING'S HONORS ON U. S. GENERALS

Hodges, Chicagoan Among Decorated.

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 9TH ARMY, March 20.—Six generals of the United States army hereafter are entitled to participate in high English traditional ceremonies, 13 ranking American officers are honorary preservers of the British, and a score of others are entitled to wear medals struck for members in his majesty's service following awards for gallantry bestowed by Field Marshal Montgomery today.

Jaunty in his beret and battle jacket, "Monty" rode up followed by a lowly jeep with a brace of anti-aircraft guns mounted to keep German planes away. Military policemen wore pipe clayed belts, gaiters, and white cotton gloves.

Spectators watched the sky, which was dotted with white cotton puff balls, ideal protection for German planes, but two cub planes cruised overhead and no Nazi appeared.

Lt. Gen. Simpson, commanding the 9th army, welcomed "Monty" and the three British noncommissioned officers who assisted him in awarding the decorations.

Generals Get Purple Ribbons.

The first bestowals were the insignia of companion of the Order of the Bath, and the assistants handled the purple ribbons with appended crosses with the reverence of a clerk fondling priceless pearl necklaces. Every recipient removed his steel helmet, "Monty" draped the ribbon around his neck, and after a handshake they exchanged salutes.

Those receiving the Order of the Bath were Lt. Gen. Hodges, commanding the 1st army; Lt. Gen. Gerow, commanding the 15th army; Maj. Gen. J. Lawton Collins, 7th corps commander; Maj. Gen. Walter M. Robertson, 2d division commander; Maj. Gen. Leven C. Allen, Washington, D. C., and Maj. Gen. William B. Kean, Washington.

Brig. Gen. Raymond Moses, Washington, received the cerise ribbon necklace of commander of the Order of the British empire.

Admitted as members in the Order of the British empire were Maj. Edward Dannemiller, Berkeley, Cal.; Maj. James Breed, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Maj. Edward Saxe, Newton, Mass., and Chief Warrant Officer John Heming Longbeach, Michigan City, Ind.

PATROLS RAID NAZIS ON 5TH ARMY FRONT; GUNS HIT OUTPOSTS

ROME, Italy, March 20 (AP).—Patrols raided German lines in strength along the entire 5th army front yesterday while artillery hammered enemy outposts and communications routes, but there were no substantial changes in positions, allied headquarters announced today.

Eighth army infantry engaged the enemy in a see-saw struggle for possession of German positions on both sides of the Senio river southwest of Cotignola.

SOCIALISTS ASK 3 TO 30% TAX ON FRENCH WEALTH

BY ROBERT SAGE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 20.—A financial plan aimed at drastically shrinking monetary circulation and bringing it in line with the price level, was distributed today to members of the consultative assembly by Assemblyman Jules Moch and his associates in the Socialist party. It calls for:

1. Capital levy, of 3 per cent on fortunes between $6,000 and $20,000 up to 30 per cent for those of more than $1,000,000.
2. Exchange of bank notes with all sums above $100 frozen.
3. Blocking of all bank accounts, with payments by check authorized.
4. Census of fortunes, including all personal property.

The scheme would be put into operation with an exchange of bank notes, allowing each family $100 for adults and $40 for each child. The census of fortunes would include a declaration of all personal property, exchange of treasury bonds, and deposit of all bearer bonds in banks.

Capital levy exemptions would be $6,000 for each adult and $4,000 for each child. The tax would be 5 per cent for brackets immmediately above $20,000, gradually increasing to a maximum of 30 per cent. Payments could be made from revenues in two annuities, the Socialists said.

War fortunes would be taxed from 1 to 100 per cent and property that hasn't changed hands since 1939 would be hit by a so-called "solidarity tax" of 2 to 8 per cent.

Expected to Raise 4 Billions.

The proposed taxes, together with the confiscation of illegal profits, would bring the state more than 4 billion dollars, it was asserted.

Together with the Communists and Pierre Mendes-France, Radical Socialist minister of national economy, the Socialists have long favored drastic measures to remedy France's unhealthy money situation. The policy of Finance Minister Rene Pleven, however, has been to effect reforms gradually. He is to announce his own long awaited monetary program next week.

She wrote that she had received a letter notifying her that a decree had been granted her husband, Boatswain's Mate Leonard Charrier, who is stationed at San Pedro, Cal. "Please let me wear my wedding dress and put our wedding picture next to my heart," Mrs. Charrier, who was married at 16, wrote.

REDS CAPTURE STETTIN'S LAST OUTPOST TOWN

Altdamm Falls; Report New Drive in Hungary.

LONDON, March 20 (AP).—Russian troops, laying open flaming Stettin to a final assault, today captured the Pomeranian capital's last outpost of Altdamm, 70 miles northeast of Berlin, and wiped out the powerfully fortified German bridgehead there on the east bank of the swampy lower Oder river, Moscow announced.

Far to the east other soviet forces slashed into the enemy's partly flooded East Prussian pocket southwest of Koenigsberg, capturing the ancient bastion of Braunsberg and 40 other towns and hamlets.

Capture 4,000 in East Prussia.

Moscow announced these victories in two orders of the day, and a bulletin said that more than 4,000 German officers and men and more than 300 guns were captured in the fighting in East Prussia yesterday and today at least 5,000 Germans were slain.

At the same time the Germans said that Marshal Tolbukhin had hurled 200,000 of his 3d Ukraine army troops, and supporting armor, into a new offensive in northwestern Hungary, sweeping within 58 miles of the Austrian frontier on the road to Vienna. Berlin said the Russians were beyond Tata, which is 10 miles southeast of the big Danube river stronghold of Komarom [Komarno].

Drive Into Czechoslovakia.

Another German broadcast indicated that Marshal Konev's 1st Ukraine army had smashed across the Moravian-Upper Silesian frontier into Czechoslovakia in a drive outflanking Moravska-Ostrava.

These operations, not confirmed by Moscow, would have the effect of forcing large scale German withdrawals along the southern end of the eastern front and are aimed at the mountainous area of southern Germany and Austria where the Nazis, according to some reports, may make a final stand after the defeat of their armies on the reich's northern plains.

Moscow dispatches said meanwhile that Russian shock troops, fighting inside besieged Breslau, Upper Silesian capital 100 miles northwest of Moravska-Ostrava, had captured a number of buildings of the Junkers auto factory.

100,000 Take Stettin Suburb.

Liquidation of the Germans' bridgehead on the east bank of the Oder river before Stettin came after Berlin said Marshal Zhukov hurled 100,000 men and fire from 1,000 guns against the Germans there.

Altdamm, less than three miles from Stettin, is on the east bank of the Oder across from the Pomeranian capital's shipyards and docks. German troops remaining on the Oder's east bank north and south of Stettin were now outflanked by the Russian troops who took Altdamm.

Gain on Baltic.

The Germans reported that Red army units fighting to clean out pocketed German garrisons on their Baltic flank had made new penetrations toward the Polish port of Gdynia and near-by Danzig on the Gulf of Danzig.

Braunsberg, a stronghold of the Teutonic knights in the middle ages, was taken by troops of the 3d White Russian army.

Premier Stalin's order of the day announcing capture of the important communications center, 32 miles southwest of besieged Koenigsberg, revealed that Marshal Alexander M. Vassilevsky, 47 year old chief of the Red army general staff, was commanding the 3d White Russian army. He succeeded the late Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky, who was killed in action last month.

Russia Asks Termination of Treaty with Turkey

Russia has informed Turkey that she desires to terminate the soviet-Turkish treaty, in effect since 1925, because the pact "no longer corresponds to new conditions and needs considerable improvement," the soviet information bureau announced last night.

U.S. AND BRITAIN STRIVE TO UNITE POLISH FACTIONS

Hope for Delegation at Security Parley.

LONDON, March 20 (AP).—The United States and Britain were reported today to have launched a new effort to bring leaders of the Polish factions together. It is hoped that a representative government may be formed so that Poland can be represented at the San Francisco conference.

Tentative preparations already have been made for discussions in Moscow, but Washington and London are understood to be running into difficulties in negotiations with the Lublin administration.

Lublin Wants Veto.

It was learned that the Lublin group has demanded the right to veto certain Polish leaders whom President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill want at the discussions, including Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, former premier of the London Polish government.

Some quarters in London are annoyed at the Lublin group's insistence on the right to veto certain Poles.

"There is nothing in the Crimea declaration to suggest that any Poles, whether inside or outside the country, should be vested with such a right," wrote the Times' diplomatic correspondent.

Objections Are Not Clear.

Mikolajczyk has announced he would be willing to participate in any discussion on formation of a new Polish government. The Lublin Poles' objections to him are now not entirely clear, as some time ago they offered him the chairmanship of their committee.

LONDON PRESS HAILS STANLEY STATEMENT ON COLONIAL POLICY

LONDON, March 20 [Reuters].—Colonial Secretary Oliver Stanley's declaration yesterday that Britain could not share responsibility for the administration of her colonies was indorsed by the London press today.

The Daily Mail declared that to share the responsibility would be "rank defeatism," and added: "Not only should be abandon strategic positions of vital importance but we should confess our own unfitness to govern the many races under the British flag. There is talk in some quarters of 'independence' for the colonies, rather than the self-government towards which we are continually working. But to grant independence to these peoples would be to do them a grave disservice in a still anarchial world."

The London Times commented: "Nothing but good can come of Col. Stanley's candid exposition of British thought and policy in reply to American criticism. The frank, friendly, and factual answer can be trusted to find willing hearers."

RED CROSS FUND 56 PCT. SHORT AS DEADLINE NEARS

Subscriptions to the Red Cross war fund campaign now total $5,030,000 it was reported yesterday by Martin H. Kennelly, general chairman of the drive.

This figure, he said, represents 44.5 per cent of the $11,300,000 quota assigned to the Chicago chapter embracing Cook and Du Page counties and the southern half of Lake county.

Only 10 days remain until the March 31 deadline to raise the remaining $6,270,000.

F. D. R. Says Need Is Great.

Washington, D. C., March 20 (AP).—President Roosevelt called upon the nation tonight to give to the Red Cross war fund, not thru a feeling of charity but thru one of necessity.

"The need never was greater," he said. "It will not soon be less."

SEES GERMANY'S FALL POSTPONED BY PEOPLE'S FEAR

[Christer Jaederlund, for 17 years Berlin corespondent of the Swedish newspaper Stockholm-Tidningen, has just returned to Stockholm with the latest first hand account of conditions in Germany. Jaederlund left Berlin because he found it no longer possible to work there.]

BY CHRISTER JAEDERLUND.

[Copyright: 1945: By the Associated Press.]

STOCKHOLM, March 20 (AP).—In all Berlin, once the fifth city of the world, there are today habitable accommodations for no more than the population of New Orleans.

Allied bombings have been so devastating that they have reduced the houses and apartments in which 4,250,000 once lived to a state in which they now can house only about 500,000.

In the remnant of Berlin which still stands there is gas, water, and electric light. But blocks around the Bayrischer platz in the southwestern end of the city already have been evacuated because it is no longer possible to keep track of all the time bombs which land in the ruins.

Plague Houses Sealed Off.

In the east end a "plague wall" of masonry has sealed off a whole block of houses in the Spittelmarkt area where piles of corpses have been rotting because it was found impossible to remove them. This district once was the center of Berlin's flourishing clothing industry.

In Munich there is neither light, gas, nor running water. Just as in the cities of western Germany, Munich's population has been obliged to melt snow to obtain water for cooking.

It is estimated that 20 million Germans already have fled from their homes to escape bombs and guns. This figure is constantly growing.

Misery on a Vast Scale.

The misery which this war has brought on other nations now has befallen the Germans on a vast scale. Nonetheless, the Germans seem convinced that what they have already suffered is only a foretaste of what lies ahead.

Before the war Germany had 250 large towns. The majority of them now are rubble heaps. The transport system has been largely destroyed. Practically all the simplest necessities of normal life have been exhausted.

The Nazi structure still holds together, but after the loss of the industries of Upper Silesia, which were Germany's principal food reservoirs, the end is approaching with giant strides.

Why does the Nazi structure still stand? Millions of Germans would heave a sigh of relief on being liberated from Nazi rule, not to mention the joy they would experience when the mass killing comes to an end.

War by Court Martial.

But terror of the Gestapo and concentration camps holds these elements in check just as stern discipline holds a great part of the German army that otherwise would long ago have been scattered.

Commanding the eastern front from Frankfurt an der Oder thru Saxony and Silesia, Col. Gen. Schoerner has the reputation of being more ruthless in demanding discipline than Heinrich Himmler. It is commonly said Schoerner conducts war by court martial. Any soldier who fails to stand fast simply is shot.

Hatred of the Nazi party already is so open and so widespread that one can expect the final settlement to be bloody and terrible. Even in top circles people are not asking today what will happen to Hitler, but "what will happen to us?"

There are various explanations why Germany is still fighting.

Hitler fights, one might say, because he is ashamed.

He does not wish to stand before history with the disgrace of a lost war. His advisers understand that they have reached dead end. They have their backs to the wall, and seem determined to throw the whole nation into the jaws of the allied offensives.

Since the tide turned at Stalingrad Nazi propaganda has not loosened its grip on the German people. Today it provides the main explanation of why the Germans still fight, altho they know the war is lost.

Day after day millions of Germans listen to allied radio broadcasts urging them to surrender. Nevertheless they fight and work on. The German people know they must pay for a lost war and much besides.

But with what are they to pay? It is impossible to estimate in figures all that has been destroyed.

The sufferings under German occupation of the thousands of Greeks, Poles, and Russians left the Germans who witnessed them unmoved. And the Germans at home never learned much about them.

They Begin to Remember.

But now, when the same misery is threatening them, they are beginning to remember—and they feel that what Germany must undergo wil be 10 times as hard.

For years the Germans have considered conscription of millions of foreign workers as slave laborers quite in order, but now they are terrified at the thought they may themselves be deported.

During the last few hard years the German people have not had many opportunities—nor any great desire—to pause and think. There were few Germans who understood in the time of good fortune that if Germany lost the war the situation would be reversed.

Leaders of the July revolt against Hitler foresaw all this—and many others with them. But, owing to bad luck and clumsiness, they have ruined the prospects for all their successors.

Today the Germans are fighting on because they feel that they are postponing a situation which appears to them even more terrifying than war itself.

INDIANA GIRL SEES WILD WEST RAID BY GERMANS

PARIS, March 20 (AP).—The German raid on the Normandy coast at Granville March 8 was like an old-time shooting scrape in an American frontier town, said Martha Harrold, Red Cross girl, whose mother lives in Warren, Ind.

Miss Harrold was in her room in the Red Cross hotel facing the beach as the raiders landed shooting. Two other Red Cross girls, Lanore Morehouse of La Crosse, Wis., and Estilina Page of Meridian, Miss., were on a higher floor of the same building.

Miss Harrold said she heard the German raiders going thru open rooms on her floor. When they came to her door they threw themselves against it and fired at the lock. Miss Harrold locked herself in her bathroom. Then she heard a feminine voice say in broken German that it was a woman's room. The Germans left.

EXECUTE HITLER ON SPOT, DEMAND OF ARCHBISHOP

War Criminals Are Being Screened for Trial.

LONDON, March 20 (AP).—A demand by the archbishop of York that "the master criminals Hitler and Himmler and their gang" should be killed on the spot when captured, was followed today in the house of lords by official disclosure that the war crimes commission already is screening Nazi prisoners for trial.

Dr. Cyril Garbett.

The archbishop, Dr. Cyril Garbett, broke into the war crimes debate to declare, "Sometimes justice has to take precedence over mercy," and asked instant death for Hitler and Himmler "by those who catch them," stern treatment for their torturing subordinates, and punishment for the whole German people.

The churchman based his demand for instant death of the Nazi leaders on the ground that "public trial with its excitement and sensation" should be avoided.

Cites Nazi Horrors.

Reciting some of the horrors he said he had learned about in Holland only last week, including the beating to death of a 10 year old boy, the archbishop contended that not only master criminals but their subordinates who relayed or carried out their orders should be killed.

"I am thinking," he said, "of the horrible tortures in concentration camps, of the burning of women and children in that church in southern France where the whole population was massacred, of the crimes which no man ought to commit, however strong the orders given to him."

Chairman Wright of the united nations war crimes commission, arose with a statement that orders had been given to allied armies to hold, not shoot, any criminals they captured. He added, however, that the commission definitely had decided to treat Hitler and other "major criminals as murderers, assassins, thieves, torturers, and the like."

Pile Up Lots of Evidence.

Wright said the war crimes commission was piling up a heavy bundle of authoritative reports on crimes committed by the Germans. The English people, for lack of experience, were inclined to regard them as "exaggerated propaganda reports," he said, but "members of the commission mostly know better."

As for Hitler, who definitely is on the commission's list, he added: "There is evidence that the murdering of people in gas chambers was a deliberate scheme under the direction of a single organizing mind. If that were brought home to Hitler, why should he not be indictable as a murderer?"

Russians Play Lone Hand.

Wright expressed concern about not being able to get information from the Russians as to what they were doing about war crimes. He said it appeared there was no possibility of getting the soviets to join the present commission or even an enlarged commission.

"But I see no reason at all why there should not be an intercommunication of advice and information," he added.

Speaking for the government, Lord Chancellor Simon reported lists of criminals were piling up as the armies pushed deeper into Germany. He confirmed also that these men were being screened out of the prisoners passing thru the army sieve, segregated, and held for trial.

The British government, Simon said, was "working behind the scenes with great intensity" to deal swiftly with those accused as criminals.

Simon emphasized the official view that the allies should not attempt trials until Germany had been beaten.

Send Wives to Mountains.

BERN, Switzerland, March 20 (AP).—Hermann Goering and Gestapo Chief Himmler have sent their wives into the Austrian Alps, it was reported today by the Berner Tagwacht.

The newspaper also said that Maj. Waldemar Pabst, a Nazi pioneer and once chief of staff of the Austrian heimwehr, was reportedly in Switzerland as a member of the German economic mission.

Edward Waybright, 16, and his bride, the former Gloria Welsh, 14, were in their respective homes again yesterday after an absence of seven days, during which they were married in Lexington, Ky. They returned to Chicago Monday accompanied by Edward's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Waybright, of 3916½ N. Kedvale av., whom they telephoned on Saturday for money to return home.

Mrs. Waybright said the couple will appear today before juvenile authorities. Until legal matters have been settled, Edward will remain with his parents and Gloria will live with her mother, Mrs. Eleanor Welsh, 5416 Pensacola av., the boy's mother said.

Edward, a senior student in Schurz High school, is making arrangements to take a job to support his bride and will finish his remaining half year of high school at night. Gloria will return to her studies at the same high school, where she is a freshman.

Germans Claim 7 Allied Ships Sunk Off England

LONDON, March 20 (AP).—The German high command claimed today that Nazi E boats had sunk seven allied supply ships totaling 24,500 tons and damaged a destroyer and two motor torpedo boats in an attack on a convoy off the east coast of England. The claim was not confirmed by allied sources.

ENTIRE BERLIN AREA MADE INTO VAST FORTRESS

BY P. E. BRIQUET.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHIASSO, Switzerland, March 20.—Berlin is rapidly being transformed into an armed fortress as the population is feverishly completing preparations for the final onslaught on the reich capital, according to information reaching here from Germany.

This is the picture of Berlin as reported in dispatches:

Everybody, young and old, is digging trenches and building anti-tank obstacles. Trees all around Berlin have been cut to provide road blocks. Even the rubble from bombed buildings is being used in barricades.

Divided into Defense Sectors.

Berlin's defenses stretch past the city limits and incorporate a belt of lakes, rivers, forests, and hills, all within a radius of 50 miles. The capital is divided into defense sectors which are linked, altho independent of each other. Large towers and blockhouses, built recently and resembling medieval castles, are the spinal column of the defenses. Between these forts are artillery and mortar positions, as well as machine gun nests protected by armored walls and placed amid the ruins of blasted houses.

Streets for blocks have been mined and covered with debris. The Germans will use underground transportation when the siege of Berlin makes it impossible for vehicles to travel in the open. Large galleries or passages, linking greater Berlin into a network of subterranean communications, have been built. Canals, sewers, and subway stations have been incorporated for use in storage of provisions and ammunition.

Food Stocks for Months.

Food supplies have been stocked to last many months. Communal cooking will provide warm food when gas and electricity are cut off. A wholesale evacuation is impossible, since refugees are so numerous already and the danger of air attacks is the same anywhere in Germany. Underground war plants continue production despite bombardments.

Already exhausted by fatigue and privations, Berliners are watching closely the coming danger of a siege but are mindful of what to expect from the dreaded people's courts if they weaken.

PLANE MISSES FIELD, CRASHES IN 63D STREET

A C-46 twin-motored army cargo plane, piloted by Lt. Carroll Woods, on a routine flight from Sedalia, Mo., overshot Chicago airport yesterday and crashed into 63d st. at Linder av., without injuring any of the five men aboard the plane, Maj. Hugh R. Bishop, air officer at the airport, said.

Maj. Bishop explained that Lt. Woods overshot the field because of poor visability, and added that the pilot's quick action in raising his wheels and skidding into the street saved the lives of his crew. Army officials said damage to the plane was not great. Street cars were rerouted.

Those who escaped injury included a Chicagoan, 2d Lt. C. F. Kenney, 6237 S. Washtenaw av., who was riding as a passenger; Corp. E. F. Kraus, crew chief, of 5705 S. Kee st., Downers Grove; 1st Lt. J. T. Fitzgerald, co-pilot, Sand Springs, Mont.; Sgt. Harold S. Longman, radioman, San Francisco, Cal., and Lt. Woods, pilot, Harrodsburg, Ky.

33D RATED AS LUZON'S BEST HOUSEKEEPERS

Illinois Outfit Makes Sure Men Are Comfortable.

BY DONALD STARR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE U. S. 33D DIVISION ON THE BAGUIO FRONT, March 20.—The men of this former Illinois National Guard outfit have come to be known as the best housekeepers on Luzon. From breakfast thru dinner, the men of the 33d division are getting the best of food and the front line soldier is given first consideration.

Clean hospitals, mess halls, sleeping quarters, and other comforts are provided. The wounded and ill are given expert medical attention in field hospitals, and evacuated when necessary. Lt. Col. Timothy Mullen of Seneca, Ill., and Lt. Col. Durand Smith, whose practice was in Chicago before the war, are in charge of the division's medical detachment.

An indication of the quick and efficient medical attention given the wounded on the front line is the movement among the G. I.'s to donate from their own pockets the funds to give aid men battle pay. Under war department regulations the aid men do not get battle pay, yet the infantrymen see them crawl out ahead of the lines daily and drag back the wounded.

Chicagoan Decorated.

Sgt. Jerome Greenspan, 6728 Ridgeland av., Chicago, was awarded the bronze star by the commanding general, Maj. Gen. Percy W. Clarkson, for giving aid to three wounded men under Jap machine gun fire. Some enlisted men winning praise of their commanding officers were Master Sgt. Raymond A. Fitzsimmons of Yorkville, Ill., chief clerk in the surgeons' section; Staff Sgt. John Bagel, 1054 N. Karlov av., Chicago; Sgt. Kent B. Skiles, 1032 Maple av., Evanston; and Sgt. Gene Thede, Maywood, Ill. Helpful to the medical men, as well as the division as a whole, is Lt. Col. William J. Rogers, 1032 Garfield blvd., priest at Our Lady of Lourdes church, 4640 N. Ashland av., now division chaplain.

Maj. Eli Paris, Philadelphia hosiery manufacturer and special services officer of the division, is a tentmate of Lt. Col. Jacob Arvey, of Chicago, making up a team highly popular thruout the division. Maj. Paris provides a daily mimeographed newspaper, edited at night from radio broadcasts and distributed early each morning by regular carriers. Declaring reading material the best morale builder in the army, he welcomed The Chicago Overseas Tribune and asked for more. He delivered the first issue printed in Manila with his daily paper.

Books and Movies Available.

Maj. Paris has 15,000 books in regimental libraries. Movies are available every day in some part of camp. In one church, shows are given at 10, 12, and 2 o'clock to troops who have just come out of action. The division has 21 movie projectors and has a score of licensed operators, who handle this work in addition to their regular duties. Each battalion has a combination radio-phonograph-public address system. Each company has a phonograph, and the division provides records from its library of thousands. Post exchange supplies include candy, nuts, cookies, and a score of other items.

Lt. Col. Russell Kuhn, 3558 N. Albany av., Chicago, who has come up from the ranks since joining the Illinois National Guard in 1928, is the division quartermaster. The division not only has the best housekeepers but is the best dressed on Luzon, thanks to Kuhn's solution of the supply problem. He keeps his men well shod, and recognizes the fact that G. I.'s wear out clothing at an unusual rate while fighting in these mountains. He's responsible for the acquisition and distribution of cigarets and beer as well as clothing and food. The men are getting a package of cigarets as their daily issue.

Praises New C Ration.

Col. Kuhn praised the new C ration made in the United States as a big improvement over the Australian C rations. Included in the new boxes are frankfurters and beans, meat and rice, noodles and vegetables, salted as well as unsalted crackers, improved biscuits, powdered coffee, powdered lemonade, and a caramel candy bar. The Australian product had two varieties of canned meat and beets and beans. The new breakfast ration also is exceptionally tasty. It includes cereal with milk and sugar added.

The ordnance section, charged with maintenance of guns, vehicles, and other equipment, is under Lt. Col. Anthony J. Strack, 4356 S. Wells st., who entered the guard as an enlisted man in 1929. Assisting him is Maj. John S. Gleason Jr., 6235 Kenmore av. A few days ago Lt. Gen. Kreuger, 6th army commander, inspected the installation in the field and praised its organization. The floors of the work shop, a former railroad station, are cleaner than the mess halls of most divisions, and efficiency is at a high peak. Eighteen motor vehicles were overhauled in one day.

Parts Department in Trucks.

The parts department is broken down into three sections and permanently installed in trucks, so one truck containing all the necessary parts is ready to move to any regiment at a moment's potice. Corp. George Evans of the Hamilton hotel, Chicago, keeps an inventory of every item in the automotive section.

Among the section's mechanics are men who do fine watch repair work, and at night and in their spare time they keep the G. I.'s watches running perfectly. Col. Strack credited Chief Warrant Officer Paul Wantz, 1334 Camp av., Rockford, Ill., for much of the efficiency in the section.

The care of the men is evident here, too, where an oceanside town was built of bamboo. It has showers and a better enlisted men's mess hall than most officers enjoy.

JAP PLANE LOSS IN 6 MONTHS IS 10,000: KENNEY

Washington, D. C., March 20 [Special].—The Japanese air force, which lost 10,000 planes to the army and navy alone since last Sept. 1, is broken and no longer a threat, Lt. Gen. Kenney, commander of the far east air force, asserted here today.

Lt. Gen. Kenney.

Gen. Kenney made this statement without reservation, even to the point of overruling censors.

Japan is short of planes and pinched for raw materials; her aviators are no good and her best mechanics are stranded on the bypassed islands, he said.

After telling several exploits of his young flyers he said: "I'm no flag waver or superpatriot, but darned if I'm not proud to belong to the same country that makes such kids."

Postpone Execution of Seven Rioters in India

NEW DELHI, India, March 20 [Reuters].—The execution of seven young men sentenced to death for killing policemen and burning the police barracks at Chimur and Ashti, two villages in the central provinces during the 1942 riots, was postponed today. The accused were scheduled to die today and Wednesday. Their cases aroused wide interest thruout India because of the efforts to obtain reprieves made by prominent Indians.

CARRIER PLANES RIP JAP FLEET IN INLAND SEA

Islands Clog Inland Sea.

The bulletin did not specify which parts of the Inland sea were the targets of the raiding aircraft. The Inland sea is bounded on three sides by three of the Japanese home islands—Kyushu to the west, the southern portion of Honshu to the north and Shikoku to the south. It is clogged with scores of small islands.

Likely targets were Sasebo and Nagasaki, naval bases on Kyushu. Sasebo is by reputation one of the four great naval bases of Japan. It has a large fleet anchorage with extensive machine shops and repair facilities as well as several drydocks and considerable arsenals.

At Nagasaki there are additional facilities for fleet anchorage.

The carrier planes may have hit enemy ships undergoing repairs of damage suffered in the Japanese fleet's grandiose but unsuccessful three-pronged attempt to break up the invasion of the Philippines at Leyte last October.

In that battle six enemy battleships, four heavy cruisers, one light cruiser, 10 destroyers, and one destroyer escort were sunk or damaged.

In the first battle of the Philippine sea, last June, Mitscher's airmen located the Japanese grand fleet apparently moving to threaten the American invasion of Saipan, and sank or possibly sank eight warships. Not an American ship was lost.

The attacks Monday on Kobe, Japan's principal seaport and shipbuilding city, already heavily hit by army Super Forts, and Kure, number one naval base on the inland sea, gave increased destructive attention to the enemy's naval building and repair centers.

Sail 60 Miles from Japan.

Tokyo radio said the American task force made a daring penetration to within 60 miles of the Japanese mainland in the Sunday attack, when the carrier flyers hit enemy aircraft bases and installations on Kyushu Island, at the southern end of the Nipponese archipelago.

The Kure naval base was hit Sunday by about 150 Yank carrier fighters and bombers, another Japanese broadcast said.

Twice before the carrier planes hit the Japanese homeland—Feb. 16-17 and Feb. 25-27. Both attacks centered mainly on air fields and aircraft plants in the Tokyo area.

Five mass Super Fort raids since March 10 on Tokyo, Nagoya, Osaka, and Kobe were blows on war industries of all categories.

Claim 183 Planes Downed.

Domei, the Japanese news agency, broadcast Nipponese imperial headquarters' claims that the American naval air attacks were met by defending flyers, who shot down 183 Yank planes, sank seven warships, and damaged another.

The enemy claims of destruction, all unconfirmed, included two American vessels, of "unknown type" sunk Monday; one standard carrier, one carrier or battleship, one battleship or cruiser, and two destroyers sunk Sunday, and one standard carrier heavily damaged.

Fifteen or 16 aircraft carriers were in the American task force, Tokyo radio said.

HONSHU, 2 OTHER ISLANDS BORDER JAP INLAND SEA

GUAM, March 20 (AP).—Japan's Inland sea, where American carrier planes attacked the enemy fleet in its hideouts Monday, is formed by the western end of Honshu Island plus the islands of Kyushu and Shikoku.

A waterway 240 miles long east and west and varying from 10 to 30 miles in width, it has three entrances. The easternmost entrance is between Honshu and Shikoku. The southern entrance is between Shikoku and Kyushu. The westernmost entrance is between Honshu and Kyushu.

Heavy seas are a rarity, but tidal currents are described as strong. The traffic in ships of all sizes is heavy, due to the large ports of Kobe and Osaka on the east shore and Moji, Shimonoseki and Wakamatsu on the west.

Relief Trucks Reach G. I.s Imprisoned in Bohemia

LONDON, March 20 (AP).—Secretary of War Grigg reported to commons today that an international Red Cross truck convoy had arrived safely at German prisoner of war camps in Bohemia. RUSSIA'S BRAIN TRUST FOREIGNERS rarely even see them—the thirteen members of Russia's powerful Politburo. No British or American diplomat has ever visited the home of one—Molotov's excepted. Yet they shape destiny across one-fifth of the earth.

Here is an introduction you couldn't get in Russia, to the heads of the most exclusive male government in the world. A group in which there is no personal wealth—whose wives are little heard of—whose children attend ordinary public schools—and out of which Stalin's successor is likely to be chosen.

CANADA TO ASK DUE RECOGNITION AT U. S. PARLEY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., March 20.—Canada's delegation to the San Francisco world security conference in April will "exert the utmost effort to secure due recognition of the relative standing of secondary nations among the nations of the world," Prime Minister King told the house of commons today.

King said he recognized the primary position of the great powers in the world security organization, but contended "some method of selection [to the council] which would have due regard for the power and responsibilities of secondary states would make the council a more powerful and efficient body."

Asks Voice in Sanctions.

The proposal that all member states should bind themselves to carry out diplomatic, economic, and military sanctions at the request of the security council, he continued, "raises another difficult question for Canada and other secondary states.

"It would seem desirable to develop some procedure whereby states not represented on the security council would not be called upon to undertake serious enforcement action without opportunity of participating in the council's proceedings, or without agreeing separately to join in executing the decisions of the council."

King said acceptance of the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, as they stand, "would in no way commit Canada to send forces beyond Canadian territory at the call of the security council. If any such commitment were sought, it would be embodied in a later agreement, freely negotiated by the government of Canada and coming into effect only after it had been approved by parliament."

No Amendments at Present.

King added, however, that "it is not at present the intention of the government to propose particular provisions or amendments in advance of the discussions at the conference." He said he had discussed with President Roosevelt on his recent trip to Washington Canada's suggestions for improving the world organization.

"Our contributions to the fashioning of victory have been far greater than could have been imagined six years ago," he continued. "Our part in the shaping of peace may be no less urgent and no less effective."

IN LAST PHASE OF PACIFIC WAR, ADMIRAL SAYS

New York, March 20 (AP).—Rear Adm. Dewitt Clinton Ramsey, chief of the navy bureau of aeronautics, said tonight that United States carrier attacks on "heavy land masses" represented "the third and last phase of the war in the Pacific."

In an address at the annual dinner of the Wings club, Ramsey declared the United States naval air arm, already "thru the carrier duel phase and the island attack phase" of the war, would be "hurled against anything and everything the enemy has to offer."

Ramsey said the United States carrier force, numbering "nearly 100 units with an operating capacity of literally thousands of airplanes," had maintained a 5 to 1 advantage in air combat with the enemy, shot down more than 10,000 Japanese planes in the last three years, and sunk or damaged "hundreds of Japanese ships."

BRITAIN VOTES THREE COMPANY AVIATION PLAN

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 20.—The government's plan to organize British civil aviation into three state controled corporations came under fire in the house of commons today when members of parliament denounced it as fascist, burocratic, and inadequate. Despite attacks from both Laborites and Conservatives, however, the house indorsed the government program without the formality of voting.

Few speakers had a good word to say for the plan which Aircraft Production Minister Stafford Cripps described as a political compromise. Independent Leslie Hore-Belisha, who insisted the objective of British air policy "should not be to pursue an international mirage but the reality of imperial unity," complained that the post-war aviation plan "comes pretty near to negation."

First Guaranteed Monopoly.

Laborite Frederick Montague called it "stark reaction" and said it was the first time railroad and shipping companies have been given government guaranteed monopoly powers to operate international services and lines between Britain and Europe. He predicted that railroad and shipping companies would soon be coming to the government, cap in hand, asking for subsidies.

Montague objected because the new program was framed by the government and private interests concerned before commons was consulted, asserting, "That's the kind of thing that's leading to a fascist state."

Mrs. Mavis C. Tate, a Conservative, predicted the scheme would break down "under the ossified brain and dead, skinny hand of burocratic control."

Airways to United States.

Cripps, in opening the debate, elaborated on the government proposals, which Civil Aviation Minister Swinton had explained in the house of lords last week. Under the plan, the British Overseas Airways corporation will operate to the United States and the British commonwealth, with extensions to China and other regions of the orient.

A second company, to be known as the British Latin American Air Lines, will operate to Central and South America. A third organization will serve Britain and Europe.

Cripps said he was confident Britain "would make the grade" in civil aviation altho he admitted that the government so far had been able to arrange for only a small number of transport aircraft to be developed.

Cripps expressed regret that Britair had been unable to convince "all the nations" at last year's aviation conference in Chicago of the soundness of a multi-lateral agreement. He added, however, that in bilateral agreements with other countries, Britain will follow "as far as possible" the line of development proposed in the multi-lateral plan.

FOOD CRAMS BELGIAN SHOPS; THEY CRY 'MORE!'

Darrah Reports Little Suffering from War.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BRUSSELS, Bêlgium, March 20.—Brussels seems lush. The Belgians appear to be getting on better than their southern neighbors. They have taken more drastic action to deal with the situation resulting from their liberation from the Germans six months ago, particularly in monetary reforms. How it is going to work out eventually no one predicts.

For the moment parliamentary life, which was restored after the liberation, has been suspended, and Socialist Premier Achille Van Acker has been given six months' dictatorial powers to govern by decree law. He proposes to use these powers to deal with black marketing, and suppress what is described here as "certain commercial, industrial, and agricultural scandals."

The government is a regency. King Leopold is a prisoner of Germany. His brother, Charles, is the regent. Leopold cannot be so unpopular in the country as many stories would make him appear. For one thing, his picture, life sized, is displayed in two big Brussels department stores.

Food Crams Stores.

But the comparative abundance of Brussels is the most striking thing to any one coming from France. Stores are crammed with food. Peddlers in the streets sell apples in great quantities. Carts of smoked herring and crayfish are sold around the Place Rogier, without rationing.

Prices are high, but not so high as in Paris. There is a black market here, but the profiteers are satisfied with smaller profits than they are in Paris. Furthermore, black market operations in Brussels already have been largely curbed.

As soon as Van Acker got his plenary powers his police started operations. Saturday morning they surrounded the principal Brussels markets, arrested all black marketeers, and confiscated their stuff.

Many Complaints Heard.

Brussels appears to have suffered little damage. I drove thru the main streets and saw practically no damage from bombardments. The Belgians also had less German requisitioning than did the French.

Still, many complaints are heard that the allies did not keep their promises, made before the liberation, and that stocks are not coming in fast enough from abroad. Shop windows, however, display plenty of powdered eggs, corned beef, and other foods.

An official announcement says the general food situation will be improved greatly during the coming month. The Belgian population is now on a 1,700 calorie ration basis, which compares to a 2,700 average before the war. The 1,700 is slightly below the vital minimum.

In the period between March 15 and April 15 the Belgian ration of fats will have been doubled. The adult ration is 800 grams [one gram equals .032 oz.] as compared to 300 grams in France. The 800 grams include butter, margarine, beef fat, and lard.

350 Grams of Bread Daily.

The bread ration is 350 grams daily; meat, 25 grams daily or 750 grams monthly; sugar, 2 pounds monthly; egg powder, 140 pounds monthly, and potatoes, 20 pounds weekly. Belgians even get 100 grams of green coffee monthly. There is also a rationed supply of dried vegetables.

These results are attributed to the reorganized administration's better relation with the peasants, and eradication of fraud in restaurants and markets.

Immediately on taking office Van Acker announced a program which included vigorous purging of traitors and pro-German elements in the country. The purge attempts, however, have been confronted by a complicated situation, involving such thorny matters as separatism and the Walloon-Flemish issue.

Worked on Flemings.

During the occupation the Germans worked industriously on the Flemings, who are of Germanic stock. A volunteer Flemish legion was formed to coöperate with the Germans, toward whom the Flemings lean. The Walloons, on the other hand, lean toward the French.

These two movements do not actually imperil Belgian nationalism, but every effort is being made to keep them quiescent.

CHRISTEN FIRST OF HEAVY CLASS PLANE CARRIERS

Newport News, Va., March 20 (AP).—The decks of the mighty U. S. S. Midway—heaviest, strongest, and fastest carrier ever built—will be covered with "1945 model aircraft" so new they have not yet seen combat action.

This was disclosed today by Artemus L. Gates, assistant secretary of the navy for air, in a speech at the christening of the 45,000 ton Midway, named for the June, 1942, battle in which the Jap fleet was turned back in an invasion attempt.

Gates gave no hint of what the new plane can do. But he predicted that the carrier and plane will not be a "pleasant combination to be contemplated by the Japanese war lords."

First of Heavy Carriers.

Addressing the men and women of the Newport News Shipbuilding company, who built the craft, Gates said:

"This is a milestone in the long line of carrier development. The Essex was the first of the present medium class—the Independence, the first of the present light class—and now the Midway, the first of the heavy carrier class."

To safeguard the Midway, Gates said, it has been given heavy armor, intricate watertight compartments, and improved damage control.

The Midway, will be commanded by Capt. J. F. Bolger, who served as Gates' aid before putting to sea as captain of an Essex type carrier.

Crew of 3,000.

The Midway can carry a flock of more than 80 twin engined planes and a complement of some 3,000 officers and men. It is the first of five 45,000-tonners now building or authorized.

Containing enough steel to build 25,000 automobiles, she was towed into the James river and warped alongside her fitting out pier. The bottle of champagne was broken against her bow by Mrs. Bradford W. Ripley II., Dayton, O. She is the daughter of James M. Cox, former governor of Ohio, and the widow of a navy lieutenant killed in a Pacific plane crash.

A guest of the christening was Navy Lt. George H. Gay, veteran of the battle of Midway. Lt. Gay, whose home is in Waco, Tex., was the sole survivor of a torpedo squadron of eight which mauled the Jap fleet in the famous engagement.

Another guest was Miss Dorothy Brooks of Chicago, whose father, the late Capt. N. C. Brooks, discovered the Midway Islands. Other members of the sponsor's party included Mr. and Mrs. Allen D. Ripley and Michael McGuinn of Chicago.

OFFERS SPANISH TEACHERS STUDY IN MEXICO CITY

Johnson May Pick 5 to Attend Institute.

Teachers of Spanish in Chicago public high schools who have only a limited knowledge of Mexico and Mexican affairs may have the opportunity of extending that knowledge at a Spanish language institute which will be held June 25 thru Aug. 15 in Mexico City, Supt. of Schools Johnson said yesterday.

The institute will be held under auspices of the United States office of education and the department of state in coöperation with the National University of Mexico and the Mexican ministry of public education, under a subsidy arrangement of $100 per teacher offered by the sponsors, Johnson said.

Chicago May Send Five.

As many as five Spanish teachers from Chicago may be selected to attend the institute, Johnson said. Those who wish to be considered have been asked to communicate with the office of William E. Poore, superintendent of high school district 3, before March 27. Poore and the Latin American good will committee of the public schools will recommend the five best qualified.

Living costs of teachers attending the institute are expected to be $3 to $4 a day, and tuition of $50 will be charged. Thus the total cost, exclusive of travel, would be about $200, of which half would be covered by the subsidy.

Move Toward Friendship.

Dr. Carlos Castillo, associate professor of Spanish literature at the University of Chicago, said the institute is of real value because it acquaints teachers "with the friendship that is offered in Mexico."

Johnson announced last week that a survey of high schools showed a record number of students enrolled in Spanish classes.

VETS ALL CAN'T SELL POPCORN, OPA IS TOLD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—Edward N. Scheiberling, national commander of the American Legion, said that "scarcely a dent" has been made by OPA in its regulations which, he charged, restrict business opportunities for veterans of this war.

Edward N. Scheiberling.

Scheiberling, in a statement to the press, referred to the announcement of Price Administrator Bowles yesterday that, effective March 26, regulations will be changed to permit veterans to open small businesses using rationed foods. Bowles said the move was part of the OPA program to assist veterans in adjusting themselves to civilian life.

Price Barriers Still Remain.

No action has been taken on major price restrictions which still stand in the way of the type of business expansion vitally needed to insure maximum post-war employment and business opportunity not only for war veterans, but for every American citizen, Scheiberling declared. The attitude of OPA, he continued, freezes the sales, services, and distribution structure of America—the field in which an American Legion job survey shows 40 per cent of the post-war jobs must be found.

The Legion commander said his organization is gratified that the OPA has opened the door to the use by veterans of rationed foods, such as sugar and fats, in a few restricted fields, but he charged that the relaxation does not begin to meet the over-all problem.

"They will let our veterans become potato chip friers—to use the OPA's own language—or popcorn concessionaires, but the doors to major economic opportunity are still closed," Scheiberling said.

In announcing the easing of food rationing regulations, Bowles warned veterans that price regulations would remain the same and suggested that they obtain information about price ceilings before making financial commitments.

Cites OPA's Admissions.

Scheiberling made public a letter to Bowles in which the Legion commander stated that his organization believes strongly in the right of war veterans to enter or reënter any business of their choosing. As the situation now stands, the letter said, more significant and far reaching regulations than food rationing still bar veterans from the realization of these opportunities.

Scheiberling said he referred to price regulations which "limit business and economic opportunity to those in business on a certain date in the past." OPA spokesmen admit, he asserted, that these price regulations are designed largely to freeze the present distribution structure of the nation's economic life.

A Slight Roar

March finally managed to roar a little like a lion yesterday, peevishly picking the first day of spring. A cold lashing rain swept the city, keeping the temperature to the low 40s and threatening to nip the myriad of buds which warm weather had forced ahead of time.

The roar is scheduled to subside to the meek bleat of the lamb today, according to the weather bureau, with clearing skies and temperatures reaching 70 degrees. Mild weather will continue thru the rest of the week, the bureau predicted.

Meanwhile, O. T. Lay, chief of the bureau, checked his statistics and discovered the city enjoyed a fairly normal winter. The temperature averaged 27.7 degrees, a little higher than the normal 24.8 degrees. It was neither the wettest nor the driest winter, with precipitation of 3.17 inches, as against 6.12 inches for normal. Chicago had 42 per cent of its daylight hours filled with sunshine, compared with a normal of 45 per cent, Lay said.

'CON CON' PLAN PUT IN HANDS OF COMMITTEE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 20.—Proponents of a constitutional convention to rewrite the state's basic law were worried today when the house executive committee sent all resolutions dealing with the subject to a subcommittee.

Consigned there were the resolution calling for a constitutional convention referendum introduced by Rep. Harris [R., Lincoln] at the request of Gov. Green, and another by Rep. Monroe [D., Collinsville] asking the governor to give reasons why the present constitution is inadequate

In assembly practice a favorite means of killing legislation is to refer it to an unfriendly subcommittee which neglects to hold hearings or take any other action. Some subcommittees, on the other hand, labor industriously and sponsor important bills.

Rep. Stransky [R., Savanna], chairman of the executive committee, said he wouldn't name the subcommittee of five before tomorrow and didn't indicate whether it would be composed of representatives who favor or oppose changes in the Illinois constitution.

Stransky has declared himself neutral, but "con con" opponents rushed up to ask for places on the subcommittee.

"I can't understand what changes any one would want to make in the constitution or why they would want it," Monroe told the committee in asking that the governor submit some form of blueprint as to how far a constitution convention should go.

Rep. Crowley [R., Peoria] suggested that Monroe's resolution go to a subcommittee and Rep. Granata [R., Chicago] sponsored an amendment under which the Harris resolution would also be consigned there. Granata suggested thoro hearings, with the governor asked to testify.

Monroe named only the Illinois League of Women Voters when he was asked what organizations favor a constitutional convention. On record against it are such state-wide agencies as the Illinois State Federation of Labor, the Illinois Agricultural association, and the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

BARE CRIMINAL RECORDS OF TWO FOOD BUROCRATS

Agriculture Department Funds Approved.

Washington, D. C., March 20 (AP).—Testimony that two employes of the Commodity Credit corporation had criminal records was made public today by the house appropriations committee as it submitted to the house a bill to appropriate $833,801,932 for the agriculture department in the 1945-'46 fiscal year.

The bill, which reflected appropriations committee opposition to proposals of the budget bureau for cuts on farm benefit payments, gave the house new debate material with its accompanying testimony on police records and on complaints that the Commodity Credit corporation had bungled some food purchases to the extent of spoilage.

Embezzlement One Charge.

The men referred to as having had criminal records were identified by their superiors as Edmund G. Benser of Bethesda, Md., former chief fiscal officer of the CCC's office of distribution, and Joseph Hatch, another CCC official.

Committee hearings included a list of police records for Benser up to 1934, involving allegations of bigamy and embezzlement. The records showed a release in one case, dismissal in another, no disposition in two, and a one year probated sentence in another.

Frank Hancock, head of the CCC, said Benser was employed by the CCC until Feb. 26 and that "I advised him" to resign. This was the day before Hancock testified.

Case 'Reviewed Repeatedly.'

Hatch is acting chief of the CCC's program liaison branch. Hancock said he was not familiar with Hatch's case and the committee record showed no details. Ralph W. Olmstead, CCC vice president, then testified "it is my understanding that his case has been reviewed repeatedly by the departmental office of personnel, by the secretary of agriculture, and by the war food administrator, and that he has been confirmed in the position he now occupies."

The CCC buys and sells, lends on and otherwise deals in commodities. Hancock said it is now investigating the background of all employes handling money or responsible for goods and inventories.

Lend-Lease Off Record.

The appropriations committee went "off the record" to discuss lend-lease food inventories in storage in England and other foreign countries. The British report dealing with this subject, the committee was told, has been classified "most secret" by the British government.

The committee hearings further brought out the facts that one-twenty-fifth of the food acquired by the CCC was lost by spoilage, that 180,825 cases of eggs were diverted to animal feed, and 399 carloads of potatoes were lost thru spoilage.

The hearings also were marked by sharp questioning of CCC officials concerning reports voiced in the house that 20,000,000 pounds of lard were permitted to spoil and were sold for soap purposes and that the government failed to make the most out of a sale of 450 tons of raisins.

The 450 tons of raisins, it was brought out, were sold to the Empire Frosted Foods company, New York, on a bid of about 8 cents a pound after a wine company had offered 11 cents. Subsequently, the Empire Frosted Foods company resold the raisins to a winery "at a huge profit to itself," it was testified.

In reaching the present form of the agriculture appropriations bill, the committee:

1. Heard testimony by Ivy W. Duggan, governor of the farm credit administration, that farm land costs have gone up 43 per cent since the middle of 1939. Duggan foresaw a chance of a spiraling boom like that of the last war.

Refuse to Cut Benefits.

2. Turned down two administration proposals that payments to farmers be curtailed. One of these proposals was to cut benefit payments on 1946 crops to $200,000,000 [the current level is $300,000,000].

[These benefit payments are for such things as soil conservation. They are separate from a sum of $560,000,000 subsidizing production of milk and sugar.]

3. Recommended $60,000,000 in loan authorizations for the rural electrification administration, instead of the $150,000,000 asked.

4. Recommended a $40,000,000 farm tenancy loan fund, earmarking $25,000,000 of it for returning service men. The budget bureau had suggested a $50,000,000 total.

5. Approved continuance of the school lunch program at an estimated cost of $50,000,000. Approximately 5 million children will benefit.

Boom in Farm Land.

Farm land has gone up 43 per cent since mid-1939, compared with a 36 per cent advance between 1914 and 1919, Duggan told the committee in his testimony.

"There is recent evidence," he said, "that the rate of rise is as great or possibly greater at this time than it was during the corresponding stage of the other war." In the first World war period, farm land shot up 65 per cent between 1914 and 1920.

Reason for the present high market, Duggan said, is the income of farmers—"higher than during any other year for which records are available—including 1919."

Testimony made public in connection with the REA appropriation revealed that the REA hopes to double its present size as soon as man power and materials become available after the war.

Meanwhile President Roosevelt asked congress today for a $4,480,000 appropriation to prepare plans for developing the Missouri river valley. The money would go to the interior department.

"Won't Interfere with War."

In submitting the request to congress, Mr. Roosevelt said:

"This estimate includes funds only for the work preliminary to actual construction of projects and must be performed irrespective of whether construction of the projects in the basin is accomplished by a valley authority or other agencies. In my judgment, the proposed work will not interfere with the conduct of the war."

In effect, the President recommended a Missouri valley setup similar to the Tennessee valley authority.

The President also asked today that congress appropriate $93,872,900 for the war man power commission in the year beginning July 1, an increase of about $24,000,000. The boost is largely for adding 596 local employment offices to the United States employment service. These will provide employment facilities for returning veterans.

COMMITTEE BANS U. S. PLOWING UNDER OF RUBBER PLANTS

Washington, D. C., March 20 (AP).—The house appropriations committee today overruled a budget bureau recommendation that it approve a $183,000 fund to plow under 10,000 acres of guayule rubber plants.

In reporting out the agriculture department appropriations bill for 1945-'46, the committee said it was following a course decided upon by the congress in continuing the guayule program in operation.

The committee rejected a budget bureau recommendation that the guayule project be liquidated and the land be returned to its former owners. Such a policy had at one time been decided upon by the White House, but the senate and house disagreed.

"In addition to the present saving of $183,000 the retention of the 10,000 acres referred to will result in the production of additional amounts of rubber," the committee said.

"I consider it a sinister and unauthorized attempt to veto an act of congress," said Rep. Plumley [R., Vt.].

SEEK TO IDENTIFY ABANDONED GIRL, 3, AS KIDNAP VICTIM

Child in Custody of Police.

The girl held here bears a remarkable facial resemblance to published photographs of the vanished Sylvia Sweet, authorities said. The girl was turned over to police by a woman who said a man at a trailer camp asked her to care for the child.

Shown a photograph of Sylvia, the child said, "That's me," and when asked, "Where did your mamma get you?" replied, "Mamma got me long ago out of a car."

Two sheriff's deputies from Nevada, who arrived tonight, said the child was not the Sweet girl.

DARE ON TEST VOTE FLUNG IN AFL UNION ROW

Sam P. Ming, chairman of the American Federation of Grain Processors' council [AFL], issued a challenge last night to the powerful International Brotherhood of Teamsters [AFL] to test its strength in "any kind of union election" among the council's 22,000 members.

Ming came to Chicago yesterday from St. Louis, Mo., to lead the AFL council's fight on the IBT, which started a drive last week to absorb the council's membership. IBT organizers invaded the Arcady Farms Milling company in Riverdale last Thursday and prevented several hundred members of local 20653 from entering the plant. Work was resumed in the plant Friday afternoon.

"Less than 5 per cent of the local membership at the Arcady plant want to be members of the IBT," Ming said. "I challenge the teamsters to take part in any kind of an election to prove that the workers in grain processing plants want to continue as members of our union and not of the IBT."

Court Refuses to Void Verdict for Unionist

A motion by Assistant Corporation Counsel Harry A. Iseberg to set aside a jury's verdict freeing Walter Siedlecki, 37, a steward for the United Automobile Workers of America, local 274 [CIO], on two charges of disorderly conduct and one of resisting arrest, was denied by Judge Harold P. O'Connell in Municipal court yesterday. Siedlecki, who lives at 6825 S. Talman av., resisted arrest by Kensington police on Feb. 25, police testified.

WORKING "TOADS"

"TOADS" on the Railroad don't spread warts and don't catch flies. But because they do squat under trains and because they do hop around when servicing cars, their fellow employes nicknamed them "car toads."

You've probably seen these skilled and experienced men at work when the Hiawatha, the Olympian or whatever train you were riding on stopped for a few fleeting moments at an intermediate station. You don't see them all—but upward of twenty men are required to service the average passenger train.

Running gear, wheels, air brakes and signal systems are inspected and necessary adjustments are made. Air conditioning units are tested—and on long runs such as the Olympian makes, water tanks must be filled, coolers iced, cars swept out and windows washed. The supply of ice, fuel and water in the diner must also be replenished. This is routine with all through passenger trains—and as far as mechanical appliances are concerned, with all freight trains.

The "toad" doesn't wear a uniform and doesn't get any glory but to these men of the car department goes much of the credit for the safe and dependable operation of passenger and freight service on America's railroads.

The battle before the battle is fought on the railroad front and the car department is as essential to the railroad as the Ordnance Department is to the Army.

30 OPA RAIDERS CRACK DOWN ON MEAT TRUCKERS

Report Violations Found in Black Mart Drive.

The Chicago area office of price administration, aided by the courts, yesterday carried out what it called the nation's biggest assault on the black market in vanishing meat supplies. The day's activities included:

1. Invasion of the wholesale market by 30 investigators, who seized and inspected truckloads of meat.
2. A score of federal and Circuit court suits, resulting in injunctions and damages.
3. Arrest of a meat peddler and fines for three slaughterers on criminal charges.
4. Discovery that tons of Chicago meat are being diverted daily to New York, possibly thru black market operators.

Reports Violations Found.

Homer Clay, OPA enforcement chief, estimated 40 per cent of Chicago's daily meat supply is handled in violation of one to five OPA regulations, all resulting in over-ceiling prices. Of 30 truckloads of meat inspected, he said, 12 involved violations.

To cap the day's activities, Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, head of the city health department, said he had confiscated 1,800 pounds of kosher meat that was inspected neither by federal officers nor by the city.

Drive Opened at 5 A. M.

The agents opened their drive at 5 a. m., when 30 snoopers scattered thru the wholesale districts and waited for customers to show up. At 7 a. m. the first suspect appeared. He was Leonard Boormann, 36, of 8947 May st., a surface lines bus driver, who loaded 629 pounds of beef, veal, and pork into his automobile at the plant of the Ed Kohn company, 3843 Emerald av.

The agents followed him for three blocks, then stopped him and had him drive to the army quartermaster depot at 1749 Pershing rd. The army had lent its weighing and dock facilities to the OPA. The agents weighed the meat, inspected it, and questioned Boormann, who said he was taking it to a butcher shop operated by his brother-in-law. He had no invoice and no records of points paid for the meat. Clay said he was violating the regulations on both counts.

Kansas City Truck Halted.

The biggest haul of the day was a refrigerated truck owned by the Adams Transfer company of Kansas City, Mo. It was loaded with 28,937 pounds of beef quarters and calves, consigned to the Pyramid Packing company of Brooklyn, N. Y.

The meat, the driver said, was loaded at the plant of the Empire Packing company, 3840 Emerald av. The company last year paid $96,000 under a triple damage judgment obtained by the OPA, and Clay said other actions are pending against the firm and its officers.

The driver, Clarence Elwood of Pittsburgh, Pa., and A. C. Jackson, Chicago office manager of the trucking company, said two or three loads are hauled weekly to New York, with most of the meat being sent by the Empire company to the Pyramid Packing company, purchaser of yesterday's load. Clay said he had asked the New York OPA office to see if points were being paid for the shipment.

4,800 Pound Load Captured.

More than a score of trucks and cars were taken to the depot by the agents. One truck load of 4,800 pounds, from the Empire company to the Century Provision company, 1648 Cermak rd., was found to be 138 pounds short, Clay said. He called this an illegal shipment because of an unauthorized delivery charge of one-fourth cent a pound and because there was no record of a transfer of points.

On another front, Judge Elwyn R. Shaw in federal District court fined three alleged violators of the war food administration's slaughtering quota regulations $3,000 each on pleas of nolo contendere to charges of slaughtering 4 million pounds of beef and veal above quotas and diverting it to the black market. Those fined were Samuel Stern, 3650 Lexington st.; Alexander Novak of Rice Lake, Wis., and his brother, Edmund, of Ladysmith, Wis.

Accused Peddler Surrenders.

Ray W. Rinderer, 8113 Drexel av., surrendered to United States marshals on a warrant charging him with over ceiling sales of meat. He was released on $500 bond by Commissioner Edwin K. Walker and his hearing set for April 12. OPA agents, armed with a warrant, also were seeking Bernard Faye, 6631 N. Washtenaw av., on similar charges.

Judge John P. Barnes in federal District court approved a consent judgment for $5,000 and an injunction restraining further overcharges against Anichini Brothers, a hotel meat supply house at 549 N. Wells st., and Judge Walter J. La Buy entered a consent judgment for $448 against Leroy Anderson, a meat peddler of Addison, Du Page county.

Injunction suits were filed in federal District court against Ben Weinstein, 5108 Calumet av.; Albert Winogard, 2548 Rhodes av., and Joseph Lutske, 318 E. 49th st., meat market operators, charged with buying meat from Rinderer at over-ceiling prices. Another meat peddler, Bertha Puzauskis, 6635 S. Rockwell st., was sued for triple damages.

Ten Suspensions Demanded.

Clay also filed suspension proceedings against 10 meat markets and restaurants, charging them with overdrawing their ration bank accounts.

Judge Robert J. Dunne in Circuit court approved 11 consent judgments in injunction suits filed against Chicago grocers and butchers.

WILLIAMS' FOES BLAST NEW DEAL 'WOLF PACK' LIES

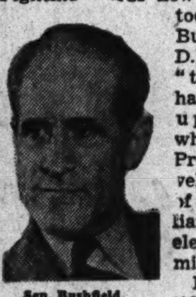
BY WILLIAM MOORE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—Fighting words flew in the senate today when Sen. Bushfield [R., S. D.] charged that "the wolves" have been set upon senators who dare oppose President Roosevelt's nomination of Aubrey Williams for rural electrification administrator.



Sen. Bushfield.

Bushfield identified Sen. Guffey [D., Pa.] as one of the "wolves," accused Guffey of lying about him, and hinted at reviewing Guffey's record if Guffey takes further action.

The towering gray haired South Dakota senator announced he would be "tickled to death" to meet Drew Pearson personally "where my actions are not restrained by rules and regulations." Pearson is a Washington newspaper columnist whom Bushfield designated as one of the "wolves."

"Little Nincompoop."

Bushfield said he would also be glad to meet Lowell Mellett, whom he described as "a third member of the wolf pack," and a pusillanimous little nincompoop."

Mellett is a former Presidential administrative assistant who resigned to turn columnist last March with Mr. Roosevelt's blessing. There was comment at the time that Mellett, a long time member of the Roosevelt official family, was expected to turn out New Deal propaganda.

Guffey recently charged in the senate that Sen. Bushfield's 1942 campaign was financed by "oily fat cats" of the Republican party.

Wolves Turned Loose.

Bushfield told the Senate today that attacks on senators opposing Williams were begun after the Senate agricultural committee refused to report Williams' nomination favorably for confirmation.

"The wolves were turned loose," Bushfield said, "and they have been yapping and howling ever since.

"The first one to raise the hue and cry was Sen. Guffey. . . . I cannot let this vicious, detestable action pass unnoticed and I do not intend to do so. The statements of Mr. Guffey are completely and utterly false insofar as they apply to me. . . .

Says Mellett Lied.

"That is all I am going to say about that particular individual unless by his own actions he invites a complete review of his own record."

Bushfield then accused Pearson of "a vicious, personal attack on me" because of the Williams case, and offered to meet Pearson some place other than the senate. Bushfield likewise accused Mellett of lying.

Bushfield said the senate is being deluged with demands that Williams be confirmed. The "Friends of Aubrey Williams" was recently launched at Williams' hotel for the avowed purpose of stirring up Williams sentiment in the senators' home states.

1 A. M. Plea Fails

KELLY SAYS 'NO' TO CAFES' PLEA FOR EXTRA HOUR

Chicago cafe and night club operators were unsuccessful yesterday in their efforts to persuade Mayor Kelly to use his influence to obtain the extension of the midnight curfew to 1 a. m.—the hour at which New York now closes by action of its Mayor La Guardia.

"We don't expect you to take the law into your own hands as La Guardia did," John Comise, president of the Cafe Owners' association, told the mayor, "but we are here to ask you to use your influence in Washington to put some elasticity into the closing hour." Comise was accompanied by Milton Raynor and Thomas Rosenberg, attorneys for the association.

Advises Seeing WMC Director.

Mayor Kelly told the cafe men he knew of no action he could take and said they probably could get relief from the strict closing law more quickly from William H. Spencer, regional director of the war man power commission.

Kelly reminded Comise and the attorneys that he had been in Washington after the curfew was issued but before it went into effect.

"I asked War Mobilization Director Byrnes then if he wouldn't consider 1 a. m. closing," Kelly said. "He brushed my question aside and said a Gallup poll showed him that 90 per cent of the citizens were in bed by midnight.

Businesses of Many in Danger.

Comise then told the mayor that many of the association's smaller members would have to go out of business if the lucrative extra hour weren't extended to them.

Kelly said he appreciated the problem, but that Washington must have based the curfew order on a survey of actual conditions. "I don't feel that Chicago can get relief from it solely because New York has changed the order to suit itself," he said.

WMC Chief's Aid Sought.

The cafe and night club men yesterday also made an effort to induce Spencer to include night clubs, minus their entertainment features, in the relaxing of the curfew for restaurants serving essential and war workers. The relaxation order specifically excluded "restaurants primarily for entertainment seekers" from after midnight hours.

Spencer conferred with Washington, Raynor said, and then put the matter off for a day or two.

"We intend to see that a fair and reasonable decision will be extended to Chicago while New York enjoys the 1 a. m. closing," Raynor said. "We probably will appeal to the Illinois delegation in congress to see that their state and Chicago get treated fairly."

Chicagoans Resent N. Y. Action.

A sampling of opinion on Chicago streets yesterday showed that many resented the action giving New York an advantage which Chicago does not possess.

"I think the Little Flower pulled a dirty trick on the rest of the country," said Fred Muetze, 4036 N. Central Park av., a drug store manager.

"It's the old story of the big town versus a smaller one," commented K. P. Petersen, 160 E. Illinois st., salesman for a typesetting firm. "The big town always thinks it has a little more coming."

Fifty Violations Reported.

Miss Jerry Gleason, 1437 Lunt av., a bookkeeper, was indignant. "After all, Chicago people are doing the same tasks as New Yorkers, and the easterners shouldn't be favored."

Oscar Bren, 1438 E. 57th st., an employe of the Swiss consulate, put the curfew extension on a business basis. "It all depends on whether New York actually finds the extra hour necessary," Bren said. "If not, then La Guardia's action is just nonsense and he knows it."

Police Commissioner Allman reported more than 50 violations referred to his office by the WMC had been investigated and that in "all but a few" the establishments were open legitimately.

Cab Driver Gets $10 Fine for Charging Too Much

Augustine G. Corona, 37, of 933 Belmont av., a Yellow Cab driver, was fined $10 and $5 costs in Speeders court by Judge Joseph B. Hermes yesterday on a charge of overcharging four soldiers. Rocco Filleti, of the vehicle license bureau, testified that Corona charged four soldiers $1.20 for a ride that should have been 50 cents. Corona was arrested March 15 at the La Salle st. station.

LA GUARDIA'S IMPEACHMENT TALKED IN N. Y.

Council Irate Over His Change in Curfew.

Army Backs Byrnes

New York, March 21 [Wednesday]—[Special].—The army is enforcing the midnight curfew in New York on its own. Military police swarmed into night clubs and bars thruout the midtown sector last night and early today and ordered military personnel to obey the Byrnes' 12 o'clock closing rather than Mayor Fiorello La Guardia's private 1 a. m. curfew. Shore patrols went along with several of the military police squads, apparently as observers. The army in Washington issued an order for officers and men not to enter bars after midnight.

New York, March 20 [Special].—Members of the city council today denounced Mayor Fiorello La Guardia for extending the curfew in New York City to 1 a. m. They accused him of defying President Roosevelt, sabotaging the war program, violating the city charter, corrupting the police commissioner and police department, and bringing shame and ridicule on the city.

Councilman Hugh Quinn, Queens Democrat, said he would ask Gov. Dewey to determine whether the mayor should be removed from office. Councilman James E. Phillips, Queens Democrat, even declared that in the case of any one who interfered with the morale of the military forces in time of war "it's too little to put him against the wall and shoot him."

"Puts City to Shame."

The only affirmative action taken by the council during its 45 minute castigation of the mayor was to approve unanimously a motion by Councilman Louis Cohen, Bronx Democrat, that the city record print in the minutes of the council's meeting the texts of Byrnes' original pronouncement of the midnight curfew, the mayor's message asking the council to pass immediately the local law to close night clubs and dance halls at midnight, and Byrnes' comment Monday on the mayor's fixing 1 o'clock closing time.

"Mayor La Guardia has put New York City to shame and ridicule thruout the nation and in every country allied with the united nations," Quinn said, "declaring that as a legislative body the council must do its best to divorce itself from the mayor's action."

Reading from the city charter, after pointing out the midnight closing hour was fixed by a new local law, he said the duties of the mayor specify that he is "to be vigilant and active in causing all provisions of the law to be executed and enforced."

Declaring the mayor had instructed the police commissioner to break a law of the city, Quinn demanded "how can anyone in the city respect law if the mayor and the police commissioner violate this one?"

Held Political Move.

Meanwhile, La Guardia's decision to relax the curfew in the city was viewed by political leaders as tantamount to an announcement of his intention to run again for mayor this fall. La Guardia's term as mayor expires on Dec. 31. He has not yet declared publicly whether he will be a candidate for re-election.

Leaders pictured La Guardia as concerned over the renewed boom for Dist. Att. William O'Dwyer of Brooklyn and the possibility that President Roosevelt may endorse the Kings county prosecutor.

In spite of La Guardia's extension of the curfew to 1 a. m., Councilman Walter Hart warned that all night club owners and amusement place operators will be subject to arrest if they keep their establishments open after midnight. Broadway, caught between La Guardia's previous zealous enforcement of the curfew, his sudden change of heart, and this warning, echoed with the sigh: "Now we really don't know what to do."

F. D. R.: WHAT CAN I DO?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—President Roosevelt today placed himself squarely behind the appeal of War Mobilization Director Byrnes for the nation to abide by the midnight curfew request.

The President told his press conference that he, of course, considered Byrnes, and not Mayor La Guardia of New York, as right on their conflicting views on compliance.

Byrnes is for a midnight curfew. La Guardia extendc the curfew until 1 o'clock by calling for "an hour of tolerance," an action which revived controversy about the curfew request. The curfew has been in operation since Feb. 26.

Byrnes admitted that he was powerless to enforce the request, but appealed for compliance.

Shoeless

MRS. ELAINE STRAULIN.

Thomas Straulin, 28, of 3643 N. Lakewood av., a park district employé, wears the shoes in his family except when he lets his wife, Elaine, 23, wear them to go to the store, Mrs. Straulin complained to Judge Joseph Sabath in Superior court yesterday.

"He keeps me barefooted for two or three months at a time," Mrs. Straulin testified. "I can't buy my own shoes because he holds the ration books, and when I go to the store I have to wear my husband's shoes, if it's cold."

Attorneys Joseph H. and Norman Becker, representing Mrs. Straulin in her suit for separate maintenance on the ground of cruelty, told the court that Straulin's theory is that "the best way to keep a wife at home is to keep her barefooted."

Judge Sabath awarded Mrs. Straulin, who is living at 4318 Sheridan rd., temporary support of $65 a month for her son, Thomas Jr., 1. The couple was married Sept. 5, 1942, and separated last Jan. 24, when Mrs. Straulin bought a pair of shoes that fit.

F.D.R. PROMISES REPORT ON U.S. FOOD SHORTAGE

Airily Refers to Probe by Congress.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—In a spirit of airy banter, President Roosevelt today took cognizance of the nation's No. 1 problem—the shortage of food, particularly meat, on American tables.

As administration leaders counseled taking another hitch in the national belt, Mr. Roosevelt announced at his press conference that he will report on the food problem Friday.

Supplies Diverted.

The question arose when Mr. Roosevelt was asked if he had anything to say about the food shortage, which has been attributed to diversion of supplies to allies as well as maintaining a flow of food for men in the services.

Mr. Roosevelt said he had read an awful lot of stuff on the food situation lately and the stories depend largely on who writes them.

Asked whether he thought a legislative investigation would be helpful, Mr. Roosevelt said that the question was a tricky one. Told by the inquiring reporter that no trick was intended, Mr. Roosevelt said he didn't like to criticize congress.

Facts Known, He Says.

What can congress find out, he asked, that we don't already know, he said.

Mr. Roosevelt said that he had been a legislator himself and knows about the temptation to settle things by resolution—introduce a resolution to double the food supply—the old thing like making two blades of grass grow where one grew before.

WOMAN, 18, GETS 4 MONTHS FOR FRAUD.
Miss Barbara L. Duchire, 18, of Highland Park, Mich., yesterday was sentenced to four months in the Bridewell by Judge Jacob M. Braude in Women's court where she was charged with defrauding the Palmer House of $60.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—A major share of the blame for the current sugar shortage was laid at the door of government agencies today by an industry witness testifying at a house subcommittee hearing. The witness was Edwin O. Blomquist, vice president of E. J. Brach & Sons of Chicago and chairman of the food supply and allocation subcommittee of the food industry war committee.

Four Main Reasons.

Blomquist asserted that four principal factors contributed to the sugar scarcity. These were, he testified, the excess distribution of sugar by the office of price administration last year on home canning ration stamps above estimated requirements; lack of coördination between federal agencies and departments responsible for sugar; the "apparent decision" of government agencies to give the United States a reduced sugar supply during the war, and the government's delay in offering to purchase blackstrap molasses from Cuba in 1943 and 1944, thus forcing instead the diversion of about 900,000 tons of sugar into industrial alcohol production.'

The allocation of sugar to industries, ranging from 65 to 125 per cent of a 1941 base, was protested as "unnecessary and unfair" at the hearing of H. R. Chapman, Cambridge, Mass., candy company executive and spokesman for the National Confectioners' association, Chicago.

System Criticized.

Chapman told the subcommittee the present government sugar allocation system constituted discrimination and is not justified as a war measure.

Other candy industry representatives appearing at the hearing included Philip P. Gott, president of the Confectioners' association, and W. J. Lavery of the Curtiss Candy company, both of Chicago. The subcommittee, which is conducting hearings into government sugar rationing orders, is part of a special house committee investigating federal executive agencies.

ANOTHER LEAN WEEK IN MEAT IS PREDICTED

Housewives Despair of Serving Adequate Meals.

Housewives yesterday sadly contemplated another week of eating eggs, cheese and lamb shanks as butcher shops thruout Chicago continued to display only limited quantities of the cheaper cuts of meat. City hospitals and institutions still were getting their rations, but were forced to call many dealers before obtaining supplies. Most were using utility cuts, being unable to find anything better.

A canvas of housewives by Tribune reporters revealed that the city's tables will have sausage, hot dogs, cheese souffles, and perhaps a bit of chicken this week. The survey also disclosed that housewives are learning new ways to stretch what meat they can find. Some families boasted of being able to make a small ham last four days.

Lamb Shanks Again.

Mrs. Alfred Schroeder, 1706 Juneway ter., walked into her meat market and picked up card number 84 while the holder of card 22 was being waited on. When her turn arrived, she was able to get some veal stew, spare ribs, and lamb shanks. She had served lamb shanks last Sunday, but eggs are becoming the most common dish of the week, she said.

Mrs. Rose de Laurier, 1719 Jonquil ter., ticket agent for a railroad, said she has had no fresh meat in two weeks. Working on a late shift, she needs something nourishing for her lunch box, but some bologna she purchased "tasted like sawdust" and was thrown away, she said.

"For the last three weeks I have been able to get only liver or hamburger," said Mrs. Charles Tomczak, 7906 Essex av. "When we can't get meat we eat eggs or go to a restaurant and even then we usually get hamburger again."

Canned Soup for Lunch.

Mrs. Kathryn Hurley, 7756 Muskegon av., is plaintively inquiring for new ways of preparing ham. She got a 10 pound ham last week and since then has eaten it hot, cold, a la king, and other ways. Her husband, an office worker, now takes cans of ravioli and soup to his job for luncheon and heats them. There is no meat for sandwiches, she complained.

The husband of Mrs. A. W. Jackson, 1531 E. 83d pl., works in the stock yards, but last week she served mostly eggs and chicken a la king. A two and a half pound veal roast was the best she was able to get all last week, she said.

The housewives' main grievance was that they could not get the proper kind or amount of meat for their children and also were unable to supply their husbands' lunch boxes with nourishing food.

SCHREIBER TELLS OF 33 MILLIONS U.S. EGG DEAL

Ludwig D. Schreiber, big butter and egg man who also is city clerk, testified in federal District court yesterday that subsequent to 1941, he was involved in several powdered egg deals with the government amounting to some 33 million dollars, but admitted he might be "10 million dollars off, one way or the other."

Schreiber is a Democrat.

Schreiber was on the stand in connection with a suit brought by Ray L. Elster, a former partner, who contends he is entitled to half of the $212,000 profit which Schreiber made on one of the deals in 1942. This was a joint operation with the Midstate Frozen Egg company, headed by John W. Nunamaker Jr., who is also head of the Casey Egg company of Casey, Clark county.

Under cross-examination by Edward B. Casey, who, with Joseph Taylor, represents Elster, Schreiber conceded that Elster may have introduced him to Nunamaker, who, up to that time, had been Elster's customer, but said that Elster had no further part in the transaction.

DYNAMITE CAPS IN DUMP INJURE 3 HILLSIDE BOYS

Village authorities of Hillside, Du Page county, last night began an investigation into the source of dynamite caps that exploded Sunday in a vacant lost used as a dump, injuring three boys, one of them critically. About 750 caps, found from time to time, have been removed from the dump, but it is feared there may be others in the rubbish.

The victims of the explosion were Richard Gerleve, 10, of 155 Oak Ridge av., near whose home the boys were playing; William Haverman, 15, of Orchard st. and Edgewater av., and Kenneth Haines, 8, of 305 Orchard st., all Hillside. A number of the caps exploded when the boys put a match to them.

LOCAL WOMEN GET THOUSANDS OF EXTRA RED POINTS

Every day, precious red points are being paid to housewives who turn in used fats to their butchers. Because this country is faced with a possible fat shortage, these used kitchen fats are even more urgently needed to make medicines, synthetic rubber, gunpowder, soaps, paints and a hundred other essentials on the battlefield and home front.

Every woman can help toward final Victory by saving every drop of used fats each time she cooks. Even a spoonful is worth salvaging. Won't you keep saving until final Victory over both Germany and Japan?

They fell in love at first sight!

March 20, 1945.

THE farms will do their share toward meat production this year, and a housewife would rejoice if she could see all the potential sirloin steaks growing in the feedlots.

At the Wheaton farm, there are 25 Hereford steers and four home raised Shorthorn steers fattening on the concrete feedlot. The Herefords were purchased last summer, weighing an average of 480 pounds and costing $15.35 a hundredweight. They ran on pasture thru the summer and went on full feed in the fall. They now will average around 1,000 pounds each and are destined for market soon. They are top quality cattle and should bring close to top market prices.

Hard to Make Profit.

The steers are not being carried to the high finish which usually characterizes Wheaton farm cattle, because it no longer is profitable to do so. As it is now the manager will be hard put to make any money on them unless he gets an unusually good market. He will have to sell them for close to $18 a hundred, which is the live cattle ceiling price, to show a substantial profit.

The Wheaton farm also will feed out and sell 15 Angus steer calves which were raised on the farm last year. These youngsters will be fed on pasture and should be ready for market in the fall as baby beef weighing from 900 to 1,000 pounds.

At the Fox river farm, more cattle are being fattened. In one lot is a load of 64 head of mixed cattle. They were bought last fall, weighing an average of 745 pounds and costing $11.50 a hundred. They now weigh around 1,000 pounds and will go to market in a month. They are being fed silage, crushed ear corn, hay, and oil meal.

50 Angus Steers Fatten.

In another lot is the production of the big Angus herd. Here there are 50 steers getting fat. Half of them weigh around 850 pounds and 25 weigh from 500 to 600 pounds. The difference in size is a result of a difference in age. These steers are eating ground ear corn, hay, and a protein supplement. They receive no silage.

If the present feeding program continues without mishap, the two farms should send around 160,000 pounds of beef to the market this year. This means more than 88,000 pounds of prime cuts for the city consumer.

In addition to the beef, the farms also will ship tons of pork and some eggs and poultry, altho the latter two products are not raised in market quantities.

The GARDEN by Ben Markland

WARM weather of last week-end lured hundreds of gardeners west and south of Chicago to make their first plantings. Plots which were spaded or plowed last fall, and are in high, well drained locations, were in excellent condition. Many home owners also found the week-end an excellent time for the important spring task of rolling and reseeding lawns.

The proper time for planting first vegetables always has been a disputed point, but thousands of Chicagoland gardeners gradually are being converted to the program of planting hardy vegetables as early as the ground can be worked without the danger of packing. There is little chance that the peas, spinach, radishes, lettuce, onions, beets, and carrots planted last week-end will be damaged by cold weather.

Commercial gardeners in Cook county annually plant these vegetables in late March or early April, because light frosts and snows do not affect them. A severe ground freeze would damage them, but there is little possibility of such weather at this time of the year.

MRS. JOE LOUIS ASKS DIVORCE; CASE UP TODAY

Mrs. Marva Trotter Barrow, 27, filed suit for divorce in Superior court yesterday against Sgt. Joe Louis Barrow, 30, heavyweight boxing champion now in the army.

The suit charged Louis with desertion and it will be heard at 11 a. m. today by Judge John A. Sbarbaro. Mrs. Barrow, represented by Atty. Aaron H. Payne, is asking custody of a child, Jacqueline, 2.

Mrs. Barrow filed a divorce bill in July, 1941, on the ground of cruelty, but the couple announced a reconciliation a few weeks later. They were married Sept. 24, 1935, two hours after Louis knocked out Max Baer. Her suit yesterday charged he deserted her Oct. 2, 1943.

W. R. KIRK SEEKS DIVORCE; BARES FINANCIAL ROWS

Walter R. Kirk, 71, retired soap manufacturer, filed suit for divorce in Superior court yesterday against Mrs. Louisa Nevins Kirk, 46, of the Drake hotel, on the ground of constructive desertion. Kirk's home is at 1500 Lake Shore dr. but he has been living in the La Salle hotel.

The suit, in which Kirk is represented by Attorneys Robert E. Cantwell Jr. and Christopher E. Jones, alleged that he "repeatedly remonstrated with Mrs. Kirk about her extravagance," and that finally, on April 23, 1943, he moved to a less expensive apartment, but she refused to live with him in the cheaper quarters.

Had to Cut Expenses.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirk were married Dec. 12, 1934, in New York, and finances immediately became a point of controversy, the suit indicated. In January, 1940, Kirk told his wife that his capital and income had been depleted so seriously that he had to cut expenses, his suit states.

Mrs. Kirk instituted several suits in Westchester and New York counties, in New York. Her suit for separate maintenance was dismissed because she was not a resident of New York, Kirk said, but she was awarded $4,000 in a suit for necessities, which he is appealing. In another eastern suit she is seeking $4,500 for attorneys' fees.

Asks Two Injunctions.

Kirk also asked an injunction restraining his wife from having him followed by detectives "with the intention of inducing him to make a financial settlement."

A STUDENT COP FIRES AT 2; THEY RUN—TO POLICE!

Probationary Policeman Jacy Morris, 24, of 1244 N. Campbell av., Negro, who enrolled in the police training school Monday, started getting shooting experience last night. His automobile was sidewiped by another at Carmen av. and Division st. and Morris was unable to stop the second car. He finally fired two shots at it, hitting the side and puncturing a tire. The other driver, Leonard Frazone, 4520 Carmen av., a commission merchant, kept going until he reached the Chicago Avenue station. There he explained that he wasn't aware of the sidewiping and thought Morris was a holdup man. Frazone and his companion, Peter Curcio, 2716 Hampden ct., were released.

A COAL SHORTAGE THIS YEAR?

● Let's all face soberly and fairly this threat of a coal shortage.

Coal alone cannot win the war, but the war cannot be won without coal.

Last year the Bituminous Coal industry produced 620 million tons of coal—an all-time high—yet this was not enough.

What are the prospects today?

Government officials estimate that 1945 requirements will be equal to those of last year. The Bituminous Coal industry has the capacity to produce the necessary coal, provided it has enough men, adequate supplies and repair parts, and sufficient transportation and delivery facilities. We believe every essential need for 1945 should be met. But to do so demands the utmost co-operation of Government, industry, and the public—every citizen involved in the production, movement, or consumption of coal, or of electricity and gas generated from coal.

Coal can be taken out of the mines no faster than it can be hauled away. Our railroads moved the record coal production of 1944. They believe they can do it again.

Coal-mining is mainly a mechanized industry. Unless its millions of dollars' worth of heavy equipment is kept in efficient working order, production will suffer. We are hard-pressed for repair parts to keep present equipment in operation. We maintained the ability of our plants to turn out the record output of 1944. With the co-operation of the Government we can do it again.

But coal is essentially the product of the work of men. In 1942 approximately 462,000 men worked in the bituminous coal mines of this country. In January of this year there were only 390,000 men.

The Government has announced that it is necessary to make further reductions in our already inadequate forces. If this is done, no one can estimate with complete accuracy to what extent bituminous coal production will be curtailed. The Solid Fuels Administrator for War estimates that the total production will be from 40 to 55 million tons below requirements.

This is serious to all of us. It means that there just won't be enough coal to run the trains, operate the power plants, feed the steel mills and thousands of war factories, and heat and light the schools, hospitals, public buildings and homes of the nation.

The coal industry pledges the Government its full co-operation in all efforts to conserve every pound of coal.

It asks the Government to co-operate with it to the end that adequate coal may be produced.

The coal industry is fully awake to its vital war job.

Slight Opposition Hints Early Passage.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 20.—Gov. Green's bills for a metropolitan Chicago public ownership transit system were recommended for passage today by the house committee on public utilities. The measures introduced last week were defended by some of the ablest spokesmen for the governor and Chicago mayor.

The slight opposition to the measures was considered to be an indication that the bills will be enacted within a few weeks. For the proposal to be placed on the ballots at the June 4 judicial election, the bills must be passed by about May 1. The city council is required to give 30 days' notice of a referendum.

Gov. Green was represented at the continued hearing today by State Revenue Director Collins and Werner W. Schroeder, Republican national committeeman for Illinois, who helped draft the bills. Mayor Kelly's spokesmen were Philip Harrington, Chicago subway commissioner, and Joseph F. Grossman, first assistant corporation counsel.

Voting against the bill and doing the talking for the opposition were Rep. Searle [R., Rock Island], judiciary committee chairman, and Rep. Cutler [R., Lewistown], former majority leader.

"I'm voting 'no' in protest against the unseemly pushing around of legislators by appointive officials," Searle said. "I may have to mention names involved in this bipartisan matter when the bills reach the house floor. We are making a grave mistake."

Cutler declared it was one of the few times in his long legislative experience when he felt a mistake was made by rushing a bill thru the house.

Amendments Approved.

Those who answered "present" on the roll call said they were taking time to think the bills over more carefully.

No opposition was recorded in the voice voting on the adoption of 18 amendments. Nearly all of the changes were technical, agreed to by sponsors of the measures. An exception was the amendment successfully proposed by Rep. Jenkins [R., Chicago], Negro, providing that the public transit authority could not make contracts with unions which discriminate against any race, creed, or color.

Douglas Sutherland of the Civic Federation of Chicago gave his approval to the legislation after changes to keep transit employes out of political activities and placing safeguards around transit purchasing.

Wyllys T. Miller, chairman of the taxation committee of the Chicago Real Estate board, said he was neutral toward the bills but warned that the proposed transit setup must be truly self supporting or future drives for subsidies will be inevitable. Cook county real estate taxes are now the highest in history, he reminded the committee.

Asks Tax Payments.

He said that justice demands that the transit authority pay property taxes from which it would be exempt by about $4,000,000 a year under the Kelly-Green plan.

Larry Holmes, business manager of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards, also urged that income-producing property of the proposed system be taxed. He declared that 24 per cent of the area of the United States is now exempt from taxes, altho 16 per cent in some measure produces income.

Rep. Cutler told Schroeder many legislators suspect that the transit authority may buy or lease the street car and elevated lines and then turn them back to the present companies for operation.

"This authority would have no power to lease its properties and have them run by others," Schroeder replied. "It was I who took it [that angle] out of the bills."

Tomorrow afternoon the senate public utilities committee will hold its hearing on the bills.

Urge U. S. Tell Peace Aim; Stop Slaughter: Rep. O'Neill

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—Describing the nation's foreign policy as a "ghastly vacuum," Rep. Buffett [R., Neb.] today called upon the administration to scrap its "unconditional surrender" policy toward Germany and Japan in favor of a frank statement of peace terms.

"The use of the purely military phrase, 'unconditional surrender,' as a substitute for peace terms," Buffett told the house, "is prolonging the war and costing American lives.

"This ghastly vacuum must be replaced immediately by a straightforward statement of peace terms. Unless this constructive move is made, this war can become in the eyes of common people everywhere, simply a brutal competition in casualties between political leaders."

Hoffman Joins in Warning.

Rep. Hoffman [R., Mich.], voicing agreement with Buffett's position, told the house that disclosure of the Morgenthau plan caused stiffened German resistance all along the western front. He urged that France, England, and Russia take the job of policing post-war Germany.

"We should tell these nations," he continued, "to see to it that Germany never has the machinery to wage war again, and that if they sell Germany materials to make arms, we won't again send our boys overseas to die on foreign soil."

Buffett said that men at the battle front have protested that the unconditional surrender policy, together with Treasury Secretary Morgenthau's plan for virtual dismemberment of Germany, has "multiplied the cost of victory in American lives."

The congressman asserted that President Roosevelt, in his recent report to congress on the Yalta conference, "seemed to admit the slogan of 'unconditional surrender' has given the Nazis and Japanese a deadly propaganda weapon for resistance to the lact man."

"Will we learn too late that this phrase was the Achilles' heel of our whole war effort?" he asked.

Boomerang of Effort.

The congressman asked the administration to answer these questions:

1. Is it right to keep our peace terms secret when this secrecy prolongs resistance and costs lives?

2. Is not "unconditional surrender" a vengeance threat establishing the "poorest possible framework" for lasting world peace?

3. Is not the failure to state peace terms evidence of a "bankrupt" statesmanship?

4. Does the surrender threat give groups in enemy countries who seek peace any possible framework to gain followers and sue for peace?

Buffett said that until peace terms are disclosed there can be no ground on which forces can be built up in enemy lands to work effectively for peace.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 20.—A proposal to drop the "unconditional surrender" slogan and submit definite surrender terms to the axis in order to win an early peace was made today in a resolution introduced in the Illinois house of representatives by Lottie Holman O'Neill [R., Downers Grove], pioneer woman legislator.

Rep. O'Neill told a reporter that she acted on the strength of a statement made by Herbert Brownell Jr., Republican national chairman, that Republican policy should be guided by expressions from the legislative branch of the government.

"People Afraid to Speak."

She said she was not too hopeful of seeing the resolution adopted, because "people are afraid to speak their minds."

After reviewing the destruction of war, the resolution asks:

"That the congress of the United States proceed to do all in its power to bring about such international conferences of representatives of the people of the world to the end that the achievements of civilization may be saved from destruction, that the killing of men be stopped, and the burdens of rehabilitation be lightened;

Asks Definite Term.

"That the slogan of 'unconditional surrender' be abandoned and a policy of definite terms of surrender be submitted to the nations now in conflict with the allied nations in order that better understanding may prevail in the interest of early peace, and that all commitments of this country's men and resources be held in abeyance until such effort for understandings between the peoples' representatives is made."

Her resolution was referred to the executive committee, a standard procedure.

BONUS TAX FUND BILL IS REJECTED IN STATE SENATE

BY ROBERT HOWARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 20.—The Baker bill to create a special sales tax fund to pay for a future Illinois bonus for war veterans, was blocked in the senate today by administration leaders who then hurried the introduction of Gov. Green's bill to create a permanent commission to supervise aid to veterans.

Only 13 senators, half the number needed for passage, voted for the bill by Sen. Baker [R., Davis Junction], to set aside 25 per cent of sales tax revenues after July 1.

All former service men, 15 senators from both sides of the aisle, joined in sponsoring the governor's bill. A duplicate bill in the house had 37 sponsors.

Calls for 3 Commissioners.

The measure proposes that three commissioners, to serve six year terms and to be paid $25 a day and expenses, would carry on the work of the governor's unofficial committee on veterans' rehabilitation and employment. The veterans' administrator would be paid $7,000 a year and two assistant administrators would draw $5,000 each. County field offices already have been established. State officials of the American Legion indorsed the bill.

Administration spokesmen opposed Baker's bill on the ground that segregation of 25 per cent of future sales tax for a bonus would upset the biennial budget, which is to be made public next week.

Baker said the state's general fund surplus will be 130 million dollars by July 1, when his bill would become effective, and that bonus funds should be accumulated now.

Objections from Peters.

Sen. Peters [R., St. Joseph], chairman of the budgetary commission, said the budget already has been increased 41 million dollars over 1943 figures and contended the Baker bill would make it impossible to raise the pay of state employes and spend added sums on schools, veterans and welfare activities.

Sen. Downing [R., Macomb] argued that since a bonus law doesn't now exist it would be unconstitutional to appropriate funds.

Peters Tells Budget Figures.

Peters revealed some of the budgets' hitherto concealed figures. He said state income was estimated at 324 million dollars for the biennium and increases totaling $41,014,156 would call for these added payments from the treasury's general revenue fund, for which the sales tax is the major source: common school funds, $9,000,000; public aid commission, distributive items, $8,809,492; University of Illinois, $3,967,000; veterans' commission, $2,842,760; state employes' retirement system, $1,750,000; department of registration and education, $1,668,955; state fair, $1,326.115; board of vocational education, $1,193,809; department of public safety, $1,255,846, and military and naval departments, $1,113,467.

The state school aid bill was introduced under names of 24 senators and 88 representatives.

CURB ON REALTY TAX FOR RELIEF VOTED IN HOUSE

Springfield, Ill., March 20.—By a vote of 131 to 0 the house today passed a bill designed to prevent higher property taxes for poor relief in the face of the new assessment basis of 100 per cent of valuation in Cook county. Other counties also will go on the 100 per cent basis if pending legislation goes thru.

The bill passed today provides that to qualify for state relief grants local governments must levy a tax of 3 mills on the dollar of the value of property as fixed for the year 1942, rather than the latest tax year.

Also passed without a dissenting vote was the bill of Rep. Keller [R., Waukegan] to prohibit the sale of living dyed or colored baby chicks or other fowl.

CONTROL OF NEWS TRANSMISSION.

Secretary of the Navy Forrestal, as one of the spokesmen of Wall street in Washington, was chosen to advance the administration's nefarious plan to merge all American overseas communications systems into a single corporation under government control. Arguments of military and diplomatic necessity, which were rejected 15 years ago, were dusted off by Mr. Forrestal and presented in favor of the scheme.

These did not serve to conceal the nature of a conspiracy that has been hatching for some time to create a great communications monopoly which would achieve the double purpose of benefiting the Wall street insiders and giving the administration a stranglehold on the press.

"Private communications," he said, "can no more be rationalized than could be the administration by private enterprise of the diplomatic and military affairs themselves." He added that it was "purely a technical question" whether the communications facilities now serving press and radio could be separated from the monopoly he proposed. There is the voice of the investment banker on leave from Wall street. He is willing to grant the administration a censorship at source over what news may be sent to and from this country if only financial interests lurking in the background can be served.

The constitutional guaranty of freedom of speech and the press means little unless avenues of communication are kept open between sources of information and the public. In a government controled monopoly government messages would invariably be given precedence, whether there was any question of urgency or not. In peace time there would rarely be any factor of urgency, but this automatic priority would place in the hands of the administration a powerful weapon by which friends could be favored and enemies punished.

If government is permitted to control transmission facilities and to determine in what order dispatches are sent there is not the slightest question that only the kind of news it favored would be given priority. Newspapers with an administration bias would inevitably receive favored treatment. Rates could be raised to such prohibitive levels as to be tantamount to censorship at the source. The office of war information or any other federal propaganda agency could move into communication channels in competition with the press services and newspapers and would be sure to obtain precedence in use of relays.

These are among the more dangerous aspects of the New Deal monopoly proposal. There are latent issues in which Mr. Forrestal and the Wall streeters are more directly interested. Companies now owning cables which have become obsolete because of the rapid advances in radio communication have an investment of 50 million dollars or more. The government, by stepping in with RFC money, not only would bail them out, but would give them the prospect of an interest in the profits to be made from sharing the improved methods and facilities of progressive and economic groups now giving them a competitive beating.

Press Wireless, developed during the last 23 years by a group of seven American newspapers and four press associations, volunteered to act for all of the nation's newspapers in forming a common carrier. The newspapers and press associations which have pioneered this successful development have never sought to profit from the advances achieved. They have shown what improvements could be achieved by unremitting research and what could be done to speed up volume transmission of news and at the same time to reduce rates. All their earnings have been turned back into Press Wireless for improved facilities, equipment, and service.

It is encouraging that Mr. Forrestal's motives seem to have been evaluated properly by the senators to whom he delivered his far from frank sales talk. There was a general recognition that he was advocating an un-American scheme. Congress should give short shrift to this outrageous proposal.

THEY DON'T KNOW WHAT MAKES AMERICA TICK.

Dr. J. R. Van Pelt, who recently left Chicago's Museum of Science and Industry to head the program of a private research institution for the training of technical students, warns that the United States is in danger of dropping 10 years behind European countries in its supply of men trained for scientific research after the war.

England, Russia, Germany, and France all have kept research students in their universities to assure present and future industrial progress. The United States has put the vast majority of its young scientists into the army. Dr. Van Pelt is not alone in his apprehensions. A couple of months ago Prof. Arthur H. Compton, the University of Chicago's Nobel prize winning physicist, warned the nation that the present complete stoppage of training of young scientists not only threatens our position in the post-war world but is even a menace to our fighting strength in this war. It takes at least six years before a bright 18 year old high school student can complete his undergraduate and graduate training in the university and step into a laboratory as a scientific apprentice. The draft began draining college campuses of such students four and a half years ago, and since the draft age was dropped to 18 years the only male students in science and engineering are a few 4-Fs. President Conant of Harvard has issued a similar warning on behalf of the educational institutions of the country.

Students of engineering, chemistry, and physics from the very beginning received little consideration in administration of the draft law. An attempt was made for a time to maintain the supply of medical students, but even in that essential field, Sen. Ellender of Louisiana said a few weeks ago in the senate, insufficient deferments have been granted.

This nation is winning the war for its allies and supplying them with a major portion of the weapons with which they are doing their own fighting because of our achievements in technical research. We cannot live on past accomplishment, least of all in the field of research. A single generation saw leadership in many fields of research formerly held by European countries transferred to the United States. That leadership can slip away from us just as quickly as it was won, and it will slip away unless the present destructive trend is reversed.

The Roosevelt administration has been so busy promising to feed the world that it has neglected completely the problems of food production in this country. It is so busy giving away the products of American ingenuity that it has neglected completely the necessity of training the men who will keep that ingenuity alive. Such blunders could only be made by men dismally ignorant of what really makes America tick.

WORSHIPERS AT THE SHRINE OF EMPIRE.

Members of the American Outpost gathered around the luncheon table in London the other day to hear some words of wisdom from Oliver Stanley, colonial secretary in the British cabinet.

The Outpost is the most pernicious of the hyphenated organizations thru which Great Britain interferes in American politics. Its members, many of them wealthy expatriates and New Dealers traveling at public expense, have not been content to worship the perfections of imperial Britain from afar. They have set up their shrine in the heart of the empire where, from time to time, they gather to cry "Hear, hear!" as the true word is expounded to them by spokesmen of British policy. All of this creates the illusion that here are representative Americans in full accord with the institutions and objectives of British rule thruout the world. Of course they represent no one but their own befuddled and sycophantic selves.

Mr. Stanley apparently has become slightly alarmed at Secretary Stettinius' proposal for international trusteeships in various parts of the world. Americans readily recognized it as a fraud designed to cheat this nation of sovereignty over the important Pacific bases that have been won by the blood of American marines, soldiers, and sailors. The colonial secretary sees it as a two-edged sword that might cut in his direction also. He therefore enters an exception. Trusteeship, in his view, should not be extended to any British colonial possession. It would, he says, be impracticable and contrary to the wishes of the subject peoples. He asked, "Would it really be an advantage to create another 48 independent states, all small?"

By arousing largely synthetic horror at a world of chaotic little nations, Mr. Stanley attempts to defend and continue a regime which the world looks upon as detestable. Oppressing helpless people, in order to extort wealth from their suffering and provide a multitude of jobs for a British political burocracy, is not in harmony with the age. All of the efforts of British aristocrats and their American hangers-on cannot make it respectable.

There is a white man's burden among the less advanced peoples. It is a burden of helping these people in their economic and political development, such as we carried in the Philippines for four decades until those islands, politically at least, were deemed ready for independence. That is the road that the imperial powers are unwilling to follow, because they see in it a diminution of dividends to London, Amsterdam, and Paris stock companies and the eventual loss of thousands of sinecures for the younger sons of their upper classes.

A BATTLE OF WHIMS.

Mayor La Guardia's relaxation of Mr. Byrnes' curfew, insofar as it applies to the tosspots of Broadway, has brought a sudden understanding to Alfred E. Driscoll, member of the state alcoholic beverage control board in the neighboring state of New Jersey. He describes the mayor's move as "an apparent attempt to substitute government by whim of a man for government by law."

Mr. Driscoll is to be congratulated. He has pried one eye open. If he will open the other he can discern that the monumental controversy between the Little Flower and Jimmy Byrnes is a battle of whims. Government by law does not enter, if one excepts the New York midnight closing ordinance which Fiorello caused the city council to pass and now tells the police to ignore.

The mayor of New York says there are special [i. e., selfish] considerations which make it undesirable for New Yorkers to stop getting drunk at the same hour that their fellow citizens elsewhere in the country suspend operations. That, of course, is pure whim. But whether War Mobilizer Byrnes was actuated in imposing the curfew, as is most improbable, by the belief that a substantial savings might be made in light, heat, or man power, or whether his motive was the completely silly one of beating the American people over the head to convince them that there is a war on, he also was attempting to rule by whim. He had no legal justification for his act, no statute of congress, merely his own fiat. He confesses as much when he acknowledges that if that's the way Mayor La Guardia feels about it, he has no way of enforcing the order. If an order is based on law, it can be enforced.

Maybe Mayor La Guardia intends to turn all New York clocks back a few hours every midnight.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

That convention ban has alleviated the room shortage somewhat. We saw a vacant chair in a hotel lobby the other day.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

"SOLDIER OF THE LEGION."

The capture of Bingen on the Rhine must have recalled to many Americans a line of verse about a soldier of the Legion who lay dying at Algiers. The poem which began that way had a long life in the grade school readers, but it has been replaced in modern textbooks, no doubt, by the flip jingles of Ogden Nash and the Communist manifesto. For this reason, among others, we often regard the rising generation as out of luck. We suggest a glance at "Bingen on the Rhine," which may be found at any branch of the public library in "The Home Book of Verse."

The author of this sad military ballad about a German lad who sought adventure under the tricolor of France with the Foreign Legion was Caroline Elizabeth Sarah Norton, a minor figure in the literary flowering of the Victorian period in England. Personally, she was quite a character. Caroline, née Sheridan, was a granddaughter of Richard Brinsley Sheridan, whose "School for Scandal" and "The Rivals" are classics of the English drama. She was beautiful and witty; so were her two sisters. The Sheridan girls were known as "the three Graces" of London society in the reign of George IV.

Caroline's sisters became Lady Dufferin and the duchess of Somerset, while she married a lord's brother named Norton, called the Hon. George, who turned out to be, in the language of Damon Runyon, a first-rate heel. He sued for divorce, naming Lord Melbourne, the prime minister, as co-respondent, and the case was so weak that it improved Melbourne's political standing. In later litigation between them it was established that he failed to support her and tried to collect the royalties from her books. This trying experience caused Caroline to campaign with eloquence for changes in the legal status of married women.

* * *

A biography of Mrs. Norton was published in 1909. Livelier reading about her, however, may be found in George Meredith's novel, "Diana of the Crossways," for she was the model for that book's heroine. In memory, then, of a schoolroom favorite, we quote her most popular poem:

I let them take whate'er they would, but kept my father's sword,
And with boyish love I hung it where the bright light used to shine,
On the cottage wall at Bingen—calm Bingen on

BEWARE OF BEAUTY.

Be wise and prudent: never let your heart
Demand too much of Beauty and her ilk;
Beware her lips, her every counterpart:
Ermine and amber, honey, plush, and silk.
Better to close your hands upon the thorns
Of ugliness and memorize the scars
Than climb the night on silver unicorns
That gore the moon and trample on the stars.
Better to walk among the poison oak
Of man's deceit than pose in asphodel;
Better to join indifference in a yoke
Than find yourself alone in passion's shell;
Suck shriveled fruit or gnaw a meatless bone,

I remember so well that each spring when I was small we would get our annual "gift" from our congressman—a package of vegetable seeds. But one day the most alarming thing happened. We received from the government a second package of vegetable seeds and mother said:

"Such extravagance! Well, I shall just send them right back, and give them a piece of my mind. No country can long survive with such wanton waste going on."

So she wrote a letter to the government, lecturing it on the virtues of economy, wrapped up the extra package of seeds and sent them back, postage prepaid.

SPRING IN A CITY.

There hurtles from the lake a roaring gale
To snatch at loungers by the Institute.
It ruffles Mamie's curls, the saucy brute,
Altho she wears a fur, a dingy black;
But never could she think of turning back,
Gay colors flash at her: bright blue, a rose,
A velvet cloak, then suits of grays and browns,
And pumps that on a purple ground repose;
What can she know of bloodroot, blackbird's wing?
Yet in her buoyant heart is "Spring! Spring!"

If your former husband designated some one else as beneficiary to receive the gratuity pay, your child would not share in it. The same thing is true with respect to insurance benefits, but there is no reason why the child should not share in the dependent children's pension, and application should be made at once to the Dependents Claims Division, Veterans Administration, Washington 25, D. It might be worth while to investigate the child's eligibility for a share in the father's social security benefits thru the nearest social security office if he had been employed in a job covered by this law.

SICKROOM COMPLICATIONS.

Unusual developments may arise in those who are forced to stay in bed for a prolonged period of time. In some individuals, especially those who are old and debilitated, these complications may prove more annoying than the actual ailment being treated.

The majority of these difficulties are the result of a slowing of the normal body processes. The heart beat lags and the blood flow to distant organs is reduced in accordance with decreased demands. In these circumstances, the vessel walls may relax—to add insult to the already sluggish circulation.

Similar changes are noted in the lungs. The oxygen intake is diminished and many of the tiny air sacs remain motionless and become stagnant. Mucus collects and, unless deep breathing or periodic turning is encouraged, infection may develop. Previously normal bowel habits may be reversed, not only because less food is consumed but also by the relative inactivity of the colon and abdominal muscles. Simple laxatives and dietary modifications may rectify the condition thus contributing to the patient's comfort.

A good night's sleep is still appreciated. Most invalids dread the dark hours as they often mean insomnia. Sedatives may ease this apprehension and prevent a reversal of day and night. Every effort should be made to keep the sufferer from drowsing most of the day.

Skin complications may be equally annoying. Of these, the bedsore is the most trying. These blemishes occur as a result of local pressure and are commonly seen over the hip bones, heels, and shoulder blades. The surface of the body has a tendency to break down if it is constantly wet and filthy. Hence those who cannot help themselves or be moved easily for cleansing, are potential victims.

The presence of bedsores, in relatively robust persons, is practically in inverse proportion to the efficiency of the nursing care received. But in those who are emaciated or weak, particularly if paralysis is present, it may be impossible to ward off these lesions even with the most faithful attention.

The general health is of primary importance and every measure to improve well being is essential. The administration of vitamins B complex and C has been advocated. In diabetics, the maintenance of proper control of the primary disease is vital.

Prevention is best effected by frequent changes in position to relieve friction on the weight bearing regions. In addition, the use of rubber rings is advised. If they cannot be obtained, a good substitute is the doughnut ring which may be made by wrapping gauze or washed muslin about rolls of cotton to obtain the size and shape desired. Scrupulous cleanliness of the skin, keeping it free from contamination by the excretions, followed by the generous application of dusting powder, is a useful procedure. An air or sponge rubber mattress is a valuable precautionary measure. If bedsores are impending, painting the area with a solution of silver nitrate in distilled water several times daily may avert trouble.

If deterioration has begun, cleanliness and the avoidance of pressure must be emphasized. The ulcer may be treated with a freshly prepared solution of tannic acid and covered with sterile gauze. Infection is nearly always present and must be dealt with accordingly. When inflammation is marked, hot boric fomentations will ease discomfort.

Infants usually regain their birth weight by the time mother and child return home from the hospital—10 days. Some take longer. The chances are that the baby is not receiving sufficient food.

She Did Not Comply.

The war has brought some new passengers to the civilian air lines. The most unhappy of this group is that known as "shorts," nonpriority passengers who must be removed from a flight if a heavy priority passenger comes along. If possible what is known as "protection" is given them. That is, they are booked on another flight, by train, or by pony cart, whatever is available. Not long ago a young stewardess, unfamiliar with flight vernacular, went to work for American Airlines. Her first flight was to New York by way of Detroit. An hour out of Chicago she received by radio the following message: "Prepare to remove shorts at Detroit. No protection." For a while she was quite unhappy about it all.

It probably is not strange at all, but when Reuben Cahn, Tribune economist, xxxes out words which he has just typed, he uses a dollar sign for the x. Possibly he is merely trying to work up a nonchalant perspective about inflation.

Mutual Miseries.

A Seabee in the Pacific went to work not long ago and estimated that the G. I. of this war will receive a smaller bonus than his father did after World War I. He decided this awkward situation should be corrected and immediately organized a Share-the-Misery club which he says has the Townsend plan backed off the map. The plan: Every male civilian of military age can join the club by contributing $1 a day to the club's bonus fund. This would make him a contributing member. To become an active member, he need only go out to the Pacific and relieve a G. I., who, the founder assumes, would be willing to take over the civilian's job and contribute the $1 daily.

Recognition.

Charles Overall, a north shore artist who was wounded in the last war, was in Washington not long ago undergoing treatment at Walter Reed hospital. He is a distinguished looking man with a severe limp and a cane. One day he needed to get a suit cleaned in a hurry and was told, upon inquiry, of a short order cleaner three blocks away who could fix it up in a couple of hours. He limped over with his suit and handed it to the gum chewing girl at the counter. "Name," she demanded curtly. He gave it. "Address." He named the hospital. "General?" she asked. "Yes," he said, meaning a general hospital. Three hours later he returned to make collection. He wondered idly at what seemed to him the sudden alertness of the cleaning staff. What apparently was the entire family came out to look him over. "I'm Charles Overall," he told them. "General?" one asked. "Yes," he said. "Here's your suit, general," the proprietor told him, coming briskly forward. Mr. Overall [illegible] he commended them heartily for their fine service.

UNEMPLOYED BY DECREE.

Chicago, March 5.—We are told that the midnight curfew was put into effect to conserve fuel, and also to force people employed directly or indirectly in night clubs, taverns, and amusement places to be diverted into so-called emergency channels of war work. During my furlough in my home town of Chicago last week, my wife, who is a singer, was laid off from work, and she devoted the last week of my precious furlough time in traveling from the United States employment service to whatever job they sent her.

Most of the jobs had been filled for weeks, causing my wife the loss of much precious time and also causing much annoyance. On top of that, jobs are not as plentiful as purported to be. As an entertainer, she could work nights, luckily having trained her 8 year old girl to sleep after her departure for work at 7:45 p. m. and then arriving back again at 6 a. m. to prepare the baby's breakfast and ready her for school. The rest of the day, she managed to sleep enough, altho getting up to make the child's lunch and supper. The routine was hard, yet she could make ends meet both physically and financially, with a minimum of complaint.

My income is small, yet with hers it sufficed to give us a chance to look hopefully to the future. As things stand now, it seems as if our little world is tottering and our new home of three months jeopardized, all because of a program that should have been in effect three years ago, when the man power shortage was acute, not now when victory is almost in sight. I wonder how many more hard working mothers in the entertainment field find the present situation? Are they finding these so-called numerous war jobs which the government claims are so plentiful?

MOTHER OF A C. O.

Chicago, March 14.—As the mother of a conscientious objector I protest against the articles on the Germfask camps in The Tribune recently—not against the articles themselves, because if those conditions exist they should be exposed—but against the "black eye" given by these articles to true objectors.

In all fairness you should visit other projects. At Camp Coshocton, O., where my son has been for more than three years, you will find a different attitude. The men work for the government on weather research and soil conservation. They are also called out at all hours to fight fires on near-by farms and in forests. For this they receive $2.50 a month, not $5.

All last summer my son with other C. P. S. men joined the Smoke Jumpers in Montana. They risked their lives jumping in parachutes to fight forest fires. At this time his pay was doubled—$5 a month. Other objectors jeopardize their health as human guinea pigs and by working in mental hospitals.

I have two sons in the armed forces who admire their brother for his stand, encourage him, and even help him financially. Those men at Germfask, Mich., should be forced into constructive service, or jailed.

MRS. MARGARET FLAHERTY.

BRITAIN, UP TO DATE.

Chicago, March 14.—Mrs. Roosevelt in a recent article in her daily column suggests we need to revise some of our text books to bring our teaching up to date. She believes that the suspicion and antagonism which some of our citizens feel toward Great Britain grows out of emphasis in the teaching on the Revolutionary period and the War of 1812. Surely every citizen should know the history of our country, a nation founded on the achievements of our forefathers who fought oppression and died for independence.

Mrs. Roosevelt also suggests: "It might be valuable for us to bring our thinking on Great Britain more up to date." When I think of Great Britain today, I see India, oppressed and exploited. I see Greece, tragic and torn. England, in her 18th century tactics toward Greece recently, should certainly bring herself up to date politically. My antagonism toward Great Britain isn't based on American history, but on the history that is being made today.

THE ACTUAL CURE FOR STRIFE

THE SCIENTIFIC remedy for conflict, in industry and elsewhere, is brought to light and continually demonstrated in Christian Science.

It is the understanding (1) that in any situation what is good for one must be good for all, and (2) that what is good for all is always in their reach—understanding which rests on the basic fact in Science that authentic good is by its very nature impartial and universally available.

If a proposed course of action promises benefits for some but is not good for all, Christian Science leaves no doubt whatsoever that a program far better for even the apparently favored ones is available. If individuals, blocs, or nations have an apparent opportunity for profit through injustice to others, they can do far better for themselves, to say nothing of the others, through action in the interest of all.

This, Christian Science makes plain, is the great practical truth underlying the teaching, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

The complete explanation of Christian Science and its method of healing strife, disease, and other evils is given in

F. D. R. CONSIDERS A GUARANTEE ON ANNUAL WAGES

Orders Byrnes to Study Proposed Plans.

Washington, D. C., March 20 (AP).—President Roosevelt today ordered a study of plans for a guaranteed annual wage, described by the war labor board as "one of the main aspirations of American workers."

He told his news conference the inquiry—requested by the WLB—will be made by the office of war mobilization's advisory board of 12 headed by O. Max Gardner, former North Carolina governor. The board is composed of public, labor, farm, and management representatives.

Speaking hardly above a whisper, Mr. Roosevelt began his conference by reading excerpts from correspondence on the guaranteed wage plan study. He said the question has been talked about for 10 years, but only lately the unions have become interested.

He made public a letter to Byrnes asking the study and said Byrnes promised to get it under way immediately. The President added that the inquiry is "closely connected with the problems of reconversion and the transition from a war economy to a peace economy."

With the letter he made public a report to him last December by the WLB and a letter of the same date from then Chairman William H. Davis. Both suggested that the whole question of guaranteed wage plans "and the possibility of their future development in American industries as an aid in the stabilization of employment and the regularization of production should now be comprehensively studied on a national scale."

The board itself said the search for a guaranteed annual wage is part of the search for "continuity of employment which is perhaps the most vital economic and social objective of our times."

"Simple" in Some Cases.

The WLB, for example, in its report to the White House recommending the study, said it had rejected a union-demanded guaranteed wage in the steel industry because in its present form it would subject the industry to "such serious financial risks, nothwithstanding the carry-back and other provisions of the tax laws, as to be unworkable."

The board reported that only some 50 or 60 plans of this sort are in existence; that an undetermined number have been tried and discontinued.

"Some of the existing plans," it said, "are reported to be successful, with benefits resulting to the employers as well as to the workers thru the greater regularization of production and employment.

"All but a few of the plans, however, have been limited to consumer goods industries or retail trades in which a relatively steady demand prevails, and none appears to have been attempted in a durable goods industry like steel, where the demand has fluctuated widely from year to year, being dependent in turn upon the fluctuating needs of other industries."

Gardner announced the following subcommittee of the advisory board would make the study: Eric Johnston, president of the chamber of commerce of the United States; Philip Murray, chairman of the CIO; Albert Goss, head of the National Grange, and Mrs. Anna Rosenberg, labor and man power expert.

"I'm dying for a smoke. If they'd stayed five minutes longer, I'd have shown them where we hide our cigarets!"

STRONG MAN'S WIFE CAUSES CONFUSION AT TRIAL OF CABBY

The trial of Isadore Goldstein, 46, a driver for the Yellow Cab company, on charges of assault and battery, preferred by Eddie Polo, long haired professional strong man, and for refusing to drive Eddie and his wife to their destination, struck a snag yesterday in Judge Joseph B. Hermes' Speeders court.

Mrs. Polo asserted that Goldstein, who had been surrendered by Benjamin Samuels, president of the cab company, wasn't the driver with whom her husband had exchanged blows in front of the Morrison hotel March 5. She pointed to Hyman Addison, 36, a driver for the Tri City Cab company, Park Ridge. "He's the one," she announced.

"I never saw these people before in my life," he retorted. Addison was in court to face a charge of picking up passengers with an out-of-city cab. Judge Hermes transferred the Goldstein case to Jury court, where Judge Harold O'Connell set April 2 as trial date.

FEDERAL COURT BLOCKS FLORIDA FREE LABOR LAW

Tampa, Fla., March 20 [Special].—The United States District court here issued an injunction today temporarily restraining Florida's attorney general, Tom Watson, and other Florida officials from attempting to enforce the so-called "right to work" amendment to the Florida constitution.

The injunction was signed by Federal Judge W. S. Barker on the application of attorneys for the American Federation of Labor. It specifically halted proceedings in state courts in suits instituted by Watson against 14 manufacturers.

The "right to work" amendment, described by labor as an anti-closed shop measure, was incorporated into the Florida constitution after it was approved by a 25,000 majority in a referendum last November. It provides that "the right to work shall not be denied or abridged on account of membership or nonmembership in any labor union or labor organization."

The AFL contended in its petition to Judge Barker that the amendment is invalid as a restriction on rights guaranteed by the United States Constitution. The judge ordered a hearing on this issue March 29 before a three judge federal court here.

Validity of the amendment was challenged in Atlanta, Ga., last week by the regional war labor board in a decision ordering Miami radio station WFTL to enter into a closed shop contract with the AFL Radio Technicians of America.

Watson appeared before the RWLB at a hearing which preceded this decision and warned the board that Florida firms that complied with such a directive would expose themselves to penalties, such as revocation of charter or loss of license to do business in the state.

The committee called on McNutt to "wipe the slate clean and start out again on a fresh basis—a basis which is most likely to produce the necessary tire fabric and duck yarn." Asserting that it profoundly regrets its disagreement with McNutt, the committee charged:

"We are convinced from the clear evidence, painstakingly reviewed during half a dozen long meetings that there was an attempt to create a situation which could be called a failure of the voluntary method so that force could be used.

"We resent this attempt to involve conscientious citizens of New Bedford in what they were told was a true recruitment program, only to have them find in the middle of their effort that such was not the case."

Call WMC 'Catspaw.'

The committee's report failed to identify the "certain officials in Washington" accused by it of using the WMC order as a lobbying device. It said bluntly that the WMC had been used "as a catspaw," and commented that results in New Bedford had proved conclusively that "compulsion will not work and that war goods cannot be produced by remote control."

The committee charged the WMC had put its "forced release" order into effect in New Bedford on orders from Washington without proper consultation between the WMC area director and his area labor-management committee.

It expressed confidence the citizens of New Bedford, once freed of the threat of burocratic coercion, can solve their man power problems thru joint, voluntary community effort.

Feeling Unanimous.

At a news conference, the committee announced that its statement was indorsed unanimously by the committee members. While signed by six alternate members, it was said, the statement is binding upon the nine principal members.

Members and alternates on the committee are appointees of McNutt. President William Green of the AFL, Phil Murray of the CIO and Chairman Eric Johnston of the United States Chamber of Commerce are members of the committee.

McNutt did not directly refer to the committee's statement in an announcement he made several hours after its release concerning the New Bedford situation. He said that no plan to solve the labor shortage in the New Bedford tire cord plants has yet been agreed to by "all interested parties" and that until such an agreement has been reached he will proceed with the forced release program.

The compromise man power bill placed before the house and senate conferees was drafted by Sen. Austin [R., Vt.] and was described to reporters by Sen. Thomas [D., Utah], conference chairman, as a fusing of the man power bills of the house and senate with the job freeze proviso added.

Called a "Monstrosity."

Rep. Short [R., Mo.], one of the conferees, immediately attacked the measure as a "monstrosity" which would require cumbersome and costly government machinery to administer.

"This thing includes everything but Presidential stump speeches," Short said in an interview. "There is not the slightest possibility of an agreement on it." Short said he viewed administration demands for drastic man power controls as a psychological move to "cover up administration failures and mistakes in war production."

Thomas said the bill would make employers violating WMC ceilings subject to one year jail sentences and fines up to $10,000, would make war workers between 18 and 45 who quit their jobs subject to the draft and would provide "some kind of compulsion" for other war workers. Its provisions would only be invoked, he said, in areas of "acute labor shortages."

CIO-DODGE AIDS ARE REINSTATED PENDING BALLOT

Joseph Mattson, district director of the United Automobile Workers [CIO], yesterday formally notified 17 officers and committeemen of local 274, which holds a contract at the Dodge Chicago plant, of their suspension Monday by the international's executive board, and of his appointment as an administrator for the local.

Then he reappointed all officers and committeemen to serve under his direction until a new election can be held, as ordered by the executive board, sometime within 60 days.

Mattson met with the suspended officers and other union members in a hall at 4758 S. Pulaski rd. In preparing for an election scheduled for a week ago Monday, the local had deviated from rules set up by the international, it was reported, in declaring Charles Hall, a vice president, and George Houlihan, a committeeman, ineligible for reelection, on the ground that they had failed to maintain their standing by nonpayment of dues while ill.

PRICE RULINGS PUT 173 BOARDS INTO CONFUSION

The 173 local rationing boards in the Chicago area were thrown into confusion yesterday as understaffed boards used their entire personnel to distribute copies of new pricing regulation and obtain signed receipts from approximately 20,000 retail merchants in the Chicago area.

The office of price administration offices at 222 W. Adams st. were swamped with telephone calls seeking information on the rules which late Monday night froze the price markups of dealers in clothing, textiles, furniture, and house furnishings.

All other board business was suspended while merchants were personally given the new rules.

Stores are forbidden to charge a greater margin over their cost than they did on March 19, with the object of passing on to consumers the benefit of lowered factory prices which will be set. The action does not change present price levels and will not set back price increases already made.

AGREE TO END SLOWDOWN THAT KEPT 1,000 IDLE

After a day-long meeting yesterday with William G. Murray, a federal conciliator, officials of the United Steel Workers' union [CIO] agreed to order their members, who have been conducting a slowdown at the sheet and tin mill of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation at Gary, Ind., to return to work to maintain the production schedule set by the company.

The slowdown started at midnight March 11, after the company instituted a new production schedule on the pickling line. Workers who refused to meet it were sent home. This kept 1,000 other workers idle.

Thousands See Safari's Sport in Oklahoma.

Elk City, Okla., March 20 [Special].—Watched by a crowd of 1,000 curious onlookers, British Ambassador Halifax today rode to the hounds in a coyote hunt staged for his benefit.

The English diplomat, a devotee of the chase in his own country, termed the bizarre American show "all very jolly." Because the aim was to kill predatory animals he said he considered the sport "an appropriate pastime in war time."

Ten airplanes equipped with two way radios raced above the hunting field thruout the chase to give the hunters "spotter" information about the quarry.

Fifty Join in Sport.

A cavalcade of about 50 persons rode in the hunt. Other notables, in addition to the guest, included Gov. Robert S. Kerr and Rep. Victor Wickersham of Oklahoma, both Democrats, and Archibald McDonald Gordon of the Washington embassy.

While the men rode their horses across the rolling prairie behind a pack of about 200 dogs, the wives of the two most distinguished hunters, Mrs. Halifax and Mrs. Kerr followed them in an open automobile.

The scene of the hunt was a two square mile grassy field about 18 miles southeast of Elk City on the western edge of the state.

The aircraft were light, privately owned planes of the civil air patrol whose owners are said to be permitted to use gasoline in the extermination of coyotes because of the animals' raids on farmers' poultry and sheep.

One of the planes was equipped with a loud speaker, at which State Safety Commissioner J. M. Gentry waited at a microphone to direct the hunters.

Halifax and his personal party arrived at the field about 10 a. m. They had flown to the near-by navy base at Clinton from Oklahoma City in an R. A. F. plane.

Alerted by Speaker.

Everything was in readiness for the spectacle. The planes had succeeded in getting half a dozen coyotes into open grassland. Packs of dogs were stationed on each of the four sides of the field.

But then a slight hitch developed. The tall, spare ambassador's legs were too long for the saddle stirrups on the western cow pony he was to ride. A news photographer asked him to get on any way to show how short the stirrups were, but Halifax declined, smiling: "I know you're really hoping I'll fall off." But finally the saddle was changed, the stirrups fit and the "Tallyho" was given.

Barking dogs were released from the four sides of the field. The planes roared overhead.

As the hunters moved across the prairie they were guided by stentorian calls from the loud speaker on the hedge-hopping plane from which Commissioner Gentry looked down upon the scene.

But the dogs apparently were the only hunters to get close to a coyote. They caught two, the full bag of the hunt, and killed them before the horsemen reached them.

Of his visit to the hinterlands of America and the show accorded him in war time, Halifax commented:

DRIVES THRU RED LIGHTS TO CHEAT BANDITS OF $5,000

Norbert De Rosier, 45, a reviser at the Railway express depot at 1305 Indiana av., defied two holdup men yesterday when he raced thru five red lights on Michigan av. to get back to the depot. De Rosier, who lives at 4906 N. Meade av., was taking $5,000 to the depot after cashing pay checks for himself and 34 other employes at a currency exchange. De Rosier said the driver of the holdup car attempted to force him to the curb while a companion brandished a revolver.

4 IN G. O. P. FIGHT FOR SPOT ON 17TH JUDICIAL TICKET

A four-way fight for the third nomination on the 17th judicial circuit ticket will be waged at the Republican judicial convention to be held at 3 p. m. Saturday in the Circuit courtroom at Waukegan.

Judges Ralph J. Dady of Waukegan and William R. Dusher of Rockford have been indorsed in county conventions held in Lake, McHenry, Boone, and Winnebago and are assured places on the ticket. Judge William L. Pierce of Belvidere is retiring and the four-way fight is for this vacancy.

Frank A. Oakley, Boone county judge, has the indorsement of his county. McHenry county is split among three candidates, County Judge Henry L. Cowlin, State's Atty. William M. Carroll and David R. Joslyn, Woodstock attorney. Carroll was nosed out by Judge Pierce in the 1939 convention. Delegates from heavily voting Lake and Winnebago counties are uninstructed on the third nomination.

Democrats of the district, whose overtures toward coalition have been ignored by Republicans, will meet in Woodstock next Monday and are expected to nominate Vernon Knox, Crystal Lake attorney, whose name was put forward in the coalition offers. The district is overwhelmingly Republican.

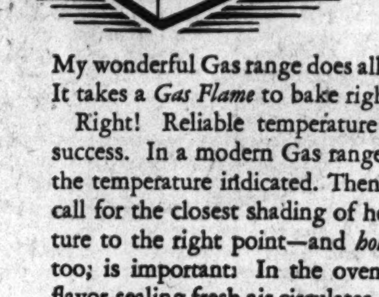
Mrs. Chicago can say that again—and does! In homes using modern equipment, 910,000 Chicagoans, or more than 98%, are "Cooking with Gas!"



FEATHER-LIGHT cakes . . . flaky, mouth-melting pie crust . . . crunchy cookies that give the kids that itch to snitch—these are the rewards of Gas Flame baking.

"Baking's fun," says Mrs. Chicago. "I just follow the recipe. My wonderful Gas range does all the work and I get all the credit. It takes a Gas Flame to bake right!"

Right! Reliable temperature control is the key to baking success. In a modern Gas range, you just set the control dial at the temperature indicated. Then the Gas Flame, sensitive to the call for the closest shading of heat, quickly brings the temperature to the right point—and holds it there! Proper ventilation, too, is important. In the oven of a modern Gas range, hot, flavor-sealing fresh air circulates evenly around pastries and roasts.

Plan to buy a modern GAS Range when appliances are again available. Enjoy Gas Flame cooking. Meanwhile help our Government conserve fuel—don't use more Gas than you need. If you'd like to see what's in store for you in kitchens, ranges, and other modern Gas equipment, visit our 122 S. Michigan Ave. Office. Lehmann Ends Triumphant Song Cycle; Returns Next Season with Kipnis and Singher

Now that Lotte Lehmann has left us—to return next season in Orchestra hall song cycle with Alexander Kipnis and Martial Singher—I suppose the arguments will begin over which of her three recitals was the finest. I can't argue about the Brahms, because I was luckless enough to miss it, nor can I argue about the Schubert and Schumann, because both times I was bewitched. Ordinarily, Schumann would have been the weak spot, even with a singer who could, as Lehmann did, add magnificent Wolf and Strauss. But this was not an ordinary Schumann recital, or even an exceptional one. It was unique, and we will not hear its like until Lehmann comes again.

Schumann's songs are so intimate, so tender, they usually dry on the stalk of a singer's lack of warmth to feed them. When Schumann, after fantastic vicissitudes, married his beloved Clara, songs broke from him in a flood of melody. He composed them standing or walking, for the sheer joy of it, and on their bridal eve he gave her the cycle, "Myrthen," with the myrtle leaves that are the German bride's orange blossoms. But Clara was a pianist, and not until Jenny Lind sang his songs did Schumann really hear them as we heard them last night. "One really feels the sun on one's back," he said—and last night I knew exactly what he meant. I shared that sun.

It was truly a glorious concert. The house was packed even to the stage, and when Lehmann entered some little girls down front leaped to their feet to do her honor. Soon every one was standing, applauding, and at last she said, "Thank you for your warm welcome. It has touched me so much I am afraid I cannot sing decently. Anyway, I try."

Try? Well, you should have heard it, and if you did, you were lucky. Never in all my years of racing to recitals have I heard "Der Nussbaum" or "Auftrage" sung with such exquisite beauty, and I mean Paul Ulanowsky's playing as well as Mme. Lehmann's singing. Never have I heard "Die Lotusblume" so radiant, "Die Kartenlegerin" so witty, "Er ist's" so glowing, or "Ich hab' im Traum geweint" such a shadow of sorrow of which the encored "Ich grolle nicht" was the full, stabbingly poignant expression.

There was much more, of course, all of it the essence of Schumann distilled in the pure spirit of song. And for encores there were four of the loveliest songs yet written, Wolf's "Verborgenheit" and "An eine Aeolsharfe" [ah, what an accompaniment, Mr. Ulanowsky!], and Strauss' "Zweignung," and what happens to be the song I love best in all the world, the incomparable "Morgen." Tomorrow's sun really will shine when Lehmann returns.

That will be Tuesday, Feb. 19, 1946, when she sings Strauss, Wolf, Schubert, and Schumann in Orchestra hall. The cycle opens Dec. 10, 1945, with Alexander Kipnis singing Russian songs as well as Mozart and Brahms, and Martial Singher arrives March 19, 1946, with a French program. These recitals will be presented by the Adult Education council, 224 S. Michigan av. You can subscribe now—and a word to the wise . . .

White Coats Are Available in Many Styles

BY REA SEEGER.

Along with the many showings of all-white hats for spring wardrobes come the all-white coats. Most of them are topcoats, straight, slim, and simple. The materials are soft fleece or smooth wool of featherweight, seamed and detailed to perfection. Collarless models predominate, models that close snugly up around the throat and have convertible lapels to form a deep vee if needed. Straight box type coats have slippery linings so as to slide over suit or dress. Some are lined with white, others with contrasting colors.

Where there are buttons, they are huge. The gigantic, decorative affairs are in dusty gold or silver filigree metal or of plastics, and usually there are three to a coat front. There are pockets, but they're effectively concealed to assure a smooth, unbroken silhouette. Sleeves are wide and loose, some with raglan shoulders, others with deep set-in armholes. It's the luxurious all-white that makes them fashion important. You will find knee length coats that have a swank back flare, some that can be worn with a cinched-tight belt to provide a rippled peplum effect or straight with the emphasized back flare.

Coats of all-white are shown in the little lower than waist line length, with a straight streamline fore and aft and neat lapels and tiny turnover collar. They have been cut from the little boy sailor jackets and are trimmed with flap pockets, one on each hip. Large, long coats that wrap over amply in front have the regulation tie sash belt and look like reefers. These, too, are of snowflake weight and color. They are all-purpose models.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 20.—Abbott and Costello's producer, Martin Gosch, tells me Dick Haymes' brother Bob gets the romantic lead in the boys' next, "Abbott and Costello in Hollywood." Rudy Vallee will play a heavy, and Frances Rafferty, who used to understudy Zorina, will dance with Chuck Walters. That sounds like they were whipping up a mighty good cast. . . . "Rhapsody in Blue" finally gets an unveiling. Warners have timed its release in June, just when the Vera Zorina. Elliot Nugent. Irving Berlin. Frances Rafferty.

Gershwin memorial shows get off to a good start. . . . This town will set up its own wailing wall if it lets Don Hartman escape to do a play. Paramount would be smart if it grabbed him now to take over "Blue Skies" with Bing Crosby, Paul Draper, and Irving Berlin. From now on Don wants to write and direct, and why not? . . . Grace Moore, en route to San Francisco to do "Louise" with the symphony orchestra there April 10, will pause here long enough to talk to a studio about a movie version of "You're Only Human Once." . . . Elliot Nugent will launch his father, J. C., in this new one, "A Place of Your Own," which they hope will reach New York soon.

Following the Boys.

"Girl Crazy," with Lee Trent and 16 others, will be the first show into the Philippines. Sylvan Simon, who produced it, is now doing a streamlined version of "Flying High," with Sid Tomack. And since the G. I.s prefer girls in civilian clothes, instead of dressed up like actresses, they'll be dressed by our California sports designers, who are donating the clothes. . . . Mickey Rooney's mother tells me a bundle from Mickey arrived from Holland. It contained lots of little pink and blue things for the newcomer. Mick's friend, Les Peterson, at Metro, had a letter from him which read: "Don't believe I'll be home when the baby arrives, but will you please take over for me and help me sweat it out?"

Just as a Sideline.

Jinx Falkenburg and her mother have made a hookup with Mexican weavers and silk makers and soon will be importing some gorgeous fabrics from across the border. Jinx was sporting the brightest vermilion coat I've ever seen when she told me this, and I said, "Yes, but what are you going to do for a complexion like yours to go with them?" . . . Tom Neal received ten dozen boxes of cleaning tissue from a fan. He took great pains to write a thank you note. The next day's mail brought him a bill for $65. . . . Virginia Bruce, Loretta Young, Gail Patrick, Ginny Simms, Connie Gilchrist, and lots more beauties helped Ruth Hussey unveil Tino Costa's portrait of her. . . . Turhan Bey and Lana Turner went in for culture, but got to hear only half of Artur Schnabel's concert.

Out of Practice.

Fanny Brice, who swears she'll bring Bea Lillie back from New York, said she'd lived here now seven years and, for the first time during that period, she packed a trunk for the New York trip. Said Fanny, "It knocked me completely out." And I can remember the time when she packed the trunks for the entire company. . . . Sam Katz tells of the marvelous coöperation of Marlene Dietrich when he was still doing pictures at Paramount. Marlene promised him if he ever wanted her she'd work for him for nothing, when up spoke Joe Pasternak, and said, "Yes, and I paid for that picture after she did 'Destry Rides Again' when I was at Universal." Then Joe told about a birthday present she wanted to give Jimmy Stewart, and Joe said, "We'll make it for you"—and they did. The top technicians on the lot turned out a working Dick Tracy, which, when finished, cost them 900 bucks!

"MOSCOW SKIES."

By Mae Tinée.

Another movie of Russia at war, "Moscow Skies" tells a tale of the Russian air force, following the career of one man from the time he is a fledgling until he becomes a hero and a commanding officer. His romance with a nurse provides the love interest.

The best parts of the film are shots of the city under siege and of the utter desolation of land laid waste by battle when the fighting ends and nothing remains except smouldering ruin and the silent dead.

The romance is subordinated to the story of the fighting, but the heroine is pretty, and the hero has the impetuosity that appears to be a necessary part of a fighter pilot's makeup.

The photography seemed spotty and clouded, and some of the effects are rather clumsy, but the entire cast performs with sincerity and naturalness. It is not one of the best Russian films, but it is an interesting segment of one of the many sieges which have made history in World War II.

The house wasn't large, nor were the grounds surrounding it, but the varied interests and hobbies of the occupants were fascinating indeed. It was a home teeming with activity.

Bill and Ken were avidly studying the art of magic, practicing their sleight of hand on the entire family and the neighborhood in general. Entertaining, and cleverly done, too.

George usually was to be found in the cellar; building furniture was his hobby. His mother had him to thank for many of the conveniences she used every day.

Helen and Ruth, with the aid of their mother and the sewing machine, turned out some attractive wardrobes.

Mrs. Brown, we'll call her, was a past master in the art of listening, looking, and admiring. It was, "Mother, come here!" "Mother, look! Isn't this swell?" Father came off second best, because it annoyed him sometimes to find his beloved, battered, soft hat serving as one of the main "props" for his sons' legerdemain. And the hammering below stairs disturbed his reading after a busy day at the office. But, on the whole, he took it all in good part.

The point is that all these boys and girls were in their 'teens. Chores had to be done by each one, and lessons well studied. These two things acomplished, the youngsters were free to follow their interests and hobbies.

A mother who was having considerable difficulty with her adolescent son and daughter asked Mrs. Brown one day for advice.

"Your boy has a passion for making airplanes," was the prompt reply. "He spends a lot of time in our cellar with George. They never seem to say much to each other, but they are quite happy. Let him have a place in your home where he can build and experiment to his heart's content, and you won't have any more trouble with him.

It is true that in these years between childhood and maturity, when girls and boys are in what is often an uneven state of physiological growth and development, when new impulses, urges, and emotions are making themselves felt, that it helps them to have a focused interest into which they can pour their enthusiasm and energy.

Woman's Club Board to Confer on Offers for Its Building Today

A special meeting of the board of managers of the Chicago Woman's club has been called for this morning by Mrs. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, the president, for discussion of several offers to purchase the organization's building at 72 E. 11th st. Now under lease to the army, the six story clubhouse is occupied by the WAC, and the club has rooms in the Fine Arts building, which was its original meeting place. Under the present lease, the army has possession of the building until the end of the war and for six months thereafter. It has been learned that one of the possible purchasers is a Jewish organization, which would use the building for a school, and that Circuit Judge Harry M. Fisher will be one of the conferees at today's meeting.

Mrs. Ed. W., Chicago—For years I protected my tiny plants and seeds from birds by suspending narrow strips of tinfoil on stakes set in my garden. Such strips crackle and flutter in the breeze better than strips of paper or cloth. When tinfoil is plentiful again, this is a good item to remember.

Journey Underground

SYNOPSIS: The author enlisted in the Canadian air force in 1941, at the age of 20, and became a navigator. In 1943 he transferred to the American air force. On his ninth combat mission his Flying Fortress was shot down over France, and the crew bailed out. Prosser was injured. A French family hid him in their attic for 13 days, until he was able to walk, then helped him go by railroad to Nevers, 135 miles south of Paris. In Nevers he got in touch with members of the underground who hid him in their homes for a week. Then he was taken into the country to the home of a prosperous family called Martain. Prosser went for a walk with M. Martain and was stopped by German soldiers at a road barricade. They released him after exciting moments, and he and his host started back toward the Martain home.

INSTALMENT XXII.

Our walk had taken us to the far end of M. Martain's property. My foot was not as strong as I had thought, and at that point was very painful. We turned back, going thru some of M. Martain's horse pastures on the way.

Madame was out near the abattoir picking beans. When she saw us approaching, she looked up and said, "Travailler toujours pour manger." [One must always work to eat.]

I offered to help Madame; at first she did not think it quite proper that I should do so, but I soon convinced her that the work was good for me. It was a joy to be out in the autumn air, so refreshing at evening time.

We had a late, but very excellent dinner that night. The pate was followed by chicken, and the remainder of the meal was equally as delicious. We had some special wine with our dinner, but Monsieur felt this was an insufficient treat for a visiting American airman, and decided we should have champagne. I do not like champagne as a rule, and would have preferred to have them save their precious supply, but to tell my French host that I dislike champagne would have been a faux pas terrible, so I had to pretend that I was overjoyed.

Champagne glasses were put on the table for every one, even little Pierre. I told him that in America no child his age ever drank wine or champagne.

"This one is a regular little drunkard at the age of 12," his sister said. When his father heard this, he smiled at the boy, and said jokingly, "I think Pierre, as a member of the good bourgeoisie, will turn out to be a good drinker and hold his own."

M. Martain also brought out some good German cigarets. I found them very pleasant, and liked them better than the French ones. Pierre also tried a cigaret, which to me, so short of tobacco, seemed a lamentable waste.

Altho I tried to control my conversation all the time, by not speaking loudly or not at all when the maid could hear, I invariably found myself talking in the most knowing manner about England or America just as the maid came in. For a time during the meal, I even quit talking altogether, but to little avail, for no sooner had I done so than Pierre demanded in a loud voice, "Are there still a lot of cars on the road in England?"

We all looked at the kitchen door apprehensively. It was open, and for the next five minutes we tried to speak of very ordinary matters. I kept my mouth shut, but sooner or later some one would make an obvious remark, and again the door would be open. All the wine and champagne we had drunk made concentration on the door even more difficult.

The following day, Claudine discovered that the maid was beginning to wonder about the strange visitor who never came out to the kitchen, as every other normal Frenchman would have done.

"She asked about your accent," Claudine told me, "but I explained that you come from the north, where they all talk like that. We have told her you are our cousin. We have already had three 'cousins' here. They were young Frenchmen going into hiding, but as they could speak the French she is accustomed to, it was easy to convince her they were cousins. Ah, Monsieur, you are very different."

In spite of the fact that the maid had been satisfied for the moment, I felt a little uneasy because of her curiosity, and began to hope that I would not be left at this house as long as I had been at Raymond's.

Monday passed, and no word came from town that I would be leaving that day or the next, but knowing that M. Martain had been very definite when he told Monsieur and Raymond that I could stay no longer than Monday, it seemed certain that Tuesday morning would see my departure. I began to wonder whether the next farm where they would take me would be as pleasant as the Martain's. But Tuesday morning, when Raymond called, he spoke vaguely as if I were going right to Paris that day. This was very exciting. Altho I did not believe they would come until the afternoon, I made all preparations to leave at any moment.

I was waiting in the office, passing the time by finishing my topographical studies, when Madame entered to tell me that the hot water was on again, and that I could take a bath if I wished.

It was a glorious sight to see the hot bath water rise to the top of the tub. I submerged myself in it, intending to stay at least a half hour, hoping that the lice which were making me so miserable would be drowned.

After three weeks without a bath, it was too much to expect me to hurry out of this glorious tub. While I did not take time to drown the lice, and probably only revived them, I did manage to get in a good bath.

I found M. Andre sitting at the kitchen table, drinking a glass of wine and talking to Madame, who was preparing a box luncheon for me. He greeted me affably, and said, "You are going to Paris this afternoon."

This news almost compensated me for having my bath cut short. It was wonderful to feel that the time for my liberation was close, and that soon I would be on my way to freedom, away from the atmosphere of perpetual fear and anxiety that existed in France.

Just as Madame finished putting three pork chops, hard boiled eggs, buns, and a bottle of wine in my box, M. Martain came in. He gave me some German and French cigarets. Then we said our good-by and I thanked them for their kindness.

This was September 29.

M. Andre was by this time in a hurry, and with no uncertainty guided me quickly out to the car. As soon as he had started the motor, he began speaking "English," with a consistency of approximately one English word to every four French ones. Not only was this irritating, but very disconcerting; I found him very difficult to understand.

I decided to tell him about my lice, but while I knew the French word for lice, poux, I could not pronounce it correctly. It sounds like the English equivalent of pooh.

"J'ai les poux," I said. [I have lice.]

"What?"

"Poux."

"Poux?" he repeated, still not understanding.

It sounded so ridiculous that I finally gave up and wrote in out for him.

Then the light dawned, and he said, "O, poux!" at the same time taking his hands off the steering wheel to make a gesture vividly characterizing this animal. "Ah, we can stop in town and get some medicine for that."

As we approached the bridge over the Loire that led into the town, we drove slowly, keeping a sharp lookout for any police who might be checking papers. There were none, and soon we stopped at two drug stores for my medicine, but both were closed for lunch, so once more I had to abandon my campaign against the bugs.

I was taken back to the same furniture shop where I had spent my first night in Nevers. Several German military trucks were parked out in front, which forced us to leave our car almost a block away. As we walked back to the shop we passed thru several small groups of Germans, evidently waiting to go into the Soldatenheim. I was quite surprised to see that all this German transport was charcoal burning.

The shop was locked, so we went along to the next door, which led to apartments above. We found Madame, who said Monsieur had gone out, and that I was to go down to the room where I had been before.

M. Andre left, wishing me good luck, and then Madame showed me downstairs. As I washed my hands in the little washbowl, I noticed that the soap had been used since my last visit, and that there were two old razor blades on the washstand. It was obvious that some one else had stayed there for one or two days. I wondered who it might have been, but did not dare to ask for fear that even then I might have aroused suspicion by asking too many questions.

Yanks in Paris Take Time Out to See Fashions

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, March 20.—The new spring presentations of couturiers here are crowded with G. I.s who prefer to attend Paris fashion shows to anything else during their spare time or on 48 hour leaves.

One Chicagoan, Corp. Richard I. Cooke of 5727 Winthrop av., said: "There's nothing more pleasing than a beautiful girl perfectly dressed. Not only are the Parisian mannequins lovely but they know how to walk and present clothes to the best advantage. The biggest change I hope to see when I get back home: More American girls dressed up!"

G. I.s visiting Worth and Paquin liked the ingenious three piece ensembles composed of flawless gabardine jackets and removable skirts buttoned down the front over gayly printed dresses, presented by both houses.

These world famous couturiers also showed perfectly made spring suits with thigh length jackets, square shoulders, and huge double pockets adorned with brilliant costume jewelry, coins, or ornaments such as carved elephants, cats, or roosters strung on gold chains.

However, the Yanks looked with admiration at street length afternoon dresses of crepe de chine in lotus amber or cloud pink. One model was trimmed with wide cutout embroidery across the bust and a wide Empire skirt. Another, of Renaissance lace, had wide, draped shoulders, daring decollete, and flounced skirt.

For afternoon wear, Paquin also presented short sleeved coats with open seams, worn over long sleeved cocktail dresses in black crepe or silk jersey. These dresses had drapery encircling the hips and tying into flat knots in front, with the loose ends dropping to the hem. Other features are cape fullness between fitted sleeves and waists, extreme decollete, and zipper fastenings in the back.

The Paquin formal the G. I.s liked best was made of yards of transparent black tulle, glimmering with sequins. Over the bare shoulders were huge bouquets of multicolored flowers.

"Leda" is the name of Worth's all white formal, which the Yanks said was the most beautiful they'd ever seen. It was made with yard-wide, removable sleeves, covered with rows of narrow tulle. The sleeves also were shown as a swirling cape or airy muff. The bodice of the crepe gown was covered with white embroidery of dancing figures and flowers.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

The Editor Goes to a Meeting.

"Why don't you do more reporting?" some one suggested. "Why don't you go to the white collar conference Sunday afternoon?"

It was a warm, springlike Sunday, and a trip in town didn't look inviting, but the friend was firm—and I gave in. I went.

At first I slipped into a seat in the rear, but, fearing to lose one significant word, decided to walk bravely down the aisle and sit, bold as a lioness, at the press table where I could hear every syllable.

Some one was saying something about coöperating with Russia, and I thought maybe I had taken the wrong turn, so I whispered to a man with nice curly hair and asked him whether this was the white collar and professional workers' conference. He whispered, "Yes."

Some one was saying something about Orson Welles, and Humphrey Bogart, and the "awakened social conscience of Hollywood" and how there was a pamphlet in the foyer written by Mr. Bogart. I wondered whether it would tell secretaries how to earn as much as movie stars.

The Summing Up.

Well, this went on for quite some time. A professor from Northwestern did try, now and then, to whip things into some sort of tidy shape, and an eager faced little woman bobbed up to ask why the audience couldn't take part, and there was considerable talk about coöperating with our allies in the post-war world, but there was precious little mention of coöperation between employer and employe in the world which you and I are going to face every day of this week!

One woman on the round table spoke briefly, unostentatiously, and definitely of things about which she knew something! It was a heavenly relief.

Three charming girls were displayed as the ideal white collar girls, the chairman made a manful effort to sum up nothing at all, and the meeting was turned into panel discussion. At that, they tell me, more substantial ideas emerged regarding the problem of raising the white collar workers' wage level.

Practicality.

It was all a little sad, for the white collar worker does need to be heard, in a clear, telling voice. Yet during the round table no consideration was given to at least three specific difficulties:

1. Salary freezing has worked a severe hardship on white collar workers, men and women.

2. No leader of distinction has appeared to guide the interests of the white collar girls, as, for example, Mary Anderson did for women in industry.

3. We are in a process of changing office techniques in which the development of a junior executive group instead of a mere clerical group will be worth more to business and lead to higher white collar salaries.

Perhaps these ideas were too mundane for mention. I left with them in my head and a card thrust into my hand by a gentleman. It was an advertisment for a radio service in case I wanted to rent a loud speaker!

THE QUESTION.

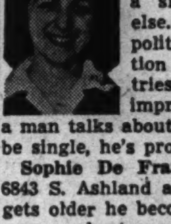
WHERE ASKED.

Grant park.

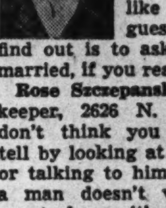
THE ANSWERS.

Donna Mau, stenographer, 1245 Cicero av., Cicero—I always look to see if a man is wearing a wedding ring. Usually if a man is in his thirties I assume he either is married or never will be. A married man usually says something about his wife or his family unless he's trying to conceal his marriage.



Dolores Zuelke, stenographer, 5426 S. Francisco av.—When a man is with a lady it's easy to tell if he's married to her. He treats her like a sister or anybody else. If he's single he's polite, has consideration for the girl, and tries to make a good impression on her. If a man talks about how nice it is to be single, he's probably married.

Sophie De Frank, stenographer, 6843 S. Ashland av.—As a bachelor gets older he becomes somewhat careless about his dress—not all bachelors, but some. But a married man has a wife who looks after him and sees that his pants are pressed and clothes brushed. I wouldn't know how to tell if a young man is married.



Virginia Nelson, stenographer-secretary, 9027 Elizabeth st.—I'm not such a good judge, but you can tell some of them by the look in their eye. A married man is usually more reserved and collected. He isn't flighty or silly like single men. I guess the sure way to find out is to ask the man if he's married, if you really want to know.

Rose Szczepanski, assistant bookkeeper, 2626 N. Lawndale av.—I don't think you can tell by looking at him or talking to him. If a man doesn't want you to know, it's hard to tell, except that he's more complimentary than a single man. He knows he can express himself without getting involved because he's already married.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	3 clubs	3 hearts
3 spades	Pass	4 spades	Pass
6 spades	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

Sometime ago we spoke of the command lead, a case in which your partner had doubled a contract of three no trump and you were obliged to lead his suit. Today we have another variation of this convention. It applies to the double of a slam contract.

It has been observed that when the opposition reaches a slam contract, in the vast majority of cases, the contract will not be defeated more than a trick. That being the case, doubles of slams are not especially profitable. In fact, a double of a slam on suspicion is anathema.

It has, therefore, been agreed by most experienced players that a double of a slam contract has as its chief purpose a direction to your partner to make a certain lead. It announces that the normal lead is not to be made, and provides as follows:

[a] If the dummy has bid any suits [other than trump] dummy's first suit must be led.

[b] If dummy has bid no side suits but declarer has, the double demands the lead of the first side suit bid by declarer.

[c] If the declarer's side has bid no other suit than trump and the defending side has bid a suit, the double requires the lead of an unbid suit, and not the suit either defender has bid.

To put it briefly the double of a slam demands an abnormal lead. Today's hand illustrates how this works. If West should lead partner's suit, hearts, or the unbid suit diamonds, the contract is easily fulfilled. The club lead demanded by the double, inasmuch as it is the first suit bid by the dummy, is the only lead that will defeat the contract for reasons which are obvious.

TOMORROW'S PROBLEM:

As West you hold:

♠ K 10 8 7 4 ♥ 10 9 6 ♦ 5 2 ♣ 8 7 3

The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 diamond	Pass
1 no trump	Pass	2 no trump	Pass
3 no trump	Pass	Pass	Double

What is your opening lead?

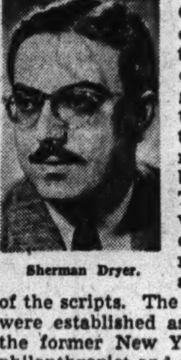
Peabody Air Award for 1944 Is Won by W-G-N and U. of C.

The Human Adventure, broadcast by W-G-N in coöperation with the University of Chicago, was designated as the outstanding educational program of 1944 by the George Foster Peabody radio awards board yesterday. The Human Adventure is produced by Sherman Dryer. He also writes many of the scripts. The Peabody awards were established as a memorial to the former New York banker and philanthropist and are administered by the Grady school of journalism of the University of Georgia.



Sherman Dryer.

The Human Adventure at 7:30 tonight will broadcast the story of "Shakespeare in America" over W-G-N-Mutual.

A couple of weeks ago Gertrude Lawrence, the noted actress who is head of a branch of the Theater Wing providing entertainment for service men, broadcast on the Quiz Kids' radio program an appeal for radios for use on hospital trains.

The public responded liberally. Up to yesterday afternoon 525 receivers, including many fine portable sets which work well on trains, had been delivered. Many came from parents whose sons have given their lives in the army or navy.

Any one willing to give up a radio for the benefit of wounded service men may address it to Quiz Kids, 8 S. Michigan av., Chicago, or to Camp Edwards Debarkation hospital in Massachusetts.

Thru the Looking Glass

The fashion portrait for spring shows women decidedly ladylike and almost as elegant as belles of the Nineties. Subtle colors and simple cut are the keynote in clothes, and of course it's impossible to think of spoiling the picture with a brash, too loud kind of makeup. Cosmetics will have to be chosen with an artful eye to arrive at a correct medium which is quiet enough to blend with the season's new shades in fabrics and still give enough color so the face doesn't look washed out or overly pale.

The answer for many of us will be found in one of the numerous lovely pink makeups cosmetic manufacturers have created to fit the fashion picture. There's a rather bewildering array of them which might well prove baffling, but with a little snooping around you'll find one that will be exactly what you need.

One of the prettiest pink makeups we've seen comes in a "portrait" package. Together in a pink and white striped box are face powder, dry rouge, and lipstick. The powder is in a soft, flattering tint which gives the complexion a nice glow, and the rouge is in a delicate shade to impart a gentle blush to the cheeks without being obvious. We're particularly fond of the lipstick, a warm, vibrant tone with just a faint hint of blue to give it character. And the lipsticks we saw were in metal cases! The trio combine beautifully to give you a makeup that's pretty and becoming, in harmony with the self-portrait you're planning for spring.

Packaging isn't important, but when it's as nicely done as this set it's worth mentioning. All three makeup items are wrapped together in fetching, pink net, and as a gay little extra there's a portrait of a lady in a clear, plastic frame. Charming as she is, you'll probably want to make better use of the frame and replace her with a picture of your own choosing for your dressing table.

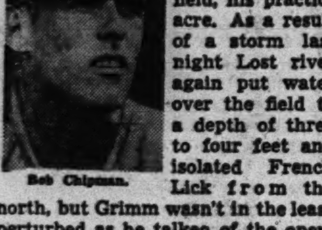
Chipman Reports

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FRENCH LICK, Ind., March 20.—Bob Chipman, the Cubs' No. 1 southpaw pitcher, checked into training camp early tonight, increasing the pitching staff to seven. Chipman, who came to the Cubs from the Dodgers early in the 1944 season for Infielder Eddie Stanky, had a combined record last year of 12 victories and 10 defeats.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

French Lick, Ind., March 20.—Manager Charley Grimm of the Cubs did a bit of philosophizing today as he watched the ripples over Marine field, his practice acre. As a result of a storm last night Lost river again put water over the field to a depth of three to four feet and isolated French Lick from the north, but Grimm wasn't in the least perturbed as he talked of the opening of the National league season on April 17.



Bob Chipman.

Charley intimated he might use Heinz Becker on first, with Capt. Phil Cavarretta returning to center field. Having been Becker's skipper at Milwaukee for all or parts of three seasons, Grimm said he believes Becker's hitting ability can be utilized against the kind of pitching the Cubs will face this season. Tho he is a right handed thrower, Becker is not qualified to play any position in major league style except first base.

Pafko May Play Right Field.

Since there are to be only four exhibition games [with the Sox in Chicago] it may be that Becker will not have opportunity to show whether he is in a Milwaukee mood or the inadequate frame of mind and state of skill he displayed when he opened the season for the Cubs in 1943. Becker hit .343 for Milwaukee last season and Cavarretta hit .321. So it seems the Cubs are sure to have power at first base in 1945.

While he was doing his flood dreaming, Grimm said he would work Andy Pafko in right field just in case Bill Nicholson is not available. All Andy's Cub playing has been in center.

Assures Len He's a Regular.

Just before the squad worked out in the huge horse pavilion Manager Grimm called Len Merullo to his quarters and told him he will start the season at shortstop. Len is a temperamental cuss and needs the confidence that Grimm has a way of instilling high strung ball players. Len got into only 66 games last year, tho firm of limb.

With all Grimm's comforting words, Merullo, of course, will continue aware that Roy Hughes is around and capable of playing short well and hitting much. This also may be said of the Cub grandpappy, Stan Hack, who will, however, continue to have first call on third base. Don Johnson will not have to eye Hughes in the matter of protecting his second base claims.

Pitching Worries Grimm.

Grimm continues to beam every time he discusses the catching situation. He'll select a three man catching staff from five candidates, Mickey Livingston, Dewey Williams, Paul Gillespie, Joe Stephenson, and Len Rice.

It is not until talk turns to the pitching staff that Grimm's exuberance lags. Bob Chipman's arrival this evening lifted Charley's spirits somewhat, giving him a seven man pitching staff on the premises.

Eastern Ring Squad Shares Dodger Camp

BY BILL MURTHA.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Bear Mountain, N. Y., March 20.—This ski resort in the foothills of the Catskill mountains today became the first New York Golden Gloves training camp outside the metropolis in the 18 year history of the Chicago-New York competition. The advance guard of the eastern team arrived here by bus to set up training headquarters for the Intercity bouts with THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's team April 4 in the Chicago Stadium.

The first day's routine was mostly a matter of getting settled. No formal workout had been planned and for the most part the 16 boxers and three coaches making up the vanguard of the New York Intercity squad took advantage of an opportunity to watch training activities of the Brooklyn Dodgers, who are here preparing for the National league season.

Won't Try to Mix Sports.

The Dodgers and Golden Glovers will share living space but there will be no mixing in the other's game. The Golden Gloves coaches are taking no chances of having one of their charges socked by a wayward liner rather than a Chicago fist.

Most of the boxers who appeared were from the Puerto Rican and New York contingents, but before formal workouts begin it is expected that several others will check in. Two alternate aspirants, Al Wankewicz, 160 pounds, and Steve De Luca, 175, are due from Jacksonville, Fla., tonight and Mike Koballa, the rough welterweitght sailor who looked so impressive as a member of the Miami, Fla., team, will come from his home in Allison, Pa., tomorrow.

Marines to Report Later.

The five leathernecks from the Cherry Point, N. C., marine air base who have been invited to join the squad—two of them, Howard Brodt, 160 pounds, and Laverne Roach, 147, are eastern champions—requested permission to train for a few days at their base. They are expected to report later this week.

The New York team has had two defections from the ranks, only one of which is particularly important. Gus Schlee, the heavyweight champion from Buffalo, was unable to leave his job and arrangements immediately were made to replace him. Vic Eisen, Buffalo flyweight alternate, couldn't make it either. The eastern coaches, Teddy Martin, Pete Mello, and George Gainford, tentatively have assigned Schlee's spot to roly-poly Rosco Stout, who won the New York novice title.

DE PAUL PLAYS RHODE ISLAND FIVE TONIGHT

New York, March 20 (AP).—The De Paul quintet of Chicago, now the favorite after eliminating West Virginia, 76 to 52, last night, will meet the Rhode Island five tomorrow night in the national invitational basketball tournament in Madison Square Garden.

Also on tomorrow night's program the Bowling Green, O., team, which routed previously unbeaten Rennselaer Polytechnic institute, 60 to 45, Saturday night, will oppose St. John's of Brooklyn, defending title holders.

SOX TRAINING COLLEGE GAINS 2 NEW RECRUITS

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Terre Haute, Ind., March 20.—Business picked up today in the White Sox training college, and the upsurge was extensive enough to make James Dykes, the manager, believe he now is in command of what could reasonably be termed an infield.

Shortly after a drill in which Rookie Bill Nagel participated for the first time, the hotel register was decorated by the signature of Dan Reynolds, draftee from the Yankees' farm system, who so far as Dykes knows at the moment will be the team's regular performer at short.

Thus, with Leroy Schalk available for second base, Tony Cuccinello for third if necessary, and Nagel for first base, also if necessary, one of Dykes' many worries is somewhat relieved, altho he would feel much giddier if some of his regular pitchers would abandon their holdout roles.

Nagel Admits He's Busy.

Nagel's eventual assignment—he's done everything except catch—is something the manager isn't going to worry over for the time being. There is something more important about the rookie purchased from the Brewers, for whom he acted at third base. Bill appears to be more than a little portly around the waist line, and it didn't take Dykes long to figure out that the expansiveness wasn't due to an ill-fitting uniform. Under questioning the athlete admitted he was too heavy by 15 pounds, the accumulation being the result of the quiet life of a winter time clothing salesman.

Nagel's excess, along with the weather, which chased the squad from the ball park to the near-by golf fairways for the second day in succession, caused Dykes to make a slight alteration in the day's routine. It was mainly a matter of running for everybody, and as all the other fellows are well enough along in their work to take such exertion in stride it was much too much for a fresh arrival. Nagel quickly sprung a heel blister, so not much was accomplished in his particular case.

Prefers to Play Third Base.

Nagel, who is both an Athletics and Phillies alumnus, has no particular choice as to where he plays, just so long as he plays. He'd prefer third base because most of his many years in baseball have been spent there. But right now there are no first basemen on hand, and whether there ever will be one, unless Dykes can make a deal, is doubtful. Joe Orengo was Dykes' first baseman in the plans as revised after Hal Trosky's retirement, but the ex-Tiger remains among the missing. His appearance hinges upon whether he can get a leave of absence from his defense job on the west coast.

If the man power shortage causes Nagel to operate at first base, Dykes can easily find assistance for Cuccinello at third by making use of Cass Michaels, whose name was Kwietniewski until he was deluged with complaints from the Typographical union. He's billed as a shortstop, but he has played third, so if Dykes is forced to stick him in that spot it wouldn't be exactly a noble experiment.

FELLER NAMED AS GREAT LAKES BASEBALL HEAD

Former Indian Star Will Pitch, Too.

BY EDWARD PRELL.

It will be Bob Feller pitching and Ken Keltner playing third base for the Great Lakes Naval Training center baseball team this season. The fortunes of war, in widely different circumstances, are bringing together these former stars of the Cleveland Indians.

Feller, chief specialist in the navy, veteran of 26½ months of sea duty, yesterday was placed in charge of baseball at the huge north shore training base. Keltner, who was summoned by his draft board shortly after reporting to the Indians for spring training, passed his physical examination yesterday in Milwaukee and immediately left for Great Lakes. He is married and the father of two children.

Succeeds Mickey Cochrane.

Feller will be in charge of Great Lakes' fourth war time baseball team. In other campaigns, Lt. Comdr. Mickey Cochrane, now on duty in the Pacific, was in command. Under the one-time catching star of the Philadelphia Athletics and the Detroit Tigers, the Bluejackets won 163 games, lost 26, and tied one. Their best season was in 1944 when they were beaten only twice in 50 games.

Announcement of Feller's selection was made by Lt. Comdr. Rollie Williams, athletic officer at Great Lakes, who expressed confidence that the 26 year old Iowan will handle the assignment satisfactorily. The Great Lakes basketball team was coached by another chief specialist, Forrest Anderson, winning 32 of 37 games. Anderson was voted the outstanding coach of the season by the Chicago Basketball Writers' association.

In addition to his baseball duties, Feller will be attached to the recruit training command under Comdr. William Turek.

Bob Has Been Around.

"Give me a couple of weeks and I'll be ready to pitch," said Feller yesterday at the training center. He reported his weight as 193 pounds and said that he had managed to throw a baseball around while on battleship duty.

Feller's last turn on the mound was in June of 1944 at Majuro Island in the Marshalls. There he met Capt. Ted Lyons of the marines. Bob said that Ted stayed on the sidelines during the game and needled him while he pitched.

The former Cleveland star last pitched competitively over a full season in 1942 when he won 20 and lost 3 games for the Norfolk [Va.] navy team. He wears ribbons denoting service in the American, Asiatic, and Mediterranean theaters, and also for the Philippine invasion. He participated in the Leyte landing.

Work on 50 Game Schedule.

Spring practice for the Bluejackets will begin the first of April. The team will be comprised of younger men than in the past and except for Feller and Keltner it is not known at this time if any former major leaguers will play.

A proposed 50 game schedule has not yet been completed, but it is believed each of the 16 major league teams will play at Great Lakes. Each of the American association clubs has visited the center the last two seasons and all are expected back this year for a 24 game home schedule.

The Bright Lost Years.

He left you an eager, laughing boy,
He'll be coming back a man.

How will he be when he returns,
His talk, his point of view?
Will you notice very much change in him
From all he's been going thru?

Will there still be time for the dreaming,
The planning and all the fun,
That once was every boy's birthright,
Between eighteen and twenty-one?

Will he recapture the bright lost years
When the hurly burly's done?
Will laughter efface all heartbreak's trace
—Jazbo of Old Dubuque.

Rupees.

Remote—beyond horizons that I know—
I hold them in my palm and thoughts unfurled
Bring into focus romance with a glow.
I dream of jewels, fabulous and rare,
Smart princes robed in splendor, Taj Mahal,
And Bengal lancers; Simla, Peshawar,
Far away people, cities that enthrall.
And, too, I call to mind a tired man,
Mahandas Gandhi, who, in his own way,
Sans wealth and jewels, and armed forces, can Still hold the British Lion in his sway.

CLASSIC LEAGUE MAY HAVE NEW LEADER TONIGHT

A new leader is possible after the Classic league winds up its weekly session in Gateway Recreation, 6432 W. North av., tonight. With only five games separating the eight top teams, brought about by last week's upsets, Prima Beer is in danger of being replaced at the top by any one of the next three teams in line, as there are only two games difference among the trio.

In the battle for the second half season championship, Prima had its four game lead shaved to a single game by Keeley Half and Half last week by dropping its series, but has a chance to recover lost ground tonight at the expense of the ninth place Sunkist Pies. Keeleys, only one game out, have the opportunity of narrowing this gap against Chapin and Gore, because of their consistently good shooting.

MONTREAL, March 20 (AP).—Scoring a goal in the last period, the Toronto Maple Leafs upset the championship Montreal Canadiens, 1 to 0, tonight in the first game of their semi-final series in the Stanley cup hockey play-offs.

Kennedy got the puck near the right boards inside the Montreal blue line as the Canadiens were attempting to carry it out. He golfed a hard one while Goalie Bill Durnan's vision was blocked by a maze of players and the puck was in the net before anybody knew what had happened.

The teams meet in the second game here Thursday before resuming the series in Toronto Saturday.

BRUINS UPSET WINGS

Detroit, Mich., March 20 (AP).—Stunning the Detroit Red Wings with three goals in the first period, Boston's fourth place Bruins won 4 to 3 before 10,283 fans tonight in the opener of the first round of the Stanley cup hockey series. It was the Bruins' first victory over Detroit since Dec. 28, 1943.

The Bruins, who lost nine games to the Wings and tied one in the regular season, thoroly outplayed Detroit in the first two periods with an exhibition of fast puck handling and superb defensive play.

Bill Cowley, Bill Cupolo, and Herbie Cain pushed short goals past Harry Lumley, Detroit's 18 year old goalie, to set up a first period lead that the Wings couldn't overcome.

Only One Penalty Called.

Only one penalty was called in the entire game, Gino Rozzini spending two minutes in the box for tripping Jud McAtee in the first period. Immediately after the final gun, however, half a dozen members of each team battled in front of the players' benches for two minutes before the officials restored order.

Detroit's third period attack had the Bruins temporarily demoralized after Earl Seibert bulled his way past Clapper for a 15 foot backhander at 4:04, but when Goalie Paul Bibeault dropped and smothered Howe's short shot and then called time out for a shoulder rubbing the Red Wing pace slowed.

Bruins Regain Control.

Jack McGill made the score 4 to 1 on a breakaway at 7:23 and the Bruins recovered much of the tightness of their defense. The Red Wings never stopped trying, and Joe Carveth cracked the defense for a short poke after feinting Bibeault out at 9:05 and with less than a minute to play Eddie Bruneteau found the net with a 50 footer.

CARDINALS SEEK NEW TRAINING SITE IN OHIO

Floods Lead Southworth to Shift Scenery.

Cairo, Ill., March 20 (AP).—The St. Louis Cardinals have decided to move to a dry land training site "somewhere in Ohio" if Manager Billy Southworth can find a suitable spot.

President Sam Breadon announced today that Southworth is looking for a place and that the squad will leave here if satisfactory arrangements can be made.

The world champions, who opened spring training yesterday, found the outfield of their park under four feet of water with prospects it would not drain within the training period.

Muncie, Ind., March 20 (AP).—Pittsburgh solved most of its pitching problems today when Rip Sewell, 21 game winner last year, formally signed his contract, and Max Butcher, who won 13 for the Pirates in 1944, reported to camp.

Infielder Frankie Zak, who had been dickering over salary terms, informed the club he was signing and would report as soon as he gets a release from his present job. A newcomer in camp was Joe Scrivner, 20 year old right hand pitcher from Lima, O.

$1,000 FOR 15 GAMES!

Bear Mountain, N. Y., March 20 (AP).—After watching Leo Durocher practice around second base in today's outdoor workout at the Brooklyn Dodgers camp, President Branch Rickey announced he would give the manager a bonus of $1,000 if he played that position in the first 15 games of the season.

"And I don't think I'll ever have to pay him the money," Rickey added. "I have him tagged as an active ball player in March and an inactive player in April."

BOROWY, LINDELL IN LINE.

Atlantic City, N. J., March 20 (AP).—Hank Borowy, who had the best earned run average on the New York Yankee staff last year, signed his 1945 contract today. Outfielder Johnny Lindell, who hit an even .300 in 1944, also arrived in camp.

HAEFNER JOINS SENATORS.

Washington, D. C., March 20 (AP).—Mickey Haefner joined the Senators today, bringing the total number of players in camp to 24. His arrival completed the team's pitching staff with the exception of Alex Carrasquel, Venezuelan, and Larry Burger, New York semi-pro, who are expected soon.

SMILIN' JACK

LAMOTTAS WILL MAKE BELATED ARRIVAL TODAY

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Arrival of the Lamotta brothers, Jack and Joey, was delayed until this morning when they were forced to give up their seats in a plane in Washington, D. C., late yesterday and finish the journey by train.

Jack will meet George Costner, Cincinnati welterweight, in a 10 round bout topping the third show of the year in Chicago Stadium Monday night. Joey is paired with Al Jackson, Chicago welterweight, in a six round supporting match. Both will open workouts in C. Y. O. center gymnasium this afternoon.

Spatoro to Box Bratton.

Patsy Spatoro, New York lightweight, also will reach town today for an eight round contest against Johnny Bratton, last year's Chicago Golden Gloves 135 pound champion, on the same card.

Jack Lamotta will be making his third Chicago appearance when he meets Costner. In the two previous fights he beat Sgt. Lou Woods last year and lost to Nate Bolden in 1941. Jack's outstanding achievement was a 10 round conquest of Ray [Sugar] Robinson in Detroit two years ago.

Looks Past Chicago Bout.

Robinson scored his third victory in four fights with Lamotta when he defeated the rugged New York middleweight in a subsequent match in Madison Square Garden. Jack, born in the Bronx July 10, 1922, apparently is not concerned about the outcome of the Costner contest since Jimmy Murray, his manager, has scheduled a match for him against Vic Dellicurti in Boston April 6. If he disposes of Costner, Jack may return to the Stadium May 11 for an overweight encounter against Freddy [Red] Cochrane, welterweight champion.

Chicago Golf Leaders Plan Biggest War Time Season

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The chief executives of nearly two score member clubs of the Chicago District Golf association teed off on their 1945 campaign last night with the third annual C. D. G. A. presidents' meeting in the La Salle hotel, and within a speedy, productive three hours indicated that they are ready for the biggest war time season they ever have experienced.

Neither the complete tournament schedule nor the site of the annual Victory National events was announced, but several other important items were discussed. Outstanding among these were agreement on joining a midwest turf research plan at Purdue university; an incorporated method whereby proceeds of C. D. G. A. tournaments will be distributed to war relief and charitable organizations, and a goal of $25,000 for the association's third annual Dime-a-Round drive.

Seek Fungus Proof Grass.

The aforesaid greenskeeping project, on which the presidents were in accord, is the new Midwest Regional Turf Research Foundation. As explained by Larry Rutherford, C. D. G. A. president; Dr. George Le Mire, and Joe Graffis, this plan would embrace six middle western states.

Golf clubs in these six would contribute to the foundation of fellowships, whereby graduate students at Purdue would carry on a five year experimental program designed to create fungus resistent grass strains and to develop new types of fertilizers and weed controling agents. Graffis suggested that the annual cost for an 18 hole course would be no more than $40, with the club's greenskeeper being able to profit directly from the experiments at Purdue.

Seven on Charity Board.

The new charity organization will be known as Chicago District Golf Charities, Inc. Its functions would be in the hands of a special board consisting of the four executive officers of the C. D. G. A., the preceding two past presidents, and the general counsel. They would oversee the distribution of moneys accruing from the association's various major tournaments.

The Dime-A-Round fund, organized three years ago, has produced approximately $26,000 for the Chicago Service Men's centers thru a system whereby every golfer in the district contributes 10 cents before teeing off on any round. Paul Corbett of Barrington, new chairman of the Dime-A-Round committee, asked each president to appoint a responsible member to conduct individual drives within each club, either by seasonal subscription on the basis of estimated rounds or thru the original method of dropping the dime in a milk bottle, usually located on the first tee. It was called to the attention of the presidents that the Chicago park district courses and Tom Walsh's Westgate Valley club have outdone the C. D. G. A. clubs almost two to one in the first two years' contributions.

Discuss Labor Problems.

Charles Morgan of Park Ridge, C. D. G. A. general counsel, and Stanley Van Dyk of Beverly, chairman of the war service committee, spoke on labor problems at the various clubs and on the possibility of employing disabled veterans who may require outdoor work.

Ed Goeckel of the Wilson Sporting Goods company warned the presidents that the ball famine will be at its worst during 1945 unless concerted efforts are made to have golfers turn in used balls for reprocessing. He quashed the rumor that synthetic thread would be used for civilian distribution, pointing out that the government recently spread a number of orders for 80,000 dozen golf balls. None of these will go to civilians, all being ticketed for service men overseas or for veteran's rehabilitation centers.

President Rutherford also indicated that two other special meetings—one for caddy chairmen and caddymasters and another for greens chairmen and greenskeepers—will be held in the near future.

GENTILE, WOLF MEET TONIGHT IN HANDBALL

A., 20-21, 21-6, 21-2; Ray Laser, Lawson, beat Lloyd Lienweber, Lake Shore, 21-5, 21-5; Ed Puhr, Englewood, beat Mitchel Di Pinto, Duncan, 21-12, 18-21, 21-12; Walter Engelhardt, Waukegan, beat Issy Wishney, Sears, 21-4, 21-17; Bob Kendler, Town club, won from Joe Salerno, Duncan, by default; Frank Turk, Lake Shore, won from Dr. William Serritella, Duncan, by default.

RACING OFFICIAL SEES NO EARLY LIFTING OF BAN

BY MAURICE SHEVLIN.

Racing, as represented by track operators, owners, trainers, and breeders, still is being complimented by the powers that be in Washington on its uncomplaining cooperation with War Mobilization Director Byrnes' three month old ban on the business of competition among thorobred horses. Another season is in the offing, yet there's been no cheering word from Byrnes' office that the sport may lay even one little plan for resumption of activity.

The operators and owners of the sport's vast holdings prefer to say nothing that might be construed as being optimistic. In fact, they just won't talk.

Tells Racing's Story.

However, there is one man who refuses to sit back and wait for some wheels to move. He's Maj. Thomas H. McCreery, national president of the Horsemen's Benevolent and Protective association. He is in Chicago to inform owners, trainers, and officials of his recent trip to Washington, D. C., where he was heard by Maj. Gen. Lucius D. Clay, deputy commissioner to Byrnes.

Maj. McCreery told Gen. Clay what the ban on racing is doing to the industry. He pointed out the deterioration that may result in the breeding branch. He told of the $70,000 a day it is costing horsemen to keep some 15,000 thorobreds from getting too far out of shape. He pointed out that racing is the only test of breeding, to determine which sires and mares may be used in furthering the industry which has been in existence in the nation for some 250 years.

Sees Gradual Restoration.

"Gen. Clay was interested," says Maj. McCreery. "He said neither he nor Mr. Byrnes wanted to ruin investments in racing nor did they want to injure the breeding industry, but felt that this was not the time to talk about it; that when Byrnes considered war conditions favorable enough, he would call in representatives of the breeding industry, the racing associations, and the racing commissioners to talk over plans for resumption of the sport."

"This to me means that when the racing ban is lifted it will be on a comparatively small scale, restricted, in other words, for if the raising of the ban were to be general there would be no need for planning with Mr. Byrnes. The industry already has its plans as in other years.

"However, it is my opinion that we may get the green light soon the way the American armies are moving in Germany. They may start their last big push in the next few weeks."

Maj. McCreery commanded a field remount squadron in France in the last war. He has trained horses for 40 years and owns and trains a stable of his own at Belmont Park. He addressed a meeting of horsemen last night at the Hayes hotel.

RYE RECOVERS AFTER DIP, BUT WHEAT IS WEAK

Wheat remained weak, but rye futures rallied sharply on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday after a price drop on good war news and declines in securities. Wheat and rye fell about 1 cent a bushel in early trading, but rye finished ¼ cent lower after a recovery on buying attributed to a professional trader. Wheat closed ¼ to 1 cent lower. Corn lost ⅛ to ½ cent. Oats closed ⅜ cent lower to ¼ cent higher, and barley was ⅛ to ¼ cent lower.

Brokers who frequently act for mills sold May and July wheat early when the market lacked support. The failure of September and December contracts to rally much was attributed to favorable weather and crop reports.

Part of the strength in rye the last two days was attributed to the reported sale of 300,000 bushels of rye Monday for shipment to Belgium. The report did not indicate whether this first export business in rye in five years was a commercial or lend-lease operation.

National Cylinder Gas Profit, Sales Dip in '44

National Cylinder Gas company net earnings last year declined to $1,848,527, or $1.35 a share, from revised 1943 profit of $1,959,718, or $1.47 a share, Charles J. Haines, president, reported yesterday. Sales of the Chicago industrial gas manufacturer fell to $24,793,292 from $25,787,873, reflecting reduced volume of electrodes used in electric welding. Oxygen, acetylene, and hydrogen sales reached peaks, however, keeping industry "supplied with vital welding and cutting gases."

STOCK MARKET EXTENDS SLIDE; TRADE SLUGGISH

New York, March 20 (AP).—The stock market broke again today. Trends were lower from the start. Dealings, sluggish most of the day, quickened about noon when leading rails and industrials declined 1 to more than 3 points. A little support then appeared and altho extreme setbacks were trimmed in most cases, the ticker tape frequently was at a standstill. Transfers were 920,000 shares, compared with 1,070,000 yesterday.

Customers continued to reduce accounts in preparation for reconversion troubles when the Nazis collapse. Others stood aside because of the mounting belief the highs of early March, peaks since 1937, may stand for the year. Idle money, dividends and earnings propped some favorites, but most failed to advance far.

The Associated Press 60 stock average was off 0.7 at 60.8, largest loss since March 9. Of 943 issues traded, 696 declined and 247 advanced or were unchanged.

BOND PRICES DECLINE.

New York, March 20 (AP).—Moderate selling pressure on rails unsettled the bond market today, but some issues were strongly supported. The Associated Press rail average lost 0.2, and the industrial and low yield 0.1 each. The utility and foreign were unchanged.

Issuance of a new plan for reorganization of the New York, Susquehanna and Western caused net advances of 2½ and 3 points respectively in the road's general 5s and refunding 5s.

CHICAGO LIST LOWER.

Prices were lower yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Leaders in 30,000 share turnover included Aro Equipment, down ½, and Chicago corporation common, Central and Southwest Utilities, Asbestos Manufacturing, and Peabody Coal, each down ⅛.

SHORT INTEREST IN STOCK ON N. Y. EXCHANGE DIPS

New York, March 20 (AP).—The short interest in stocks listed on the New York Stock exchange decreased approximately 62,000 shares between Feb. 15 and March 15 to 1,520,384 shares, the exchange announced today.

Principal decreases included: Delaware & Hudson from 35,673 on Feb. 15 to 26,747 shares on March 15, Certain-teed Products from 5,705 to 630, Graham-Paige Motors from 39,555 to 33,955, Pepsi-Cola from 58,026 to 48,666 and Willys-Overland Motors from 52,240 to 40,630.

Stocks in which the short interest increased included: Illinois Central from 47,940 to 55,982, Lehigh Valley from 7,600 to 14,980, and Missouri-Kansas-Texas from 39,020 to 57,720.

Redevelopment Group Backs Bill to End Slum

The Chicago neighborhood redevelopment commission yesterday passed a resolution advising Mayor Kelly, Gov. Green, the speaker of the house, and the president of the senate at Springfield, that the commission approved state legislation to aid slum clearance under which the city and state would contribute 10 million dollars toward acquiring blighted areas to be cleared and sold either to private interests or the Chicago housing authority.

BRETTON BLITZ LOOSED TO PASS MONEY SCHEME

Capital Blanketed by Propaganda.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—The treasury has organized one of the biggest propaganda lobbies in capital history in a drive to put over the Bretton Woods financial programs without revision before the Dumbarton Oaks world security conference at San Francisco on April 25.

Members of congress are being deluged with news-clippings, letters, speeches, magazine articles, and even movie shorts supporting the scheme. Various treasury experts have called in person to present the administration's arguments for the plan.

Any member of congress who raises his voice on or off the floor of congress against the plan immediately comes under a barrage of propaganda, which begins with a personal letter from Secretary Morgenthau, with clippings from newspapers in his home state supporting the scheme and articles favoring the plan, and ends with calls from so-called experts.

Shafer Is Deluged.

Rep. Shafer [R., Mich.] recently came under the full torrent of the treasury's high pressure program when he inserted a magazine article in the Congressional Record on Britain's financial condition. The article, in "Nation's Business," by Junius Wood, a foreign correspondent, asserted Britain is not broke and counseled delay in the formulation of American fiscal and trade policies until Britain's plans are apparent. It suggested in the meantime the United States raise a suspicious eyebrow at suggestions Britain is impoverished or discouraged.

Morgenthau immediately wrote Shafer challenging several points of what he termed an able article, explaining he was moved to do so because it might be construed as reflecting adversely on the Bretton Woods agreement. The secretary offered to send financial experts to Shafer to straighten him out on Bretton Woods and related matters.

Others Feel Propaganda.

Other members of congress and senators have met the same procedure on voicing opposition to any portion of the Bretton Woods scheme. Altho Shafer is opposed to Bretton Woods, he said he had not inserted the magazine article in question as an argument against the scheme but merely so that his colleagues might be informed by an analysis of Britain's financial position.

As part of the treasury's Bretton blitz, members of congress, particularly those opposed to the scheme or wavering on it, receive regularly clippings from papers in their home states and districts favoring the plan. A number of Michigan congressmen recently received seven pages of photostats, all larger than a single sheet of newsprint, containing clippings on Morgenthau's Detroit speech urging adoption of the Bretton Woods agreement.

Opposition Not Mentioned.

These reproduced whole pages from Detroit papers, even tho only one column mentioned the speech, and carried clippings from Michigan papers and others thruout the country.

The administration has released movie shorts to the public to enlist support for its scheme, as well as arranging a press and speech bombardment. These releases and speeches make no mention of the bankers and economists opposed to the scheme, but play up the treasury and allied experts favoring the plan to give the impression it has the unanimous support of the financial world.

OFFER SHARES NOT TAKEN BY FIELD HOLDERS

A nation-wide banking group headed by Glore, Forgan & Co., Lee Higginson corporation, and Shields & Co. today will offer 21,892 shares of 4¼ per cent cumulative preferred shares of Marshall Field & Co., representing the unexchanged portion of 150,000 shares which were offered to holders of two classes of 6 per cent preferred.

Net proceeds from the sale of the unsubscribed shares, together with additional company funds, will be applied to the early redemption of all 6 per cent shares not exchanged.

Short Term Credit Policy Is Advocated

A "purely" American short term credit institution for loans to foreign countries in connection with comprehensive trade and currency agreements instead of the international monetary fund proposed at Bretton Woods was suggested last night by I. De Vegh, New York economist.

He spoke at a dinner of the Illinois Manufacturers' Costs association in the Hotel Sherman. M. S. Szymczak, member of the board of governors of the federal reserve system, who also was a guest of the association, defended the Bretton Woods proposals.

Fund Termed Bad Strategy.

"In the case of the international monetary fund the means of collaboration is for the creditor to turn over the control of his lending power to the debtor," De Vegh asserted. "This is bad strategy, bad bargaining. It means a surrender of America's economic bargaining power. Whether our aims are the l-ftiest or the most sordidly materialistic, we are not going to attain them if we give away our bargaining power in advance."

He said the capital of the short term American credit institution could be made equal in amount to the contemplated American subscription to the international monetary fund, and asserted that this country could even afford to double the appropriation if necessary.

"Let no other agency give extracurricular economic or financial advantage to foreign nations," he said. "It is only then that anybody in this country will be able to know exactly what we are giving to foreign nations and what we are getting in return."

Szymczak said that altho the Bretton Woods proposals "are not perfect" they are a long step in the right direction. He explained they are designed to help accomplish monetary stability and extension of productive credit.

"Altho fear has been expressed in some quarters that the resources of the fund will be dissipated, adequate controls, both discretionary and automatic, are included in the agreement to prevent unwise use of the fund's resources," he asserted.

APPROVE EDISON PROGRAM TO CUT DEBT, INTEREST

The Commonwealth Edison company yesterday was authorized by the Illinois commerce commission to refund its 3¼ per cent mortgage bonds due April 1, 1979, Charles Y. Freeman, chairman, said yesterday. The $113,900,000 issue is held by 14 insurance companies.

Freeman said $1,145,000 of bonds would be retired thru operation of the sinking fund and $12,755,000 at the call price of 106.5 from funds in the treasury. The remaining 100 million will be exchanged by the insurance companies for a new series of 3 per cent bonds due April 1, 1985. No public offering will be made.

The Edison group's mortgage debt will consist of 180 million of 3 per cent bonds due in 1977, which were offered publicly last October, and the new 100 million issue. The mortgage debt will have been reduced more than 36 million thru the two refunding operations.

CLAYTON TELLS PLAN FOR WORLD TRADE PARLEY

Washington, D. C., March 20 (AP).—Will Clayton, assistant secretary, testified today the state department was considering plans for an international trade conference.

Appearing before the house banking committee in support of the Bretton Woods plans for an international bank and currency stabilization fund, Clayton said there was "not one single element of Santa Claus in it," that the United States would be a big loser in world trade if the plan failed, and that unless this country approved the plan he doubted if "other countries will want to go on alone."

PULLMAN SEES SHARE IN PEACE TRAVEL BOOM

Holds Sleeping Car Use Will Mount.

Prospects are favorable for an enormous travel business after the war and Pullman, Inc., should share in it thru the operation of its car manufacturing affiliate, David A. Crawford, president, told stockholders yesterday. The company expects to relinquish its sleeping car business under a court order which required that it divest itself either of its sleeping car or manufacturing subsidiary.

David A. Crawford.

With new developments in car design ready for post-war introduction, Crawford said he believes opportunities will continue for the development of the railroad sleeping car business despite the various forms of competition the railroads must meet when peace returns.

Benefit from Integration.

Railroad ownership and operation of the sleeping car business under Pullman's proposal to the Philadelphia federal District court would result in the sleeping car operation receiving the benefit of integrated handling of the vital rate making function, Crawford said. Pullman officials long have contended that under the present setup Pullman fares are unfavorable to Pullman because of the wide differential between coach and Pullman fares. If coach and Pullman fares were closer together more persons would buy Pullman space, they have contended.

[A three judge United States District court at Philadelphia on Monday took under advisement a government demand presented by Fowler Hamilton, special assistant attorney general, that unless Pullman, Inc., sells its sleeping car business within a year it be compelled to sell its car manufacturing business. Former Sen. George Wharton Pepper, representing Pullman, said the company is endeavoring to get out of the sleeping car business as quickly as possible.]

Crawford said that altho no reports have been made by the regional railroad committees studying plans to buy the sleeping car business, it is generally understood that these committees separately have reached the conclusion that the railroads should not be called upon to undertake such an operation during the war.

War Traffic Double 1917.

In 1944 Pullman's passenger business totaled 28 billion 300 million passenger miles, more than double the volume in 1917, peak traffic year of World War I. [A passenger mile is the movement of one passenger one mile.] Of the business 12½ billion passenger miles consisted of troop movements and 15 billion 800 million civilian.

Consolidated net income of Pullman, Inc., in 1944 was $12,890,006, equal to $3.99 a share, compared with $8,176,006, equal to $2.52 a share in 1943.

Net earnings of the sleeping car business, including $2,743,910 of 1942 reserve for deferred maintenance returned to income, were $8,822,262, compared with $4,320,467. Profit from the manufacturing business was $3,637,685, compared with $3,580,343, and from investments, $430,057, compared with $275,196.

Tax Burden Heavy.

Taxes in 1944 totaled $43,286,722, absorbed 77.1 per cent of net income before taxes, and were equal to $13.40 a share.

Crawford said that the contract for the purchase of the M. W. Kellogg company, a leading eastern petroleum and chemical engineering and contracting company, provided for a maximum price of $18,250,000. Of this, $16,425,000 has been paid.

[ADMIRAL CORPORATION.]

The procession of newcomers to the radio section of the stock market in recent months included Admiral corporation, whose production of radio, radar, and electronic equipment for the military services has been setting new high marks for this enterprise. Of the company's outstanding 826,368 shares, 216,000 were publicly offered by an underwriting syndicate last November at $7.75 a share.

The subsequent market action of the stock has reflected the general speculative spree in electronic equities, which has reached risky extremes in many cases. The stock recently sold as high as 14⅛, which compares with a book value as of July 31, 1944, of $2.54 a share, excluding deferred charges and patents. This gives effect to the two for one split of the shares the following October but not to the issuance of 150,000 additional shares.

Of the stock offering in November 150,000 shares were sold by the company and 66,000 shares by a group of large stockholders, including Ross D. Siragusa, president, and Mrs. Siragusa. They received $6.665 a share, or less than half the peak price reached in the open market a few months later.

The stock split of last October was the second within a year. The preceding split was on a four shares for one basis. In 1941, the predecessor company, Continental Radio and Television corporation, had split its stock 100 for one.

Few price records are available for the stock before the public distribution. In May, 1942, the company sold 4,900 shares at $10 a share. With allowance for subsequent splits, this would be equal to $1.25 for the present stock. The price comparison is reason for caution.

Admiral's principal predecessor, Continental Radio and Television corporation, was incorporated in 1934. In 1939, the most profitable pre-war year for the company and its present components, combined sales were $4,412,068, and the profit $221,063, equal to 27 cents a share on the present capitalization. By 1941 sales had risen to $9,399,023 and by 1944 to $45,397,733. Net income, $124,424 in 1941, climbed to $921,096 last year. The latter figure is equal to $1.11 a share. In 1943, the profit was $410,883, or 50 cents a share. The 1942 profit of $245,547 was equal to 30 cents a share. The post-war earnings outlook is not clearly defined.

A dividend of 10 cents was paid in December. Under a V-loan agreement cash dividends are limited to 25 cents a share a year. Altho Admiral has no funded debt, its current liabilities of $10,199,464 last July were nearly equal to its current assets, $10,936,465.

Prior to cessation of civilian manufacture in 1942, radio-phonograph combinations incorporating the company's automatic record changer were the largest item in dollar volume. After the war the company plans to enter the electric refrigerator, home freezer, and electric range fields, having acquired Stewart-Warner corporation business in those lines.

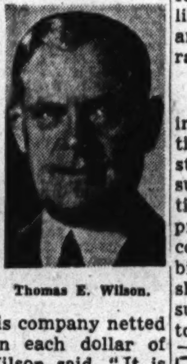
PRICING CHANGE TO AID PACKERS SOON—WILSON

Expects Consumers to Pay Little More.

Adjustments in the meat price structure to provide packers larger profit margins without an appreciable increase in consumer prices are being prepared by government authorities and may be announced soon, Thomas E. Wilson, chairman of Wilson & Co., told stockholders at the annual meeting yesterday.



Thomas E. Wilson.

Recalling that his company netted only 1.38 cents on each dollar of sales last year, Wilson said, "It is not possible under present price regulations to buy legally and sell legally and still make any money."

Condition Is Recognized.

"The authorities in Washington realize this condition, and I believe the situation will change soon," he said. "We are working with the various agencies in Washington and also with congress. Changes are in the making and we probably will hear about them soon.

"Many companies are badly pinched by regulations governing the prices at which we buy live stock and those at which we sell our finished products. These companies cannot continue much longer under such conditions and find funds to keep going."

Wilson declined to explain what adjustments were contemplated and what measure of assistance they would provide the packers.

Discussing the current shortage of meat, Wilson said the country was "short 25 million hogs" and that the government was taking 60 per cent of the "good beef" and 70 to 80 per cent of the lower grades.

Aggravated by Black Market.

Conditions were aggravated by government inability to stamp out the "black market." He explained: "This means that a lot of good pork and beef is drifting away from legitimate channels and that we consequently are getting less of the raw materials we work with. This situation is not impossible of correction and I believe it will be corrected."

Edward F. Wilson, president, reported that dollar volume of sales in the first quarter of the current fiscal year was only slightly below a year ago despite predictions that civilian pork supplies were to be 57 per cent smaller.

He explained that no common dividends were paid in 1944 because the company believed it was wiser to retire 5 million dollars of 6 per cent preferred stock with treasury funds. He said, however, that this did not foreclose the possibility of common dividends this year.

Federal Control of Building Industry Proposed by Ruml

Stabilization of the construction industry thru public works should be coupled with a congressional investigation of the industry that will lead to its reorganization and to its regulation by the government, Beardsley Ruml, chairman of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, told Chicago builders last night at the annual banquet of the Chicago Building congress in the Palmer House.

"Such an investigation should be of the same dignity and competence as that of the national monetary commission, following which the federal reserve system was established," he said. "It need not be and should not be a hostile muckracking investigation.

Some Immunities Needed.

"If it should be found that the industry requires certain immunities under the Sherman act and state anti-trust laws, it should be subjected to corresponding regulation. If some of the restrictive practices of the industry should be continued, even under high stabilized production, these practices should be sanctioned by law and supervised by an appropriate regulatory body."

Ruml said the industry "stabilized by public works expenditures and regulated by a government agency," would be different than it is today but would be as competitive as the "radio, banks, and air lines."

The type of public works he recommended was "optional" projects which should be considered only as a balancing factor and not as the main source of demand for construction. He said the public would not tolerate wasteful expenditures like leaf raking and boondoggling.

Industry Termed Wasteful.

Asserting that the planned timing of public works can be confidently expected to yield important benefits, he said:

"First of all, stability of employment should eliminate the uncertainties and fears which make the industry irresponsible, always fighting for its life. Second, construction costs should fall sharply and the earnings of workers and profits of contractors should increase. Third, the total public construction program could be well planned."

As the industry is now, it is "costly and wasteful," because it is subject to the feasts and famines of seasonal and cyclical demand, he said.

INDUSTRY BORROWING FOR WAR CLIMBS 462 MILLION IN 6 MONTHS

New York, March 20 (AP).—Loans to manufacturers for war production commitments at the end of 1944 aggregated $8,628,597,227, an increase of $461,965,121 since June 30, the American Bankers association reported today. Figures were based on replies from 429 of the country's 500 larger banks. In the poll last June 430 of the 500 replied.

Of the Dec. 31 total, $8,307,266,875 represented loans and commitments for war supplies and materials, an increase of $431,980,795. The remainder represented loans made to build plants.

Pere Marquette Declares Dividend on Its Arrears

Pere Marquette railway directors yesterday declared a $1.25 dividend on the prior preferred stock, the first distribution since $11.25 was paid in 1937. After payment May 1, arrearages will amount to $36.25 a share. The company reported February net income of $474,958, against $226,783 a year earlier.

INCREASE IN HOG SUPPLY FAILS TO MATCH DEMAND

Altho hog receipts at leading centers have risen this week from last week's abnormally low supplies, the increase has had no effect on the pork and hog shortage because demand is working steadily ahead of supplies, it was said at the Chicago stock yards yesterday.

All packers under federal inspection so far this month have slaughtered the smallest number of hogs for a March since 1939.

Buyers again yesterday paid ceiling prices for all hogs received. Cattle were in broad demand at strong to 15 cents higher prices. Lambs declined 15 cents from Monday's 11 month high.

Meat production in federally inspected packing plants decreased approximately 2 per cent more last week from a week earlier, reflecting chiefly a further reduction in hog slaughter, the war food administration said.

WARD OBTAINS ARMY RELEASE OF COLLECTIONS

Company Charged Illegal Seizures.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Army officials yesterday capitulated to demands by Montgomery Ward & Co. for release of certain funds that the company charged the army was collecting improperly. This development came as the United States Supreme court considered a renewed plea by Atty. Gen. Biddle for a quick decision on the legality of the army seizure and possession of Ward properties since last December at the direction of President Roosevelt.

Ward was notified by army officials in Chicago that future collections made on goods sold on a time payment basis before the seizure will be turned over to the company's treasurer. Earlier the company had been advised by the army that other current collections of items not related to the business of the seized properties would be released to it. Such collections exceed 1 million dollars monthly at present.

Army Position Reversed.

This action marked a complete reversal of the army's position. Heretofore, it had appropriated all funds received at the Chicago mail order plant, central receiving station for all the company's Chicago mail. The army has been depositing all such funds, regardless of source, in its account at the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

Included in such receipts were remittances which company officials said were not remotely connected with the properties administered by the army.

The remittances included payments for goods sold to manufacturers who have contracts to make curtains and other articles for Ward. They included payments from railroads and others for claims filed by Ward well in advance of

This is the title of a new booklet, just published by our Trust Department. It tells how Mr. Smith, a busy man, began to wonder one night what would happen to his wife and two children—if something should happen to him unexpectedly.

He tried to figure what his family would have to live on. He thought of the terms of his will. He considered death taxes. He became confused—and visited our Trust Department for assistance.

Call or write for a copy of this booklet. It tells how Mr. Smith solved some personal financial problems which may be quite similar to yours.

the army seizure. They also included thousands of small remittances from customers in payment for goods ordered and delivered long before the army moved in.

Extraction Is Systematic.

The army has systematically extracted checks and money orders from letters addressed to the company, officials said. It was able to do this because it was in possession of the mail order house at 619 W. Chicago av., across the street from the general offices.

The company's only Chicago mail address is "Montgomery Ward & Co., Chicago," and all mail is delivered as a matter of routine to the mail order house.

The army's new policy was adopted after it had received repeated notices from the company asserting that the disputed collections were being made without even the authority of the Presidential seizure order, since declared illegal by the District court in Chicago. The first protest on the time account collections was made to the army early in January, a few days after it took possession of the mail order plant. In succeeding notices the company became more insistant in its demands.

Keeps Funds as "Offsets."

The company was preparing to send out thousands of notices to customers and others to cease making remittances thru Chicago when notified of the army's change practice.

Altho acknowledging the company's right to the disputed collections the army said it would retain funds collected on time payment accounts up to March 1, aggregating $2,275,000, and other disputed collections received up to March 9, estimated at $900,000. The army said these funds would be used as "offsets" against other amounts owing to army accounts from Ward's treasurer. The nature of such claims was not explained.

The possibility that the company later may seek damages from army officers and war department civilian officials involved in the seizure was mentioned by Biddle in arguing for immediate consideration of the case by the Supreme court. He said that as long as a final ruling was put off the risk of liability remained.

Ironical Case: No Redress.

Others, however, said the company would be in an ironical position if the Supreme court sustained the finding that the seizure was illegal. In that event the company could not bring action in the court of claims for any losses sustained because of the finding that the seizure was outside the powers of the government. Under those circumstances there would be no legal avenue open for a claim against the government.

The army remains in possession of 10 of Ward's large retail units, including the Chicago av. store, three mail order houses, and two warehouses. On Feb. 9 it turned back to the company the Schwinn warehouse in Chicago and the fashion house unit that serves all Ward's 900 odd branches.

INDUSTRY SETS PEAK IN ORDERS DURING JANUARY

Washington, D. C., March 20 (AP).—The value of new orders placed with manufacturers in January exceeded all previous monthly totals and was 8 per cent above December and 25 per cent above January, 1944. The commerce department monthly industry survey today also reported manufacturers' inventories fell another 160 million dollars to an estimated 16 billion 600 million a three year low.

The main reasons offered for the rise were [1] Renewed expansion of war contracts resulting from the alteration in military plans after the German breakthru in Belgium, and [2] early placement of 1945 orders as requested by government agencies.

Preliminary indications were that the new business placed with durable goods manufacturers in January was about equal to the record volume in June, 1942, when war contracting was at its peak.

MINE OPERATORS REPORT PARLEY IS IN STALEMATE

Washington, D. C., March 20 (AP).—Bituminous coal operators reported today that their negotiations for a new contract with the United Mine Workers have "made no progress." The old contract expires March 31 and a strike vote has been ordered for March 28.

The operators called in newspaper men to announce the deadlock in the presence of John L. Lewis, UMW president, who commented only that "we still hope to reach an agreement."

Neither O'Neill nor Lewis has asked government intervention and both said they would appear for resumption of the conferences tomorrow morning as usual.

Hearing Set on Proposed Pennroad Suit Settlement

Wilmington, Del., March 20 (AP).—Hearing was set today for April 23 by Vice Chancellor George B. Pearson Jr., in the proposed 15 million dollar compromise settlement between the Pennsylvania Railroad company and Pennroad corporation. The original suit against the railroad alleged losses of 95½ millions thru unwise investments and charged the railroad was responsible because it controled Pennroad.
